SHORTAGES LAID TO EX-SERGEANT OF HOUSE, 2 AIDS, EX-CONGRESSMAN

Audit Shows $65,000 Is Owed by John H. Smithwick and $22,965 by Kenneth Romney to Informal Bank.

By JOSEPH HANLON
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—In the hands of Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. is a preliminary report of the General Accounting Office which ascribes to four persons a shortage of more than $121,000 in the books of the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives.

The Post-Dispatch has learned that the accounts in which shortages have been reported by the GAO are:

John H. Smithwick, a Democratic ex-Representative from Florida, $65,000.

H. A. McKenzie, also a former employe of the sergeant-at-arms, $8000.

Discrepancies found thus far are in the period 1928 to 1938. The audit is not yet complete. When it is extended any change in the amount of the shortage as reported to Martin will be in the direction of increasing, rather than decreasing it.

Private Bank for House.

All of the shortages are in the informal, private and unsupervised bank which the sergeant-at-arms has conducted for the convenience of members of the House. Many members—at the last session more 300 of the 435—customarily signed authorizations for the direct deposit of their paychecks to their accounts in this bank and then drew on the accounts as the occasion required.

This raises a question whether the company which supplied the bond for the sergeant-at-arms in his official capacity may be held liable for the shortage or whether the loss will fall ultimately on the bank's depositors—the members of Congress who used its facilities. In any event, the covering bond was for only $50,000.

In most instances, the Post-Dispatch has learned, the shortages were accumulated simply by the process of cashing checks and then not charging them to the accounts of those on whom they were drawn. In others, notes and IOUs were accepted.

New Appointee Asked for Audit.

These uncanceled checks, notes, and IOUs turned up when Romney's successor as sergeant-at-arms, William F. Russell, who took office when the Republicans assumed control of the House, requested the General Accounting Office to make an audit so that he could start with assurances that the accounts were as represented on the books.

There had never before been an

DETROIT COUNCIL CALLS FOR STUDY OF TOLEDO PLAN

Mayor to Name Committee — Survey of 'Peculiar Aspects' of Labor Problem in Michigan City Sought.

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (AP) — The City Council gave official indorsement last night to appointment of an 18-member committee to make a detailed study of the Toledo plan for dealing with labor disputes.

The council gave unanimous approval to the proposal by its president, George Edwards, and commissioned Mayor Edward Jeffries to appoint the committee. Jeffries said the committee would be named "with the least possible delay."

On the committee will be six representatives each from labor, management and the general public.

Edwards said he wanted the committee to give particular attention to the success of the plan in Toledo. He said he desired a survey of all "peculiar aspects" of the labor problem as it affects Detroit, to determine what is needed for this city.

Essence of the Toledo plan is voluntary agreement between labor and management to submit disputed issues to an agency composed of representatives of management, labor and the public.

The plan has the sanction of both CIO and AFL officials in Detroit. President Walter P. Reuther, of the CIO United Auto Workers has indorsed it.

Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, said success of the plan would depend on selection of impartial board members.

WINTRY WEATHER RETURNS; LOW OF 25 EXPECTED TONIGHT

Rain Changing to Snow Predicted—Light Smoke Pall From East Side.

The warm weather of the past few days will give way tonight to more winter, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren predicted.

The thermometer, which registered 60 degrees at 9:15 a.m. yesterday, the highest mark since the 67 degrees reached last Dec. 27, will fall to 25 early tomorrow morning and not rise above 35 in the afternoon, he said.

Light smoke, which Wahlgren said came mostly from the East Side, hovered over the area early this morning, limiting visibility to about two miles in the city and to seven miles at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Light rain changing to snow was predicted for tonight and the cold weather is not expected to moderate before Friday.

CRIPPLED CANADIAN FREIGHTER MAKING PROGRESS IN STORM

Ship Struggling Southward in Atlantic at 5 Knots as Other Vessels Stand By.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—The crippled Canadian steamer Tecumseh Park, which yesterday radioed it was breaking up in heavy seas 840 miles east of Halifax, reported today it was struggling along at five knots through rough Atlantic seas. The freighter, which carries a crew of 41, was proceeding, with four deck plates fractured, in a southerly direction, to escape the storm. Other vessels were standing by.

Meanwhile, hope dwindled for the Boston trawler Belle and its crew of 17, missing five days in the North Atlantic.

Mountainous seas have plagued Atlantic shipping for nine days. The Queen Elizabeth, world's largest passenger ship, was expected to dock in New York Friday, a day late. The Swedish liner Gripsholm arrived yesterday after a stormy 11-day crossing in which the ship's chief physician handed out 10,000 seasickness pills. Five hundred of the 1248 passengers were ill in a single day, he said.

A heavy fog kept 12 ships anchored off Ambrose lightship today and forced 124 flight cancellations at LaGuardia Field between last midnight and noon.

TALMADGE WINS BATTLE FOR CONTROL OF PHONES

Has Service Restored to His Office After Arnall Had Ordered Disconnection.

ATLANTA, Jan. 15 (AP)—One of the first battles between Georgia's rival Governors today was for control of the telephone lines leading into the executive office.

Later Arnall had the telephones disconnected, but Herman Talmadge had them reinstalled.

Then calls to the office brought the answer: "Governor's office." When the caller asked which Governor, the reply was "Gov. Herman Talmadge."

NOLTE THINKS SHERIFF HAS TOO MANY DEPUTIES

Decides to Ask for Count, After Hearing of Outside Jobs Held by Dougherty Aids.

An investigation to determine whether Sheriff John F. Dougherty employs more deputies than necessary will be sought by Comptroller Louis Nolte.

His announcement followed yesterday's disclosure by the Post-Dispatch that one deputy sheriff has a full-time job as a bus driver for the St. Louis Public Service Co. and three others work part-time as bartenders.

"It has been my opinion for some time that the sheriff's office is heavily overmanned," Nolte said "and I am going ot request the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to make an investigation of the situation, and, if the facts warrant it, ask for a reduction of the sheriff's force."

Meanwhile the Comptroller's office placed a hold order with the City Treasurer against the salary of the bus driver-deputy, Thomas D. Whitelaw, pending investigation by the circuit judges. Salary withheld amounts to $82.29 for the first half of January.

Nolte added that the circuit judges, who approve the sheriff's deputies and assistant, have always insisted that deputies hold only one job and not accept outside employment.

Judge to Take Up Case.

Presiding Judge William K. Koerner of the Circuit Court announced that he would take up the dual employment of Whitelaw, an outside deputy who drives a Kingshighway bus, with the judges informally in a special meeting tomorrow on another matter. He said he would determine if they wish to call another special meeting on the Whitelaw case or wait until the next regular term meeting on Jan. 27.

Judge Koerner also said he intended to call in Sheriff Dougherty for an explanation of how Whitelaw is able to hold a full-time job as a bus driver and also perform his duties properly as a deputy sheriff for which he is paid $165 a month. Sheriff Dougherty is on vacation in Florida.

Whitelaw concealed his other employment from the circuit judges when he was examined by them on March 3, 1945, following disclosure by the Post-Dispatch of the records of Sheriff Dougherty and 15 of his deputies the previous month.

Judge Robert L. Aronson—"Do you have any other occupation presently besides that of deputy sheriff?"

Whitelaw—"No, sir."

Judge David M. Murphy—"What was your business previously?

Judge Francis E. Williams —

Eastland of Mississippi Makes Adverse Comment on Question Sent to Union Members About Shower Baths.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Senator Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, raised the question today whether a CIO union used "racketeering" tactics in pressing portal-to-portal pay suits. The point came up when Senator Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, testifying before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on legislation to outlaw such suits, submitted a questionnaire which he said the CIO United Steel Workers Union circulated among its members.

Capehart said the questionnaire, dealing with portal pay, put this question, among others: "Do you normally take a shower before leaving company property?"

"This indicates," Capehart said, "that the unions are out on a fishing expedition and that they don't know whether they have a case or not."

Eastland, a member of the subcommittee asked: "Isn't that more like racketeering?"

Capehart replied that "it might be called that." He added: "It's a high-pressure sales campaign on a wholesale basis."

The subcommittee recessed until tomorrow morning after hearing Capehart and Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, authors of separate bills to outlaw or curb portal suits.

"Real Threat of Bankruptcy."

Wiley, pointing out that "this is the first subcommittee hearing held under auspices of the Republican party since 1933," told the crowded hearing room:

"The very real threat of bankruptcy now hanging over many individual employers, cannot be underestimated and an emergency now exists. . . .

"We cannot afford to wait with folded hands the determination of the courts on this crucial issue affecting the very life of our private enterprise system. . . . Enemies of the United States at home and abroad are feeding upon the confusion, the uncertainty and the fear engendered" by this problem.

Wiley, in a statement suggested these possible courses:

1. Definition of "compensable working time within the meaning of the fair labor standards act." This would remove the threat of future losses, he said.
2. Removal of portal suits from jurisdiction of the courts.
3. A time limitation provision affecting all claims, pending or prospective, or a general statute of limitations to cover all claims

FALSE TEETH AT 4 FOR BOY WHO NEVER WILL HAVE HIS OWN

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 15 (AP)—A 4-year-old boy who dentists say never will have teeth of his own is wearing a complete set of false teeth.

The youngster, whose name was not made public by the Northwestern University Medical School, which made the dentures, is a victim of total anodontia, in which even the beginnings of teeth are absent.

The school said there are only 15 cases of total anodontia recorded in the literature of dentistry, and no mention was made in those instances of whether false teeth were provided.

The tiny plates, approximately the size of a half dollar, were made for the boy by the pedodontia (children's dentistry) department of the Dental School. They contain 20 teeth, the normal number for the first teeth of a 4-year-old.

ICE FROM GLACIER 6 MILLION YEARS OLD CHILLS COCKTAILS

Alaskan Touch Flown by Plane for Publisher's Party at Waldorf-Astoria.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—An ingredient very old—six million years old, in fact—was added to cocktails at a dinner party at the Waldorf-Astoria last night.

It was crystal clear ice from the Mendenhall glacier in Alaska, flown 3300 miles by transport plane to chill the cocktails of dinner guests of Thomas H. Beck, chairman of the board of the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co.

NINE DAYS IN SEALED BOXCAR

Man's Feeble Kicking Leads to Rescue; No Food or Water.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15 (AP)—Edgar Grimsley, Tulare (Calif.) farm worker, was rescued last night from a railroad boxcar in which he said he had spent nine days without food or water.

"I'm right glad to see you," he whispered to a railroad boxcar checker who heard feeble kicks coming from the sealed car and investigated.

Grimsley, taken to a hospital, said he had crawled into the car in Tulare, Jan. 5, to take a nap.

Old-Time Livery Stable Closes; One of Last in St. Louis Area

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Dave Brown's livery stable at 2216 Biddle street, where 40 years ago the city's young blades rented surreys—with and without fringes on top—closed its doors today. It was one of the last establishments of its kind in the St. Louis area.

The proprietor, who founded the stable 42 years ago when he was 17 years old, and who has seen his business change from surreys and buggies to the renting of horses and wagons to peddlers, told the Post-Dispatch his principal reason for retirement was ill health.

Forty horses belonging to the establishment have been sold to a private purchaser and will not be used in the livery business, Brown said. With them went 30 wagons, two buggies and a sleigh. The sleigh was used in the last snow.

Brown, who came to this country from Russia with his father when a young boy, said he is known throughout the Middle West as "The Horse Trader of Biddle Street" and in addition to the livery business conducted a large-scale trade with foreign countries in horses and mules in the two world wars.

Since the war, he said, he has sold many horses to the Army, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and to private purchasers. The only animal not sold was a saddle horse. "We're keeping that one—the family will be able to use it," Brown said.

GEORGIA ASSEMBLY NAMES TALMADGE'S SON GOVERNOR; ARNALL REFUSES TO YIELD

EXECUTIVE BARS 'PRETENDER,' WHO OPENS OFFICE IN AN ANTEROOM

Both Appoint Aids—Use Of Militia to Oust One, And Court Fight Over Post Likely—Supporters in Fist Fight.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 15—Georgia had two claimants to the governorship today. They were Herman E. Talmadge, 33-year-old son of the late Eugene Talmadge, who died 23 days before he was to have been inaugurated as Governor, and Ellis Arnall, who declined to surrender his office after young Talmadge had been elected early today by the Legislature in a stormy session.

Arnall went to his office in the Capitol as usual today while Talmadge, whom Arnall described as a "pretender," established his office in an anteroom. It appeared that the militia might be employed to oust one of them but whose orders were to be obeyed was in doubt.

Two Adjutants General.

Georgia also has two men claiming to be adjutant general. Arnall appointed R. W. Collins, retired regular Army colonel and former commander of the state guard, as adjutant general. Herman Talmadge, in his first action after claiming office, appointed S. Marvin Griffin, whose term as adjutant general had just expired. Arnall said he regarded Griffin as a private citizen.

Between the two rooms in the Governor's suite of offices, in which the rival gubernatorial claimants are established, is a large reception room. This morning it was packed almost solidly with people, most of them rural residents of Georgia.

The order called for demobilization of the Georgia State Guard headed by Col. Collins.

Arnall telephoned Secretary of War Robert Patterson in Washington after swearing in Collins, telling Patterson that Talmadge had sworn in Griffin, and asked which the War Department would recognize. Arnall received an answer while newspaper men were standing nearby, but declined to reveal that answer.

In Washington, the War Department took a "hands off" attitude on the dispute, saying it could not give federal recognition to the appointment of an adjutant general of any state "on the spur of the moment." The War Department provides certain equipment for the Georgia National Guard, but the State Guard is operated by Georgia.

Later Collins defied Talmadge's order dissolving the Guard and added that he now had authority over both the State and National Guard troops. He said he would issue an "order of the day" calling on members of both organizations to "continue in service for the unity of the state."

Collins said Talmadge "has notified me that I am retired, but he has no more authority to do that than any man on the street."

Offices 20 Feet Apart.

Both Arnall and Talmadge were in their offices, about 20 feet apart, throughout the morning. Reporters went from one to the other for their statements and appointments.

Talmadge announced he had named Charles D. Redwine, Forsyth banker, to be state revenue commissioner. Arnall announced he had appointed T. M. Price to that post.

Meanwhile State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. announced that pending settlement of the controversy, he would follow orders of the General Assembly in issuing checks.

"If a situation arises where I cannot proceed under General Assembly orders, I will ask Attorney General Eugene Cook for an opinion," Thrasher said.

Cook previously had ruled that Arnall had the right, if he so desired under the State Constitution, to hold office four more years since the regularly elected Governor had died before taking office.

Newsreel cameras were set up in the offices of both Governors and crowds jammed their quarters. Fiddlin' John Carson, who made the campaign circuit many times with the late Eugene Tal-

STEEL WAGE TALK DELAYED; STRIKE NOTICES ON FILE

Murray Says Action Does Not Mean Automatic Walkout When Pacts Expire Feb. 15.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15 (AP) — Wage-and-hour talks between the CIO United Steel Workers and United States Steel Corp., whose contracts usually set the pattern in the industry, have been postponed until next week.

Originally, the talks were to begin tomorrow. No definite date has been set for the sessions and no reason for postponement was given.

The Labor Department at Washington announced 30-day strike notices had been filed by the union involving about 1000 steel, steel fabricating, aluminum and related companies.

Philip Murray, president of both the Steel Workers and the CIO, said the notices are a "mere mechanical procedure" and that they do not mean the union will strike automatically if contracts are not renewed by Feb. 15, expiration date for most of them.

Edgar L. Warren, director of the Labor Department conciliation service, said "the Government has full confidence that both the union and the companies will make every effort to conclude peacefully a mutually satisfactory agreement. It is our hope that this agreement can be completed by the parties this year without the necessity of Government assistance."

The union said it plans to ask for higher pay, establishment of a social security fund, travel time, an annual wage, and improvement of other work conditions.

Iron Age, industry publication, said that any "unusually high wage demand" by the steel union would be flatly rejected "since there is no disposition" by steel leaders to advance prices any more than in the last 30 days.

Iron Age said both union and management were expected to bend over backward in an effort to reach an agreement. It said management was eager to keep operations at peak levels for many months and that labor, although "aggressively seeking a substantial wage increase, would like to obtain this concession without resort to a national strike," which it said might result in far more stringent Government regulation of unions.

TWO-PANTS SUITS ARE PUT ON SALE AT PRICE OF $35

BOSTON, Jan. 15 (UP)—Two-pants suits went on sale here today. Described as all-wool, the suits were offered in the bargain basement of Willian Filene's Sons Co., and priced at $35.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (UP)—It will be a while longer before men will be able to buy two-pants suits and double-breasted suits with vests.

Even though both are now legal, the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers said today that it will be some time before they reach the stores in quantity.

A few stores will have them this spring and more will be stocked in the fall. Some stores, however, have decided to discard them permanently, the association found in a survey.

LONDON TRUCKERS REJECT GOVERNMENT TRUCE PLAN

Turn Down Mediation Offer Based on Return to Work—More Workers Join Sympathy Walkouts.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (UP)—Striking London truck drivers today rejected Government overtures toward a settlement of the walkout. Delegates of the drivers conferred for six hours with officials and then in a private meeting turned down offers designed to put them back on the job.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—More London dock workers and Thames lightermen quit work today in sympathy with the 10-day-old truck strike while prospects for an early settlement lessened.

More than half of the 42,000 strikers were on sympathy walkouts in protest against government use of troops to move food for hungry Londoners. The walkout threatened to involve all of the port of London's 24,000 union workers. About 20,000 strikers were truck drivers and 9600 were dock workers.

Leaders of the truckers met for six hours today to decide whether they would accept a Government-sponsored mediation plan, under which the strikers would resume work while the new Joint Industrial Council considered their grievances.

No decision was announced, but one strike leader commented that "feeling seems to be hardening in favor of continuing the strike."

Back-to-Work Appeals.

Leaders of the "unofficial" work stoppage joined union heads in an appeal this morning to dock workers to return to their jobs, but their speeches were shouted down.

Strike leader J. E. Evans, in a message to transport strikers, said he hoped "some concrete proposals" would develop in union negotiations today. The Daily Herald, Labor party organ, said in a bold headline: "Strike call-off likely today."

At least 20,000 other union members prepared to join the walkout if the new conferences fail. The truck drivers want a 44-hour work week instead of 48 hours, two-week paid vacations

TRUMAN DEPLORES 'BURNED CROSSES' IN TALK ON RIGHTS

Recalls Discrimination in Own State in Charge to New Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Truman spoke out today against "burned crosses" and men who "worked behind sheets" in his own home state of Missouri in asserting that "I don't want to see any race discrimination."

Charging his new Civil Rights Committee with responsibility for finding means for strengthening protection of minorities, the President said the country could very easily be faced with a situation like one he recalled in 1922 when he was running for his first elective office—County Judge of Jackson county, Missouri.

There was an organization in that county, he said, "that met on hills and burned the crosses and worked behind sheets."

Truman added: "There is a tendency in this country for that situation to develop again, unless we do something tangible to prevent it.

"I don't want to see any race discrimination. I don't want to see any religious bigotry break out in this country as I did then."

FORD ANNOUNCES PRICE CUTS UP TO $50 ON SOME MODELS

Action Termed "Down Payment Toward High Production and Employment."

DETROIT, Jan. 15 (UP)—The Ford Motor Co. today announced price reductions ranging up to $50 on some models.

Ford, only major auto manufacturer which did not increase prices with abolition of price controls, thus became the first to slash prices.

President Henry Ford II said the decreases would go into effect immediately as his company's "down payment toward a continued high level of production and employment in the months ahead." "We believe that the 'shock treatment' of prompt action is needed to halt the insane spiral of mounting costs and rising prices and to restore a sound base for the hopeful period of postwar production we are now entering," he said.

Heroism in Tenement Collapse Saves Bookmaker From Prison

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (UP) — Abbey Pettinelli, a bookmaker, has been arrested 16 times. Yesterday he was brought up in court for sentencing on a bookmaking charge to which he had pleaded guilty.

A captain of detectives, Thomas E. Hannigan, stepped forward.

"This man is a hero," he said. He explained that Pettinelli had worked for three days and nights last month rescuing persons from the ruins of the Amsterdam avenue tenement in which 37 persons were killed.

"Did he save any lives?" Special Sessions Judge Alfred J. Hofmann asked.

"A lot of people's, and his own life was in danger often," the policeman said.

"I can't understand how a person with such fine character could stoop so low as to be a common bookmaker. But I want to reward you for the aid you gave to suffering families and the police. Will you go out and get yourself a job if I let you go?" the judge asked.

"I'll never make book again," Pettinelli said.

JUSTICE JACKSON CRITICIZES COURT AT HEARING OF COAL MINE CASE

Suggests Questions From Bench Were Effort to Psychoanalyze Congress — Decision Not Expected for Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The decision as to whether the Government had any legal right to call John L. Lewis into court last November to break the soft coal mine strike was in the hands of the Supreme Court today.

It may be weeks before the court announces its findings, but the justices themselves may know by Saturday what the answer will be, along with the one to this second question: Will Lewis and his AFL United Mine Workers have to pay all or any of the $3,510,000 in fines assessed against them for contempt of court?

Saturday is the day of the next regular conference of the nine justices. If each has made up his mind by then, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson will assign one of them to write the court's opinion. That task usually requires several weeks.

The court's next opinion day is Monday, but another will not be held until Feb. 3. That is the earliest date a decision appears possible.

Court Hears Arguments.

The court wound up three hours of arguments on the historic case late yesterday.

The only incident during the long and tense courtroom drama came less than five minutes before the end.

Justice Frankfurter was leading Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett through a series of questions and answers about the legislative history of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act, under which the Government seized the soft coal pits last spring.

Finally, when the white signal light went on, indicating that only five minutes of the attorney's allotted time remained, Justice Jackson interrupted to tell Sonnett he thought the lawyer ought to take another point in his argument.

'Psychoanalyzing' Congress.

"You better get on it and not devote any further time to the psychoanalyzing of members of Congress, because your light is on," Justice Jackson said.

"I'm not saying it was your fault," the justice continued with a smile. "You were led into it by the court, which has likewise found itself spending much of its time in psychoanalysis of Congress."

As Sonnett replied with "I'll be more than happy to obey, your honor," Justice Frankfurter wheeled in his high-backed chair.

He had grabbed a stack of documents from the bench, and as he turned he dropped them to the floor.

Sonnett went on with his argument only a moment. Then the red light beside the white one flashed on. His time was up, and the hearing was ended.

Justice Jackson's Point.

The point Justice Jackson suggested that Sonnett pursue was what would happen if the courts lacked jurisdiction to issue an injunction in a case like the coal dispute.

In that case, after Lewis had given notice of terminating his wage contract with the Government, thus making a strike inevitable, the Government got a temporary restraining order from District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in an effort to head off the shutdown.

Lewis ignored the order. His 400,000 soft coal miners walked off their jobs as scheduled and were fined $3,510,000 for contempt of court. Lewis called off the strike Dec. 7, when he appealed the fines to the high court.

The chief point of controversy in the case had been whether the Norris-La Guardia anti-injunction act applies when the Government is a party to a labor dispute.

Stephen Raushenbush Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Stephen Raushenbush resigned today as chief of economics and statistics for the Interior Department's power division. He said he would devote his time to writing and to consultation on economic matters.

UMW Hearing Muffled in Dignity And Draperies of Supreme Court

No Tumult Such as in Previous Proceeding —Spectators Disappointed When Lewis Fails to Appear.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. The tumult and the shouting that seem perpetually to surround the doings of the United Mine Workers were conspicuously absent yesterday in the august chamber of the Supreme Court.

One reason was the absence of the blustering UMW president John L. Lewis, who disappointed a throng said to have been one of the largest ever to crowd the Supreme Court's marble palace.

Another reason was that the atmosphere of the court did not lend itself to frivolity. The contrast was marked between the calm proceedings yesterday and the excited activities of six weeks ago when Lewis and his union were held guilty of contempt in United States District Court by Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. This finding led to the Supreme Court hearing.

There was a churchlike aura about the three hours and 40 minutes of oral arguments, the greater part of which, because of the faulty acoustics of the room, were completely lost to the spectators.

Justices Barely Visible.

Those in the back half of the room sat on carved wooden pews, upholstered in crimson, from which they could observe only the heads of the nine Justices. When one of the smaller Justices, like Frankfurter or Black, would sink down in his highbacked swivel chair, he could scarcely be seen at all.

Sometimes the spectators were aware only that a voice was coming from behind the long mahogany judicial bench. It could not be identified nor the words deciphered. On a number of occasions even the lawyers, standing at a lectern immediately in front of Chief Justice Vinson, failed to hear the Justices' questions.

Those sitting in the front half of the room, the section reserved for lawyers, fared only a little better, and there were times when most of them seemed to have one or both hands cupped to their ears.

The faulty acoustics in the chamber long have been a subject for complaint in Washington. The room is several stories in height and the walls are supported in a double row of marble columns. When the chamber was first used, the echoes were so confusing that heavy crimson draperies were hung against the columns. The result was to eliminate the echoes but to muffle all sounds.

The session began on the stroke of noon, the nine black robed justices appearing with dramatic suddenness through slits in the draperies behind the bench.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark, wearing a formal cutaway, spoke first for the Government, delivering a prepared statement with dignity and confidence. He was followed by Welly K. Hopkins, UMW attorney, who was dressed in a brown business suit and who, like Clark, appeared to be impressed with the solemnity of the occasion.

The third lawyer to speak, the UMW's Joseph A. Padway, showed more animation than the others. He gestured with a pencil and occasionally shook his clenched right fist for emphasis. He hesitated a few times under a barrage of questions.

Posture of Judges.

The Justices listened to the arguments in various attitudes of repose or alertness. Justice Rutledge lay back in his chair with his eyes on the ornate ceiling; Justice Murphy at times ran his palms across his temples and back above his ears; Justice Frankfurter referred frequently to documents before him; Justices Black and Reed rested their chins in their hands; Chief Justice Vinson, who appeared of larger stature than the others, looked placidly at the speakers; Justice Douglas leaned forward to ask questions, blinking his eyes; Justice Jackson took notes and seemed restless; Justice Burton had little to say but followed the arguments carefully.

At exactly 2 o'clock Justice Vinson inclined his head toward Padway and said: "I think we'll recess now." He arose and, followed by the others, disappeared through the curtains, leaving Padway with his mouth open and one arm raised—literally cut off in mid-sentence.

An attache of the court said Vinson's action was the essence of politeness compared to that of some of his predecessors, who would just get up and walk out without any explanation.

Exactly 30 minutes later the justices reappeared with the same abruptness, their entrance being signaled by the crack of a gavel. They were followed by a small retinue of page boys, who took seats behind them and looked after their needs.

Attendance Falls Off.

Padway instantly resumed his place at the lectern and continued as before. It was as though a motion picture film had been stopped and then started again after a half-hour intermission.

The crowd was not quite so great after the recess. It had become apparent that Lewis was not going to put in an appearance and some of the hungrier members of the audience, unable to obtain luncheon in the strike-closed Supreme Court cafeteria, had gone home. As Sonnett concluded his remarks there were even a few empty seats.

Among those present at the session were Clark M. Clifford of St. Louis, President Truman's legal adviser; President William Green of the American Federation of Labor; Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, who recently advocated labor courts for industrial disputes, and Dave Beck, Seattle AFL Teamsters' boss.

BYRD EXPEDITION VESSELS NEARING LITTLE AMERICA

First Task to Be Building of Airstrip for Carrier Planes if Base Still Exists.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MT. OLYMPUS IN THE ROSS SEA, Jan. 14 (Delayed) (AP) — The Navy's South Polar expedition expects to reach Little America tomorrow—if it still exists.

Little America, the expedition's goal, was base of a previous Antarctic expedition headed by R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd.

First task of the expedition on reaching Little America will be to build an airstrip on the ice to receive planes being brought down by the carrier Philippine Sea.

R. Adm. Richard H. Cruzen said he plans to scout over the Bay of Whales and the Little America site upon arrival and to send a five-man landing party ashore on skiis.

If Byrd's old camp side is found suitable, unloading will be started at once and Seabees then will begin the airstrip.

It is possible, of course, that Little America might have gone to sea on an iceberg or be inaccessible among the ice jumbled upward by colliding glaciers. If the old base is unsuitable, the expedition must go elsewhere.

A fuel depot and communication facilities will be among the first projects at the air strip. The Philippine Sea is due to arrive near Scott island, outside the ice pack, between Jan. 23 and 25, Cruzen said, and the airstrip will be rushed to receive six twin-engine Douglas transports from the carrier.

These planes will join PBMs from the eastern and western task groups in the tremendous job of photographing hundreds of thousands of square miles of still unknown territory.

'NO. 3 JAPANESE CRIMINAL' GETS DEATH SENTENCE IN MANILA

MANILA, Jan. 15 (AP)—Sadaki Konishi, tuberculous little warrant officer, who was labeled No. 3 Japanese war criminal in the Philippines because of brutalities to more than 3000 Allied nationals, was convicted today of five atrocity charges and sentenced to be hanged. Gen. Masaharu Homma and Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, already executed, were considered the No. 1 and No. 2 criminals.

The United States military court said it had sufficient evidence to prove Konishi participated in or ordered the execution of at least 100 persons, and was responsible for the gradual starving of 3000 Allied nationals at Los Banos in the five months preceding their rescue by American paratroops in February 1945.

Konishi, who wears a gauze mask because of his tuberculosis, stumbled and had to be supported after he heard the sentence.

CORONER CAN'T FIND BODY OF TENNESSEE QUADRUPLET

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 15 (AP)—Marion County Coroner R. H. Hall said last night he had searched unsuccessfully for the body of the fourth quadruplet reported born early Sunday to Mrs. Jess Moore in a mountain shack near here.

"There is no evidence there was a fourth child, which was reported stillborn," Coroner Hall said. "I conducted an extensive search."

Dr. Tom Johnston of Sequatchie, Tenn., asserted he delivered quadruplets, one a stillborn, and could "produce seven witnesses who will vouch for the fourth baby."

Milch Trial Adjourned.

NUERNBERG, Jan. 15 (AP)—The war crimes trial of Field Marshal Erhard Milch was adjourned today until Jan. 27 to allow his counsel time to prepare his defense. The prosecution completed evidence charging Milch with full knowledge of inhuman medical experiments carried out in the interest of the Nazi air force.

RUSSIA, POLAND REJECT VIEWS OF U.S. ON ELECTION

Molotov Tells Ambassador Smith Moscow Doesn't Agree Warsaw Prevents Free Vote.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Moscow announced today that "the Soviet Government cannot agree" with the United States and Britain that tactics of the Polish Provisional Government made it unlikely that Sunday's scheduled elections could be free and unfettered.

In Warsaw, the Communist-backed Polish provisional Government simultaneously told the United States that it intended to run the elections in its own way, regardless of whether Britain and the United States liked it.

The Moscow Radio said Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov on Monday handed to United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith the Russian answer to an American request to the Soviet Government to join in the protest to Poland.

The United States request, sent in conjunction with a stiff note to Poland herself, was delivered in Moscow early this month.

The Russian note contended that the only source of accusations against the Polish Government, as presented in the American message, was Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the opposition Polish Peasant Party, and commented:

"The well known facts of the participation of certain members of Mr. Mikolajczyk's party in the activities of underground organizations, which resort to all kinds of threats, violence and murder in order to hinder the normal conduct of the elections are, however, completely ignored."

Declaring there had been "numerous instances of bandit raids on electoral premises, intimidation of electors by threats against supporters of the Government and democratic bloc, and even a number of assassinations of members of electoral commissions," the Russian note said the Polish Government "would have failed to discharge its obligations to the people had it not taken measures against these criminal elements in insuring the conditions necessary for holding free, democratic elections."

The Polish note, handed to Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane in Warsaw, rejected as "unfounded" allegations by the Western powers that suppression, coercion and intimidation of voters and repressive measures against Mikolajczyk's party violated Potsdam and Yalta guarantees of free and unfettered elections.

CLAY ORDERS AMG TO LET GERMANS GOVERN SELVES

BERLIN, Jan. 15 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay today ordered his American Military Government personnel to adopt hands-off roles in the government of the United States occupation zone of Germany, and ungrudgingly to yield responsibility to the Germans to govern themselves "in an effort to restore democracy."

In a special message outlining the AMG's tasks for 1947, Clay said important steps had been taken in delegating responsibility to the Germans in both the American zone and on bizonal boards composed of Germans for conducting the economy of the merged American and British zones.

"Hereafter," said Clay, "we shall intervene in land (state) legislation and administration only if necessary to prevent measures which are inconsistent with our objectives in Germany. We must not interfere with German assumption of responsibility. We must support the land constitutions with the utmost sincerity."

DRAFT PICKETS END 116-DAY JUSTICE DEPARTMENT SITDOWN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (UP)—A 116-day sitdown demonstration at the Justice Department by picketing conscientious objectors ended late yesterday when the last of seven convicted objectors, whose freedom the pickets were demanding, was released from prison on completion of his term.

Each of the seven, convicted of violating the Selective Service Act, served out his term before being released.

The sitdown was started by the Rev. Roger Axford of Chicago who came here Sept. 20 after his own release from prison. He was the only one on hand all 116 days. Charles Wellman of Boston, who came and went several times, was present when the siege ended officially. They wore prison stripes in their sitdown on the steps of the Attorney General's entrance.

WAA EMPLOYE, EX-CONVICT HELD ON FRAUD CHARGES

Accused by FBI of Scheme to Obtain More Textiles Than Were Paid For by Forgery.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The arrest of a War Assets Administration employe and an ex-convict on charges of fraud was announced today by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Hoover identified the men as George A. Gormley, an ex-convict, and Louis V. Dionne, WAA expediter. He said they "evolved a scheme" to obtain textiles "through alteration of sales documents" at a sale conducted by the WAA in Alexandria, Va. Both are residents of Washington.

Hoover said both men are charged with a violation of the "fraud against the Government statute in that they caused a forged document to be presented to the United States Government."

"The investigation thus far," Hoover said, "has resulted in the recovery of textiles costing the Government $144,000. This amount of goods was seized in a New York storage firm after being traced from a terminal of a trucking firm."

Hoover's announcement said the two men met at a Washington hotel bar last November "and thereafter conceived a plan which assured the delivery to Gormley of more high-grade woolen goods from the Government warehouse than he had formerly purchased and paid for" at the Alexandria sale last Dec. 6.

Hoover said the 38-year-old Dionne was employed by WAA last August as an expediter in the traffic division. His function, Hoover said, was to determine from surplus property sale purchasers the manner in which the desired merchandise was to be shipped and to what destination.

Gormley, who is 50 years old, was sentenced in Washington on Nov. 27, 1933, to serve a four to eight-year sentence on a grand larceny charge, Hoover said. On Feb. 20, 1934 this sentence was revoked and a straight eight-year sentence imposed.

NUERNBERG, Jan. 15 (UP)—The Army announced today that Mrs. Edith Emily Earnest of Merchantville, N. J., wife of Maj. Clyde T. Earnest, supply officer for an Army Engineers group, hanged herself in her Nuernberg home Sunday. She left a three-months-old child. An investigation is underway.

AUSTIN ASKS U.N. TO DELAY ARMS TALK UNTIL FEB. 20

Points Out That U.S. Is Changing Its Secretary of State and Says Marshall Needs Time for Study.

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP)—The United States and Russia afiled today to agree in a last-minute conference off the floor on the best way to tackle the arms question. The United States then requested the United Nations Security Council to delay action on the question until Feb. 4 to allow time for study.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate sitting for the first time, and Andrei A. Gromyko, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, talked earnestly in the delegates' lounge for nearly 30 minutes before the afternoon meeting of the Security Council.

Then Gromyko maintained his position for an immediate start on the whole question of general arms limitation in a brief speech to the council as it resumed debate.

Austin quickly followed with a plea that the council withhold action until Feb. 4 to enable the delegates to study the motions before the council and to make up their minds. He also called attention to the change in the United States Secretary of State and noted that the incoming secretary should have time to study the proposals.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 15—Debate in the United Nations Security Council on which comes first—discussion of world atom control or universal disarmament—was resumed today. The Soviet Union and the United States again were on opposite sides of the fence, with American forces under new leadership united for atomic priority.

An Australian resolution suggesting concurrent action by the Security Council on both atomic energy control and on arms reduction was introduced by Chairman Norman J. O. Makin shortly after the session convened. Makin proposed immediate appointment of a disarmament commission, and at the same time instructing the Atomic Energy Commission to begin preparation of a treaty outlawing atom weapons.

Makin's resolution also would require a report from the U.N. Military Staff Committee setting forth military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and outlining information needed from member nations to formulate plans for reduction of all armed forces.

Urging joint action on atomic energy and arms control, Makin asserted that "the Australian delegation can see no objection to doing so and believes that if this work could proceed side by side, progress in each subject would assist progress in the other."

"We are in favor of the general principles of the Soviet proposal and the general principles of the United States proposal, but we do not regard either as exclusive of the other," Makin continued. "While we would not be prepared to vote in favor of either one singly, we will support them both if they can be taken together."

The Australian statement followed similar conciliatory remarks by Quo Tai Chi of China, who also proposed mutual action on all phases of disarmament, including atomic weapons. Quo conceded that atomic energy clearly held priority in any discussion of arms reduction, however, supporting American contentions.

Warren R. Austin, who took his seat today as permanent American representative, said prior to the council meeting that he would propose a definite deadline for consideration of atomic control, possibly Feb. 4. He made it plain that he wanted discussion of atomic energy to take priority over discussion of general disarmament.

No Change in Policy.

Austin's observations confirmed that there would be no change in policy when he replaced Herschel V. Johnson as American spokesman in the Security Council.

It was predicted that Johnson would continue as deputy in other council deliberations and that John Hancock, formerly associated on the Atomic Energy Commission with Bernard M. Baruch, might return as Austin's aid in that agency. After taking oath yesterday as permanent United Nations delegate, Austin declined comment on either report.

MATTSON KIDNAP-KILLING CASE SUSPECT BEING QUESTIONED

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 15 (UP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents of the United States were disclosed today to be questioning a suspect in the Mattson kidnap-killing case of 1936.

Windsor police said the suspect was being detained at the FBI's request after dismissal in city magistrate's court of charges against him that he stole a radio from an apartment at which he called while peddling medical aids. Authorities refused to divulge the suspect's possible connection with the Mattson case other than to say he had admitted "associations with the Dillinger gang."

RUSSIA TO ALLOW PRIVATE SALES OF SOME GRAIN

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP) — A Council of Ministers decree today granted permission to all collective farms and farmers in districts which have complied as a whole with the state plan for 1946 harvest grain deliveries to engage in free sale of grain "on the side" in 1947, until the new harvest begins.

The decree, considered by observers to be an important step, will open up private trading channels in a specific category. It also will expand private trading opportunities for collective farmers as individuals, permitting them to sell on open peasant markets not only the grain they have produced on private plots but also any portion of that which they have received from their collectives as remuneration for labor.

Thus, the decree represents an effort on the part of the Soviet Government to encourage the peasantry, in districts which are not in arrears to the state in 1946 grain deliveries, to put their surplus grain into direct channels to urban consumers.

The move is in line with a recent decree authorizing co-operative organizations to buy up surplus grain in the countryside at prices prevailing on the open market, for resale to city consumers.

The new decree in no sense represents a move toward abandoning the principles of the collective farm system.

U.S. TO RETURN CITY'S 8½ - ACRE TRACT THAT ARMY USED AT AIRPORT

WAA Agrees to Cancel $1 Lease Immediately — Possibility of Navy Letting St. Louis Use 21-Acre Area.

The War Assets Administration has agreed to return to St. Louis immediately the eight and one-half acre portion at the southwest corner of Lambert-St. Louis Field which the Army used during the war, Representative Walter C. Ploeser announced today in Washington.

A hangar on the site, now occupied by the National Guard air arm, was used during the war as a servicing base of the Air Transport Command. The property is owned by the city and has been leased to the Federal Government for $1 a year.

Ploeser said A. W. Manley, director of airports for the WAA, told him he had ordered "immediate cancellation of the $1 lease which it has been offering for sale." The WAA office in St. Louis is to be notified immediately to cancel the lease and return the property to the city, Ploeser added, in compliance with a request he made during a conference with Manley yesterday.

Retention of the Army site by the Government after it was no longer needed by the armed forces was one of the points of criticism in a report issued last week by a committee of the Municipal Airport Commission. The committee said that, although the Army no longer needed the space, instead of being returned to the city the lease was "being peddled to other Government agencies as a valuable property." The lease was declared surplus by the Army last August.

Yesterday, Ploeser announced that R. Adm. A. Irving McQuiston of the Naval Air Division had assured him that an immediate investigation would be made of the possibility of turning over to the city the Naval Air Station at the airport. If this were done, Ploeser said, the city would probably be given permission to use the 21.5-acre site sold to the Navy for $50, under an operating permit granted by the Navy. Ploeser has suggested the Navy's training program be moved to Scott Field, an Army base.

MAN SHOT TO DEATH IN ROW AT TAVERN, BARTENDER HELD

Ervin Culp, 36 years old, of Bethalto, Ill., was shot to death last night at the Three Mile Tavern, on Illinois Route 112, three miles north of Edwardsville. A bartender, James Weaver, who lives at the tavern, admitted the shooting, police said, and is being held in the county jail at Edwardsville.

Police said Weaver and Culp's companion, Miss Frances O'Neil, 709 Washington street, Alton, told them there had been an argument in the place and Culp slapped Miss O'Neil. Two men who also were in the Culp party left, the sheriff's office said, and Culp took the woman to his automobile parked nearby. He took a rifle from it, they continued, and told Miss O'Neil to "get out, because somebody's going to get shot." She walked to a house a short distance away.

Weaver told deputies that he stood in a front hall of the building while Culp broke a number of windows with the rifle's butt. Weaver said he had obtained a .22 caliber rifle when Culp left the building, and when Culp leveled his rifle toward Weaver and threatened to kill him, Weaver fired one shot at Culp through the door.

'Action in Georgia 'Battle of Governors'

TALMADGE'S SON ELECTED, ARNALL REFUSES TO QUIT

madge, wandered back into the Capitol, tucked his fiddle under his chin and began to saw away on "Sugar in the Gourd."

Arnall Statement.

In a press conference, Arnall rehashed his previous statements that he will remain as Governor "until the Lieutenant Governor can be elevated."

He said that the Constitution provides that he remain as Governor until a proper successor is elected. He said Talmadge has never been a bona fide candidate, reiterated that the office of Governor belongs to the people, and the Legislature has no authority to elect a Governor.

He called the election of Talmadge illegal and he said that no doubt his decision to fight the Talmadge General Assembly election will be upheld in the courts. This means Arnall will probably stay in until court action. He said by staying in office and not yielding, he is meeting his constitutional duties.

Talmadge Urges Peace.

About noon Talmadge came out into the jammed reception room, stood on a desk and urged his followers to go home, saying:

"Let's not engage in any rough house stuff. We are peaceable people. I don't want any of my friends to create any scenes. If I need you, I'll call for you, as I did two weeks ago."

Talmadge maintained that he is the Governor and told the crowd, "Everything going along fine." He asserted the action of the Legislature in selecting him as Governor represented the will of the people. He said:

"With the help of Almighty God and the General Assembly I hope to make a good Governor."

Election of Talmadge, who was not even on the election ticket although he had received some write-in votes, came at 1:50 o'clock this morning in the Legislature after days and nights of dickering and political horse-trading in campaign headquarters at a downtown hotel. He defeated M. E. Thompson, Lieutenant-Governor-elect whom Arnall contends should be legally recognized as Governor. Arnall, aware that the Georgia constitution prohibits a Governor succeeding himself, had previously submitted his resignation to become effective after the qualification of Thompson as Lieutenant Governor to succeed him.

Scene in Arnall's Office.

Talmadge bases his claim to the office on a constitutional clause allowing election of a Governor by the General Assembly if no person has a majority of votes in the general election. He contends death voided his father's majority, hence the election would be from the two candidates receiving the most write-in votes.

Thompson, who cannot take office until his election is certified by the Legislature, said he would fight for the right to serve as Acting Governor. "I shall insist," he said, "that the will of the people as expressed under the constitution be not thwarted."

Shortly after taking the oath of office in the legislative chamber, Talmadge, accompanied by his wife and mother went to Arnall's office with 25 legislators and a group of "wool hat" supporters from the rural areas his father dominated for years. Arnall had remained there throughout the night as the politics-ridden legislators were in session.

Talmadge shook hands with Arnall and said, "I presume you are aware that the Legislature has elected me Governor of Georgia."

Arnall replied: "I consider that the General Assembly has allegedly elected you Governor, but I assert that the office belongs to the people. I respectfully and firmly decline to surrender the office. I consider you a pretender."

After this interchange, a fist fight, quickly quelled, broke out in the anteroom, as a Talmadge adherent cried, "Let's throw him out."

Talmadge, who was reared in his father's school of practical politics, told the Post-Dispatch his only desire was to follow his father's platform to the letter. Its principal tenets are maintenance of "white supremacy," including the white primary, and preservation of the county unit system which virtually disenfranchises city dwellers.

For "Georgia for Georgians."

Asserting that he was for "Georgia for Georgians," young Talmadge told the writer that he wasn't interested in international affairs. Such considerations, he added, were "up to Congress."

"But I am interested in developing the state's resources," Talmadge said, "and to try to strike an even balance between industry and agriculture. Georgia has an ideal climate, great resources and a cheaper tax rate than most states. Economic opportunities for the future of the nation exist right here."

—Associated Press Wirephotos.

M. E. THOMPSON
His claim to office as Lieutenant Governor-elect was disregarded.

Talmadge, who like his father, was financed partly by conservative business interests, said he was aware that the laws provide the right to organize labor unions. Unions, he added, would be permitted to operate in Georgia so long as they complied with state laws. One of his legislative supporters is preparing to introduce a bill to outlaw the closed shop. It is backed by the Georgia Farm Bureau.

As a political legacy Talmadge inherited from his father the supporters from rural areas, "the wool hat" contingent, who came to be termed "the Talmadge legion." They voted for his father through the years through thick and thin regardless of issues.

Uncanny Memory.

Young Talmadge does not possess the color of his father, who wore red galluses as a political trade mark and enjoyed the sobriquet of "The wild man from Sugar Creek." But he has an almost uncanny faculty for remembering names and faces and is as adept at keeping up his political fences.

From the time he went to grade school he was a politician. At the University of Georgia, where he was graduated in law, he was so effective as a campus politician that he organized a new political group his freshman year and when a senior was elected president of the inter-fraternity. He is a Sigma Nu.

A glib speaker, he was salutatorian of his high school class and was on his college debating team for years. He managed his father's unsuccessful campaign for the United States Senate in 1938 and his campaign for the governorship in 1940, when he was elected for the third time. He also managed his father's latest campaign, conducted victoriously on the cry of "white supremacy" and on attacks on Arnall as a Governor who had sought "the Harlem vote" and was supporting candidates who would enable the Negroes to go to the polls in overwhelming numbers.

Good War Record.

During the war, Talmadge served in the Navy for 52 months, rising from an ensign to lieutenant-commander. While he is reluctant to discuss his service, the writer learned from shipmates that he made a distinguished record. While on duty in the Pacific, on one occasion, he directed the maneuvering of his troop transport so as to evade a torpedo. He had the reputation of being cool and decisive in combat. He manifests those same traits in his political battles.

Talmadge, who was married in 1941, has two sons, one and four years old. While politics is his abiding passion, he had his father's love for the land and is fond of recalling that he once raised 13 bales of cotton on 17 acres.

Suave, personable, neatly groomed, he "mixes well." He's fond of cigars and not averse to an occasional chew of tobacco. He operates on the principle that those who do not avow loyalty to him are against him.

When not "politicking"—which is seldom—he goes hunting or fishing.

ORDER BARS SUGAR TO LIQUEUR CONCERN

Southern Host Co. in Effect Deprived of It for 18 Years or End of Rationing.

The Southern Host Co., liqueur manufacturer, was barred today in a consent decree issued by United States District Judge George H. Moore from receiving any more sugar until an alleged excess of 360,047 pounds over its allotment had been absorbed by future quarterly allotments of 5000 pounds each.

The decree, sought by the Office of Temporary Controls, required the company to surrender ration points for all sugar hereafter used but the effect of the order apparently would deprive the company of any further supplies for 18 years or until sugar ceases to be rationed.

The OTC charged the company last year had used 401,260 pounds of Cuban rock candy, containing 381,197 pounds of sugar, without surrendering the required ration coupons. Company officials declined to comment on the future course of the business in view of the decree. The plant is located at 5243 Manchester avenue.

Suit for an injunction charging violation of sugar rationing regulations was filed yesterday against the Vess Cola Beverage Corp., 2925 Locust street, in United States District Court. The OTC charged the concern had similarly purchased Cuban rock candy and had converted it into 52,706 pounds of sugar for which no ration points had been surrendered.

LARAINE DAY DIVORCE SUIT WILL NOT BE CONTESTED

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15 (AP)—The answer in the Laraine Day-Ray Hendricks divorce case, in which Hendricks charged baseball manager Leo (Lippy) Durocher with stealing the actress's love, will be withdrawn and her divorce suit will not be contested, her attorney announced today.

Attorney Bernard Silbert, representing Miss Day, said a stipulation of the parties would be filed today providing for the withdrawal of the answer and stating that a property settlement has been reached. Silbert said Miss Day will be given custody of an adopted child, Christopher, 13 months old.

Attorney Silbert said he and attorneys for Hendricks, airport manager, "sat down and worked out amicably" the problems in the case and that she will be given the chance to obtain an uncontested divorce. Hendricks's answer had asserted that Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, had stolen his wife's affections under the guise of being a family friend. Miss Day issued a statement vehemently denying the assertions regarding Durocher. Her divorce suit charged cruelty.

Stalin in Guard of Honor.

MOSCOW, Jan. 15 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin made a public appearance last night as a member of the guard of honor beside the coffin of V. V. Vakhrushev, former minister of the coal industry of the eastern regions, who died Monday.

3 SCHOOL BOARD OFFICERS TO GET PAY RISES NOW

Effective Before Revenues From Proposed Tax Hike Are Voted—$15,000 for Hickey.

The controversial question of immediate salary increases for three executive officers of the Board of Education before additional revenues are made available by a proposed tax increase was resolved last night by the board in favor of the increases.

Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey will receive $15,000 annually instead of $12,000 while the salaries of Commissioner of School Buildings Joseph P. Sullivan and Secretary-treasurer Mervyn E. Wiethaupt will be raised from $8500 to $11,000. Sullivan and Wiethaupt were also reelected to 4-year terms although their present terms do not expire until April.

J. Harry Pohlman and William Schumacher, board members, opposed the increases at this time for fear the action might turn voters against the proposed tax increase and $35,000,000 bond issue for school construction.

The board countered a request by teachers for doubling the present $250 annual cost-of-living adjustment by proposing that the board's legislative committee seek an additional state appropriation for teachers' salaries of $5,000,000 annually for the next three years.

The Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, chairman of the board's instruction committee, said it was the unanimous feeling of the board that teachers' salaries should be increased but he declared nothing beyond present levels could be granted without passage of the tax increase or further help from the state.

Expected announcement of plans for a campaign and a date for the bond and tax election was deferred by the board until next Tuesday to permit further study of a report by the Governmental Research Institute recommending the building program be financed on a pay-as-you-go plan instead of by a bond issue.

The board took no action on recent requests by civic and labor groups that it drop its long-standing policy against employment of married women as teachers. Consideration was deferred pending a report by William W. Burke of Washington University who is drafting an over-all merit plan for all employes of the system.

The necessity of relaxing another long-standing rule—that only graduates of the city-operated Harris and Stowe teachers' colleges are eligible for teaching positions in the public schools—was forecast by Hickey last night. He said a prospective shortage of qualified teachers next year will require recruits from outside the city colleges.

"At this time," he said, "we are engaged in an effort to set standards of minimum qualifications to be met in competitive examinations to secure the best qualified teachers from whatever source they may be available."

Protests by a delegation of home-owners in the Walnut Park area against the proposed condemnation of their homes to make way for a playground and high school at Riverview boulevard and Theodore avenue were heard by the board but no action was taken. Wiethaupt said it would be several years before the board could proceed on the project.

FINED FOR VIOLATING RAT LAW

Fines of $10 and costs were assessed against two property owners, who pleaded guilty of failure to secure their buildings against rats, in Police Judge George J. Grellner's court yesterday.

Those fined were Herman Pieri, owner of a building in which a poultry market is located at 4005 Easton avenue, and Clarence Smith, owner of a six-family dwelling at 3827-3829 Windsor place.

UNION MAN SAYS EXTORTIONISTS GOT CASH HE TOOK

East Side Police Question Member About Charges by Treasurer Edward Young.

Maurice D. Parnell was questioned by East St. Louis police today regarding Edward Young's charge that he intimidated Young into taking funds of AFL Common and Building Laborers' Union, which were paid over to Parnell, a member of the union. Parnell is charged in a warrant with conspiracy to abtain $1000 with intent to defraud the local.

Young, the union treasurer, who has confessed taking the greater part of the $5700 missing from the union's funds, told police yesterday that he paid most of the money to two men who intimidated him. The first of these, he said, was Oliver A. Keller, then president of the union, who has since killed himself. The other was Parnell.

Young said that in February, 1944, Keller asked him for $200 from the union funds, promising to pay it back, and threatening him with exposure of a minor irregularity of which Keller knew. He said Keller continued the demands until he had paid him about $3000, with no repayment by Keller. Keller became a patrolman in the Police Department, and ended his life last Oct. 24.

Young said Parnell's demands on him were made after he had begun paying Keller; that Parnell knew of the payments to Keller and threatened Young with violence if he were not paid also. Young said he did not know how much he had paid Parnell, but said he had lately taken some money for himself and spent it for drink, "to forget about what would happen to me when this was found out." He said it was possible that he had taken all the missing $5700; his first admissions covered only about $3500.

Young, held on an embezzlement charge, has continued to deny any part in the safe burlary at the union's headquarters, 1235 Fisher avenue, in which $10,700 was taken the night of last Dec. 26. He has admitted that he made a false report of a burglary in 1945 at his home, 1270 North Thirty-first street, to account for the loss of $400 union funds there.

CITY JAIL PRISONER GETS $5 REWARD FOR HONESTY

A City Jail prisoner, Robert Tolliver, Negro, who is serving a five-month sentence for attempted burglary, has received a $5 reward for being honest, Warden E. E. Hensely announced yesterday.

Miss Thelma Munkres, 8349 Ardsley drive, Bel-Nor, rewarded Tolliver for finding and returning the works of a wrist watch which she lost during the Christmas holidays while she was making an inspection trip of the jail with a group of Fontbonne College students.

PLANET JUPITER TO BE OBSCURED BY MOON TOMORROW

Rare Occurrence, Called Occultation, Won't Be Visible to Naked Eye.

Jupiter, the largest and second brightest planet, will be obscured by the moon tomorrow morning, Dr. Jessica Young Stephens, Washington University astronomer, said today. The phenomenon, known technically as an occultation, will not be visible to the naked eye, however.

Dr. Stephens said the occurrence was rare. Tomorrow's occultation of Jupiter will be the first since she has been at the university, 27 years, she said.

The occultation will start at 6:21 a.m. and end at 7:47 a.m. here. If weather conditions permit, Washington University astronomy students will observe the phenomenon through the university's telescope.

INQUIRY ON BLAZE AT FLAT

Police today were investigating a fire apparently started by vandals at a two-story brick flat at 1410 North Seventh street. Battalion Fire Chief Frank Mollencott said the blaze, which caused damage to the building estimated at $50, was started Monday when someone ignited coal oil poured on the downstairs front door.

Police said neither Miss Frances Lograsso, who lives on the first floor, nor members of the family of Vito Vitale who live on the second floor, could give any explanation for the incident.

F.D.R. JR. CHARGES RED FACTION IS WRECKING A.V.C.

Says Veterans Organization Is 'Confused by Lies and Tactics Thrown at Us.'

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., national housing chairman of the American Veterans Committee, says that Communists have moved into the A.V.C. and changed it from "a flowering, inspiring group of young Americans interested in the nation's welfare" into an organization "tattered and torn and factionalized."

"We are now bewildered and confused by the lies and tactics thrown at us by people who would not admit they were Commies but who at every turn of the road hewed to the Daily Worker (Communist newspaper) line," he declared at a meeting yesterday.

The A.V.C. now numbers between 75,000 and 80,000 members and has stopped growing, he said in addressing the women's division of Friends of Democracy, Inc.

"About six months ago," he said, "we noted that the Daily Worker was advising its members and its fellow-travelers not to go into the American Legion but into an up-and-coming organization called the A.V.C. The people of America have lost faith in us because we are Commie-infiltrated."

Then he added, "we must decide—what now?"

FIRST MEETING OF TRUMAN, CONGRESS 'BIG 6' TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Truman will hold his first bipartisan legislative conference with the new congressional "Big Six" tomorrow.

The White House announced today that four Republican congressional leaders will meet with the President at the White House at 10 a.m. tomorrow together with the Democratic minority leaders, Senator Barkley of Kentucky and Representative Rayburn of Texas. The Republicans will be Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; Senate Majority Leader White of Maine, Speaker Martin of Massachusetts and House Majority Leader Halleck of Indiana.

DELINQUENCY OF PARENTS IN YOUTH CRIMES ASSAILED

Use of the term juvenile delinquency is a fallacy, Melvin Purvis, former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent who directed the capture and killing of John Dillinger, then Public Enemy No. 1, in 1934, told the Washington University Association last night.

Speaking to an audience of about 400 persons at Soldan High School, Purvis said a more accurate term would be "adult delinquency." He asserted that frequently when a youth becomes a handicap to society, it is the fault of the parents. "What the children need is more direction and guidance from the home," Purvis said.

Purvis, who now practices law in Florence, S. C., told the meeting that the nation's outdated parole and penal systems must be reorganized before the national crime rate can be decreased. The existing systems tend to encourage crime, he said. He also took the position that too many police organizations "drive ex-convicts back into crime because of their inability to pursue a normal way of life due to police hounding and intimidating them."

CITY LIQUOR LICENSES UP 247 LAST NINE MONTHS OF 1946

Liquor licenses in the city increased by 247 in the last nine months of 1946 even though individual tavern operators reported a marked falling off in business, Excise Commissioner Arthur H. Bader said yesterday.

There was 3160 licenses in effect at the close of the year, compared with 2913 in effect on April 1 last year. While the number of places license to sell by the drink on the premises rose by 118, from 1567 to 1694, the largest percentage increase came in the package sales licenses which jumped from 414 to 516, a gain of 102. There were decreases in the number of beer licenses.

Bader said the larger proportionate increase in package sales licenses led him to believe that higher prices at bars were influencing more people to drink at home.

FOUR FROM AREA HURT IN MINNESOTA WRECK

One in Hospital — Collision on Northern Pacific Occurred in Blizzard.

Four persons from the St. Louis area were injured, one seriously, when two trains collided yesterday in a blinding blizzard at Perham, Minn.

Master Sgt. Hebron T. Weaver, 38 years old, 4991A Quincy street, who suffered internal injuries, remained in a Perham hospital. His wife, Mrs. Elsie Weaver, flew to Minnesota last night.

Passengers from the St. Louis area who escaped with less serious injuries were:

Sgt. Alva H. Rich, 29, Ferguson, who suffered bruises of the left arm and head.

Frank Dollar, street address unlisted, whose neck was sprained.

The collision sent 48 persons to the hospital, of whom all but 13 were dismissed after treatment. Other injured passengers, including five of 35 soldiers in a car going from Scott Field to Fort Lewis, Wash., remained on the train and were treated at Fargo, N. D.

The second section of the Northern Pacific Railroad's North Coast Limited, traveling slowly because of poor visibility, plowed into the observation car of the first section, which had made an unscheduled stop at Perham, 170 miles northwest of Minneapolis, to permit a freight train to enter a siding. Two cars and the wheels of the second section's locomotive were derailed. The cars remained upright, but passengers on both trains were thrown from their seats, and many in the dining cars suffered burns.

The list of injured passengers included E. W. Wiseman, Fisk, Mo., and D. F. Schumacher, Piedmont, Mo., who suffered body bruises.

DRIVER IN TWO COLLISIONS FINED $175 ON SIX CHARGES

Paul G. Pyatt, a factory worker, 1400A Tower Grove avenue, was fined $175 today by Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro on his pleas of guilty of six traffic charges, growing out of two collisions Nov. 3. His automobile struck two others and a light standard, resulting in two charges of careless driving, two charges of leaving the scene of an accident, and charges of having no driver's license and property destruction.

After he entered his pleas of guilty, Pyatt was asked if he had a lawyer. He said yes and identified her as Mrs. Sylvia Boonshaft, deputy clerk in the office of the clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction. Judge Catanzaro informed Pyatt that Mrs. Boonshaft was not a lawyer and later asked that she be brought to his chambers, where he conferred with her.

She told the court she had advised Pyatt where to get a driver's license and how to find his case on the docket. Pyatt is 17 years old.

NEIGHBORS AT HEARING, OPPOSE KEOKUK STREET REZONING

The aldermanic committee on zoning and city planning took under advisement a proposal to change the zoning on the south side of Keokuk street after 35 neighboring property owners appeared at a public hearing to oppose the proposed change.

A measure before the Board of Aldermen would change from residential to commercial seven lots on the south side of Keokuk street just east of an alley east of Grand boulevard. The proposal would permit the Chambers Motor Co., on the southeast corner of Keokuk street and Grand boulevard, to construct an addition for garage and storage facilities.

Residents contended that the proposed change would spoil the character of Keokuk street and would depreciate the value of their properties.

Two Negro Legislators Object To Race Line in State Capitol

Protest Because They Cannot Consume Food or Drink at Lunch Stand, Though They Can Buy There.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—Two new Negro members of the Legislature voiced complaints today over the refusal of the operators of the public lunch stand in the Capitol to allow them to consume food and drinks at the stand.

The legislators, Representative William Massingale, St. Louis, and James McKinley Neal, Kansas City, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that they had been informed that they would be permitted to make purchases at the stand, but that they must carry the food away and eat it elsewhere.

This has been the policy of the stand's operators toward Negroes for many years. The stand is on the third floor of the Capitol close to the House and Senate chambers, in space leased from the state, and is privately operated.

"I think that policy is discriminatory and unfair," Neal said. "It is not so much that it is embarrassing and humiliating to us, but it is a reflection upon our state, our government and county, and is undemocratic."

Neal said he hoped the matter could be adjusted amicably, but that unless the policy was changed he might introduce a resolution, or a bill, to force the stand's operators to serve the public without discrimination. Both Massingale and Neal, who are Democrats, complained about the matter to Representative Roy Hamlin, Democratic floor leader in the House.

Hamlin said he talked to the stand managers yesterday and made arrangements for food and drinks to be sent to the Negro legislators when they order it.

Massingale said he and Neal had turned down an offer of the Democratic minority leaders to obtain a separate office for them in the Capitol. He said they would use the same large room as other minority members. He explained that as new members they wanted to be with other Democratic legislators so they could get their advice on legislative matters.

The two introduced today a fair employment practices bill to make it illegal in Missouri to discriminate in the employment of persons because of "race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry.'

The proposed law, which Massingale said was modeled on the New York and California state laws and the Chicago ordinance, would make it unlawful for employers to discriminate in the hiring of persons, or to discharge employes for those reasons.

The proposal also would prohibit labor organizations from excluding or expelling persons from membership because of race, religion or national origin, and from maintaining secondary or segregated memberships.

The act would be under the administration of a state Fair Employment Practices Commission of five members, appointed by the Governor, with power to investigate and hear charges, and to order the hiring or reinstatement of persons discriminated against, with or without back pay. Its decision would be reviewable by an appropriate court, but the review must be completed within five months.

Two other Negro members of the Legislature, Representatives Josiah C. Thomas and J. Clayborne Bush, Republicans, of St. Louis said they had no complaints to make about conditions in the Capitol. They are sharing an office together.

MOTHER IN GREECE RECEIVES MISSOURI MULE FROM SON

The Christmas present which Angelo Kolokithas sent his 80-year-old mother in Corinth Greece last Aug. 15, finally arrived on Jan. 6, he learned yesterday. It was a Missouri mule.

Kolokithas, who operates the AJK Tavern, 1300 North Kingshighway, and his mother could not communicate during the war but as soon as he could get in touch with her he asked her to name the present she desired most.

"When the Germans were here, they took or destroyed all livestock," his mother replied. "We have been unable to plow the fields. A mule would be of great help if I could get it."

Kolokithas obtained the animal and arranged for its delivery through Greek War Relief. Yesterday he was informed in a letter from a niece the mule had arrived on the day of the Feast of St. John, a holy day of the Greek Orthodox Church, and had provided a special cause for rejoicing. The only regret his mother expressed was that her son had not delivered it in person. Kolokithas said he hoped to make a return visit to his native country, which he left in 1910, next July.

GASOLINE TAX BOOST AMENDMENT IN HOUSE

2-Cent Increase Would Be Submitted to Voters if Legislature Approves It.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—A proposed constitutional amendment providing an additional state gasoline tax of two cents a gallon, which would double the present two-cent tax, was introduced in the Missouri House today.

The additional tax, which would produce about $15,000,000 a year, would be divided equally between the cities and the counties.

The proposed amendment, if approved by the Legislature, would be submitted to the voters of the state for adoption in an election. It is sponsored by Representative Milton F. Duvall of Pike county and Representatives from nine other counties.

It calls for automatic apportionment of one half of the proceeds of the additional two-cent tax to all cities and towns of more than 750 population, to be used for maintenance and construction of streets. The apportionment would be in the ratio of the population of a city to the total population of the state.

The other one half of the additional tax proceeds would be apportioned to the counties for construction and maintenance of local county roads. The apportionment to the counties would be under a formula based on the ratio of county road mileage and population to the state totals of county roads and population.

The proposed amendment, the first of several expected proposals on gasoline tax increases, is designed to relieve the plight of cities and towns which have incurred heavy increases in operating expenses, and to meet the demand of rural counties for additional aid in construction of low-type local roads not a part of State Highway system.

No state control over the expenditures is provided in the amendment, other than that appointment of a county highway engineer by the county court would be subject to approval by the State Highway Commission. The commission also would be authorized to withhold apportionment of the funds from any county which failed to maintain local roads built with such funds, in a satisfactory manner.

CHURCHILL GETS DAMAGES AGAINST AUTHOR, PUBLISHER

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP)—A published allegation that Winston Churchill's policies in Greece were influenced by his having been "bailed out of bankruptcy by British bankers with Greek interests" was withdrawn in open court today when it was announced that Churchill's libel suit against the publisher of the book, "Dinner at the White House," had been settled.

Counsel G. O. Slade said the author, Louis Adamic, and the publisher, Harper & Brothers, agreed to pay "substantial damages" to Churchill, and that both admitted the statement was unfounded. Both publisher and author apologized, counsel said. Churchill's suit was based on a footnote in the book.

Jet Plane Flight to Okinawa.

TOKYO, Jan. 15 (AP)—Far East Air Force headquarters today announced four P-80s flew yesterday from the Philippines to Okinawa—about 700 miles—in an hour and 40 minutes in the first long distance Pacific flight by jet planes. The P-80s averaged 430 miles an hour.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS IN DEATH OF MAN FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

A chemical analysis is being made of the stomach contents of Ray S. Landrum Jr., 35 years old, who died yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, it was announced today by Dr. C. C. Kane, St. Clair county coroner. Landrum was found unconscious Monday in his home, 641 North Thirty-first street, East St. Louis, by his parents.

Police said two notes were found in the house. One stated that "it takes courage to do this." The other said he found head pains from which he had been suffering unbearable. Landrum suffered a head injury several years ago.

He was questioned Monday in the beating of Ted Furmanek, 711 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, at Eighth street and Exchange avenue, East St. Louis, last Sunday night. Furmanek was found on the street, apparently after a drunken brawl. He is in St. Mary's Hospital, suffering from a fractured jaw.

Ex-Mayor in Prison 5th in Race.

TAUNTON, Mass., Jan. 15 (AP)—Former Mayor Merrill D. Aldrich, who campaigned for re-election from a Norfolk prison colony cell where he is serving a three months sentence on a morals charge, ran fifth in yesterday's special mayoralty primary.

BARRICADES UP!

...as SBF launches "OPERATION ESCALATOR"

There is lots of activity going on behind the barricades you'll find on our upper floors these days. Workmen are drilling down through the solid masonry of eight floors ... the biggest cavity in town! Soon we'll begin to fill that cavity with the gleaming "bridgework" of our new escalators.

They'll be much wider, much quieter, and much better lighted ... styled in the gleaming modern manner, of aluminum and stainless steel, to float you up quickly to any floor you wish and whisk you back down again in a jiffy.

We'll have escalator service to all selling floors in the new SBF!

SBF... going forward in '47!

SHORTAGES LAID TO EX-SERGEANT OF HOUSE, 3 OTHERS

audit of the office. None is required by law. The current audit was made only as a courtesy to an officer of Congress, to which the GAO is responsible.

Romney, originally from Montana, became sergeant-at-arms in 1931. He had been in the office, however, since 1915, as cashier, and as assistant sergeant-at-arms. He was a candidate for election by the Democratic minority of this session for assistant sergeant-at-arms, but when his name came up at a Democratic caucus the day before the session opened Jan. 3 it was quietly dropped. The action mystified some members who had assumed he would be chosen. Next day came the request of his successor for an audit.

Smithwick served in Congress from 1919 to 1927. Two years ago he was an unsuccessful candidate in Georgia for nomination to the seat held by Representative E. E. Cox. Originally from Florida, Smithwick now lives in Moultrie, Ga.

McKenzie has been dead about seven years, it was said at the office of the sergeant-at-arms. Mahoney has not been connected with the office for seven or eight years and was in the Navy when former associates there last heard of him.

Romney, whose salary was $7500 a year, lives at Washington's swank Wardman Park Hotel. He has been a generous contributor to Democratic campaign funds. Last year he gave $1000 to the primary election campaign organization of Lief Erickson, who won the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat then held by Burton K. Wheeler of Montana. In the November election Erickson lost to his Republican opponent.

At Romney's apartment a woman who said she was his wife told the Post-Dispatch: "Mr. Romney is not talking to any reporters."

Smithwick, reached by telephone at Moultrie, told the Post-Dispatch he was not familiar with details of the General Accounting Office findings.

"There is nothing in the world I can say at this time," he added. "I will have nothing to say until I get all the facts."

"Making any kickbacks on your salary?"

Whitelaw—"No, sir."

Whitelaw told a reporter for the Post-Dispatch yesterday that he interpreted Judge Aronson's question to be as to whether he had an outside job that interfered with his duties as a deputy. He also insisted he served "some papers" but declined to say how many or how often.

Sheriff Has 90 Employes.

Comptroller Nolte pointed out that Sheriff Dougherty had 90 employes, who handle the work for 18 circuit courtrooms, on the city payroll.

The sheriff has six executive assistants, 37 deputies for the 18 courtrooms, and 37 outside deputies for the serving of legal papers. The other employes are watchmen, property clerk, attorney and cashier.

The executive assistants are a chief deputy, chief execution deputy, assistant execution deputy, assistant chief deputy, chief deputy of the jury room, who has three assistants, and a chief deputy of the criminal division.

Section 15673 of the revised statutes of Missouri, 1939, provides that the sheriff of St. Louis shall, with the approval of the Circuit Judges, "appoint as many deputies and assistants as may be necessary to perform the duties of his office."

Whitelaw's Earnings.

Whitelaw, who lives at 5211 Emily avenue, earns $1.08 an hour as a bus driver and his total income from the two jobs is $400 a month. He is a son of Thomas R. Whitelaw, one of the operators of the Hyde Park Club, a gambling house in Venice, and a former associate of Tony Foley in St. Louis county gambling a decade ago.

Sheriff Dougherty formerly held a 2½ per cent interest in the Hyde Park Club but disposed of his interest when the Post-Dispatch revealed his connection with the resort.

Whitelaw, appointed as a deputy when Dougherty took office Jan. 1, 1945, has worked for the bus company since 1941. He is married and has four children.

The deputies who work part time as bartenders are Joseph McCarthy, a courtroom deputy earning $175 a month, and James C. Hunt and Robert Lewis, deputies earning $165 monthly. McCarthy serves as part time bartender at the saloon of Edward (Red) Cox, Grand boulevard and Dodier street. Hunt and Lewis work in downtown St. Louis bars.

However, they serve papers and perform the duties of their offices, the Post-Dispatch learned, doing their bartending after normal working hours.

FAULTY ALTIMETER BLAMED FOR TWA CRASH IN EIRE

ENNIS, Eire, Jan. 15 (AP)—A coroner investigating the Dec. 28 crash of the Trans World Air Line plane Star of Cairo near Shannon airport, which resulted in 13 deaths, heard the captain and co-pilot of the ship blame a faulty altimeter at an inquest here yesterday.

The captain, Herbert Tansey of Falls Church, Va., testifying from a hospital bed where he is recovering from injuries which required the amputation of a leg, said his altimeter read 500 feet when the plane crashed.

His testimony was corroborated by the co-pilot, Clifford Sparrow of Washington, D. C. The plane was coming in for a landing at Shannon airport when the crash occurred.

'Racketeering' Issue Raised In Portal Pay Hearing

under the act, portal-to-portal or otherwise.

Capehart said the potential loss to the Treasury from portal pay suits is so great that tax-cutting must be delayed until some "remedy" is found.

These suits stem from a Supreme Court ruling that workers are entitled to pay for time, whether productive or not, they are required to spend on an employer's premises.

Big Loss "Inevitable."

Capehart testified that if the pending suits are successful, "even in a minor degree," the result "inevitably would be loss of tremendous sums of money in federal revenues due to reduction or elimination of tax liability and the greatly increased direct cost of goods and services to the Federal Government."

"In fact, the potential loss to the Government is so great that I cannot see how we can even consider reducing the tax burden now . . . unless Congress enacts legislation to remedy this situation," he said.

He suggested that the subcommittee call before it the secretaries of commerce, war and the Navy as well as other top Federal officials "to tell how these suits might bear on the fiscal aspects of their departments."

Capehart, an industrialist himself, said "we are facing a national problem which, if not promptly solved, may have disastrous consequences on production and commerce."

Liability "Staggering."

Declaring the pay demands "far transcend anything in the nature of a law suit involving simple financial liability," he continued:

"The amount of alleged liability in each instance is so staggering that not one company in a hundred would be able to meet it."

Noting that, if businesses fail, "the workers themselves suffer," he said, "in fact, it might well be that employes in industry would be the principal sufferers."

One of the big questions about the moves in Congress to outlaw pending suits is whether the proposed legislation is constitutional.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Donnell (Rep.), Missouri, is counting on hearing at least 15 witnesses by next Monday. Donnell declined to announce the full list, saying only that representatives of both labor and management also would be heard.

Wiley's office said the CIO, whose unions have filed most of the pending suits, has asked to testify.

Here are the highlights of Capehart's bill:

1. It would outlaw pending suits and prevent such claims in the future.
2. It would, according to Capehart, "protect" employers who have relied on interpretations by the federal administrator of the Fair Labor Standards Act.
3. Like Wiley's bill, it would define the work week as covering only productive work.

Labor Bill Hearing Jan. 23.

Chairman Taft (Rep.), Ohio, announced today that the Senate Labor Committee will open a "consolidated hearing" on all pending labor proposals Jan. 23. The purpose is to have some legislation ready about March 1, he said. Taft said this program was unanimously agreed on at an organization meeting of the Senate Labor Committee.

He told reporters the hearing would first touch on the comprehensive labor bill offered jointly by Senators Taft, Ball (Rep.), Minnesota, and Smith (Rep.), New Jersey, and a proposal by Senator Murray (Dem.), Montana, and eight other Democrats for an overall study of labor problems by a commission of congressmen and public representatives named by the President.

Then, Taft continued, the hearing will consider "all other bills and resolutions having the object of reducing industrial strife in the United States."

Taft said this would include:

All bills dealing with organization and responsibility of labor unions.

Proposals for labor courts and compulsory arbitration.

Proposals for mediation and conciliation.

Bills amending the National Labor Relations Act.

Taft said the full Labor Committee would conduct hearings "all day" on Tuesdays and Thursdays, when the Senate is not in session, and on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday forenoons, when the Senate is meeting.

Taft said Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach would be invited as an early witness to be followed by other Government officials and labor relations experts. Next will come sponsors of various bills and finally representatives of organized labor and other groups. In order to speed action, Taft said each witness will be required to file written statements in advance.

Taft said there had been no decision whether all the labor proposals would be lumped together in an omnibus bill or put into separate measures. He said he expected to co-ordinate the Senate hearings with those of the House Labor Committee.

Yesterday Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach provided a preview—but only in part—of the testimony he will give whenever the Senate and House labor committees ask for his opinions.

Schwellenbach's Attitude.

At a press conference, Schwellenbach said:

He will co-operate with Congress in any efforts to minimize labor strife.

He won't go up to Capitol Hill just to "say no to everything."

But he most positively will oppose any bill to create a mediation board or any kind of board, either inside or outside of the Labor Department, to replace his U. S. Conciliation Service. He said this service has done a good job despite difficulties.

Max Schwabe's Statement.

Representative Max Schwabe (Rep.), Missouri,, said today he was opposed to any legislation which would provide for compulsory arbitration in labor disputes and that he would "never go so far in legislation as to draft labor into the armed services."

He is a member of the House Labor Committee.

"The over-all solution is the gradual withdrawal of Government from such things as the coal mine control and the restoring of collective bargaining between employer and employes," he said. "I believe in collective bargaining."

$30,000,000 Portal Pay Suit Against Yale & Towne Co.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co. was named defendant today in a portal-to-portal suit filed in United States District Court for recovery of unpaid overtime compensation of $15,000,000 plus an additional equal amount as liquidated damages.

The suit was filed by lodges 539 and 1557 of District 127, International Association of Machinists, described in the complaint as "an unincorporated voluntary organization."

and overtime pay instead of time off. Their present pay is about $20 a week.

The public, which already has missed most of one week's meat ration because of the strike, placed its hope for settlement in the Joint Industrial Council composed of transport workers and employers empowered to reconsider the strikers' demands. The employers insist, however, that the strike end before the new council takes action.

The council was established yesterday by the obviously worried Labor government officials. One Labor member of Parliament, Tom O'Brien, declared at a union meeting last night that the strike might bring the downfall of Labor's first majority government.

"A Labor government cannot last alongside a discredited trade union movement," O'Brien said. "The workers of Britain cannot have a Labor government and repudiate trade union organizations and their leaders at the same time."

The strikers, in effect, are carrying out a rank and file revolt against their union leaders, who are the Labor Government's strongest organized backing, and against the Government's labor negotiating machinery.

On the docksides revolutionary Communist (Trotskyite) party members distributed yellow pamphlets urging "no compromise."

The strike situation was extremely confused. Groups of workers were quitting on short notice at many points. All the walkouts were "unofficial" and many of them almost spontaneous. There was no central clearing house for strike news because of the disjointed nature of the walkouts and the many groups involved.

The truck drivers on Sunday rejected urgent union requests to return to their jobs pending settlement of their demands.

Food Minister John Strachey said 1400 tons of food had been distributed in London in military trucks since Monday. He estimated London's customary weekly ration at 5500 tons.

Potatoes and flour were in exceptionally short supply and fish also was scarce because of a sympathy walkout by market workers. The sympathy strikes also spread to Liverpool's docks yesterday. There were scattered walkouts in 20 other provincial cities.

HAD NO TROUBLE STEALING COATS BUT PANTS WERE TOUGH

Charles Gaiter, Negro, 4478 West Belle place, who is awaiting trial on two charges of petit larceny in connection with the theft of two overcoats from a downtown store, told police today during questioning that his biggest clothing problem was in getting a suit with one—not two—pairs of trousers.

Gaiter was arrested last Saturday at Famous-Barr Co., after a clerk reported that he tried on an overcoat and then attempted to walk out while wearing it and without paying for it. He readily admitted the attempted theft, police said.

He wasn't particularly fond of overcoats, he explained, but some time ago had started to acquire a suit by the same method. Gaiter said it was not too difficult to take a brown double-breasted coat from the basement clothing section of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney. But, he added, although he made repeated visits to the store in an effort to match trousers to the coat, he was watched too closely to complete the suit.

MACHINISTS' UNION OFFICER INDICTED IN $1500 SHORTAGE

An indictment charging Orville Lammers, an assistant business agent for District 9 of the International Association of Machinists, with embezzlement by agent in the shortage of union funds was voted by the Circuit Court grand jury yesterday.

Sidney Pratte, one of the trustees of the union, told a Post-Dispatch reporter a recent audit disclosed a shortage of more than $1500 in union dues and initiation fees.

Lammers was arrested Aug. 3 after he had admitted to union officers he had lost the money in high-stake poker games in East St. Louis. He lives on Castle lane, in the Clinton-Peabody housing group.

BUILDER TOOK $40,000 PROFIT AT ST. LOUIS U. JOB

Hintz Says University Refused Cost-Plus Contract But Work Was Done On That Basis.

St. Louis University officers refused to sign a cost-plus contract with the American Construction Co. for erection of a new classroom building, but the firm operated on that basis without a contract and took $40,000 to $50,000 in profits, Robert S. Hintz, president and treasurer, told the Post-Dispatch today.

"Before we started the job," Hintz related, "I told Father Holloran (the Very Rev. Patrick J. Holloran, S.J., university president) that it had to be a cost-plus job and that we had to be paid every week. That was done. The only way was to make it a cost-plus job.

"It was cost-plus on a 10 and 10 basis. By that we mean 10 per cent for profit and 10 per cent for overhead. We told Father Holloran that would be the arrangement but he never signed the agreement; he always put us off.

"We drew money for ourselves as we went along. There was so much dissatisfaction with the job that we wouldn't think of asking for the rest of the money that they still owe us.' It's quite a bit of money.

Profit Figure.

"We can't arrive at the actual profit figure because Father Holloran doesn't want to tell us how much the building actually cost. It's a good $350,000. To set our profit at $30,000 is setting it a little low.

"The university paid us $258,000 for wages, insurance, part of our profit and for things that we bought, like material. We figure our profit this way: You take 10 per cent of the actual cost of the building. Add that to the cost. Then take 10 per cent of that total for overhead. Add it to the first 10 per cent and that gives you your profit and overhead. So the total actually amounts to a little more than 20 per cent.

"Between $40,000 and $50,000 is what we made in profits.

The university "should have known that we were taking our money out of what they were paying," Hintz continued. "No builder ever worked for three months without getting any money."

Insurance Charges.

Earlier Hintz had said his firm charged the university $30,000 for insurance costs and inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed that the actual cost was $6500. Asked again about the insurance cost, Hintz said: "That was all a mistake. Our insurance, social security and unemployment insurance ran around $15,000. We charged the university only what we spent and, of course, our profit—part of our profit."

He conceded, "There might have been clerical errors in our books; you're bound to make a few little mistakes." Regarding talk of padded payrolls, he said he offered to pay the Police Department "$2 a head" to get an affidavit from each of his employes regarding his pay. "I would pay the police to check each man," he asserted.

As to reports of workmen sleeping on the job, Hintz said: "If many men slept on the job, we couldn't have done so much work. We fired 10 or 15 men every week for various reasons, but not for sleeping. I worked 'em pretty hard. I feel that a man who makes that kind of money should work for it."

'Boys With Bad Reputations.'

At the outset of the conversation, Hintz insisted "there was nothing wrong down there." "We might have had some boys with bad reputations," he continued, "but we get our men from the union halls. We have nothing to do with that. Furthermore, if a man has a police record, he isn't doing any harm if he works.

"The building costs ran up higher than our expectation. At first it was to be a small building. Later a basement and then a second floor were added. But if we were doing so badly, how does it happen that only three weeks before we were stopped, the university offered us three more jobs?

"The university probably made a mistake in not having a contract and in spending so much on the job. We bought some materials that still should be charged to the university, like nails and salamanders and a load of sand."

Referring to his partners, Steve Ryan and David M. (Chippy) Robinson, Egan gangsters, Hintz said: "With those two boys in it, the police naturally were suspicious. But the boys are trying to behave. If Ryan and Robinson had not been in there, I don't believe the case ever would have gone to the grand jury."

Hintz pointed out that, although he had been a house-wrecker immediately before geting the classroom building job, he had constructed homes years ago.

The grand jury will meet again Thursday to continue its investigation of the American Construction Co. Circuit Attorney James W. Griffin emphasized that the investigation had not been "halted" and that the jury on Thursday will consider what additional witnesses to call.

Yesterday the jury heard testimony by Alfred M. Blecker, partner in the accounting firm of Jeff K. Stone & Co., which has made an audit of the construction firm's books, and Detective Sgt. John A. Sieloff, who is in charge of the police inquiry into racketeering in the construction business.

TWO ARE EXECUTED IN SPAIN AS PLOTTERS AGAINST FRANCO

MADRID, Jan. 15 (AP)—A firing squad executed two men, convicted of plotting a military rebellion against the government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, at Carabanchel prison yesterday.

They were Jose Antonio Llerandi, propaganda secretary of the underground "Democratic Alliance," and Jose Isasa Olaizola, who testified he came from Argentina to head a guerrilla army. A communique charged that Isasa and Llerndi were leaders of a gang of gunmen which committed more than 10 murders.

Isasa, 36 years old, was a former jai alia champion of the Basque provinces. Llerandi, 30, was a native of Cuba. The mothers of both men and both the Cuban and Argentine embassies, as well as the Papal Nuncio, had interceded with Generalissimo Franco for clemency.

MOTIONS TO REHEAR FIRE RISK CASE FILED

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—Motions for rehearing of the case in which the Missouri Supreme Court fined 122 stock fire insurance companies $2,090,000 for participation in the bribery which led to the notorious O'Malley fire insurance rate compromise in 1935, were filed late yesterday by both the Attorney General's department and the companies.

The court last Dec. 30, in an ouster suit filed by former Attorney General Roy McKittrick, upheld charges by the state that the companies participated in the $460,000 payment which led to the rate compromise signed by Former State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmett O'Malley.

The court granted Attorney General J. E. Taylor and counsel for the companies 20 days in which to file suggestions in support of their respective motions for rehearing. Each side was granted an additional 15 days to file replies after the suggestions are submitted.

The company motion, filed by Fred L. Williams of St. Louis and Homer H. Berger of Kansas City, seeks a rehearing only on the finding that the companies had a part in the payments by an agent of the companies to the late Boss T. J. Pendergast of Kansas City; his political henchman, O'Malley; and A. L. McCormack, St. Louis insurance executive, who was "go-between" in the deal.

INDICTMENT CHARGES SECOND DEGREE MURDER IN KILLING

An indictment charging Charles Clarence Whitney with second-degree murder in the fatal shooting last Oct. 26 of Billie Joe Robinson outside the Jefferson Hotel was returned yesterday by the Circuit Court grand jury.

Whitney, 25 years old, who gave his address at the time as 4339 Olive street, said he shot Robinson in an automobile near the Locust street entrance to the hotel because of Robinson's attentions to Mrs. Whitney. Robinson, 19 years old, lived at 3916 Westminster place.

WOLL CHARGES SABOTAGING OF TRADE PACT AIMS

AFL Officer Makes Assertion at Hearing—Twentieth Century Fund Supports Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Matthew Woll, an AFL vice president, asserted today the expressed aims of the Administration's reciprocal trade program have been "sabotaged either consciously or otherwise."

Woll, who also is president of America's Wage Earner Conference, spoke at final sessions of a hearing on proposed new trade pacts with 18 foreign nations. The hearing was arranged by the Committee for Reciprocity Information, set up by executive order to gather information for the tariff negotiators.

Associates told a reporter Woll spoke only for the Wage Earners' Conference and not for the AFL.

Woll said the Wage Earners' Conference challenged any contention that trade treaties and tariff rates established under the program "have either enlarged the employment opportunities or protected the job opportunities of America's industrial workers." He asserted that had been the intent of Congress in granting the State Department authority to enter rade treaties with foreign countries."

Retort by Chairman.

At one point Woll touched off a brief flurry with an assertion that American labor had been "ignored" when the reciprocity committee was set up to conduct the hearing.

"We note that your committee has either overlooked or ignored the fact that the Congress specified that this legislation (the reciprocal trade program) was 'to protect American labor,'" Woll told the committee.

Lynn R. Edminster, committee chairman, retorted that "it is a misconception to suggest that interests of labor are not being fully considered." Edminster, vice chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, said the committee had consulted numerous labor representatives and officials of the Labor Department.

In Accord With Policy.

The proposed trade negotiations drew support from the Twentieth Century Fund. The fund's committee on foreign economic relations expressed accord with administration foreign economic policy and recommended "a substantial modification in our tariff structure.

In a report prepared for the hearing, the committee called rehabilitation of devastated countries the first prerequisite to a many-nation trade system.

It said international bank funds should be used to "help maintain international conditions favorable to a high and stable level of employment after rehabilitation is completed." It added that resources of the Import-Export Bank should be used for rehabilitation on an "adequate and realistic basis."

"Trade is and must be mutual," the report continued. "It is, and must be two-sided. Our customers must be permitted to pay us for what we are ready and anxious to sell. . . . Larger and more varied imports must somehow be encouraged."

The Twentieth Century Fund describes itself as an endowed foundation for nonpartisan research and public education on economics questions.

PLAN TO CO-ORDINATE FLOOD RELIEF GROUPS IS DISCUSSED

Plans to co-ordinate the services of the American Red Cross, Army Engineers and Coast Guard, in this area were disclosed yesterday at a Joint Flood Relief Disaster Conference held by representatives of the three groups in Room 216 of the Central Post Office Building, Eighth and Olive streets.

Commodore Beckwith Jordan, District Commander of the Second Coast Guard District who called the meeting to order, urged complete dissemination of information on weather and flood conditions by each of the agencies.

If advance information on the likelihood of floods is received in time, he said, it would be possible before floods occur to move task forces to points where they would be needed.

Full co-operation of the Army Engineers was pledged by Col. Clark Kittrell, division engineer of the Upper Mississippi Valley Division. Red Cross plans for disaster relief in case of floods or other emergencies were outlined by Robert C. Edson, director of disaster service for the midwestern area of the American Red Cross.

DISTRIBUTION OF TESTAMENTS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS STOPPED

DAVENPORT, Ia., Jan. 15 (AP)—Distribution of New Testaments to public school pupils was halted by the Board of Education yesterday after a Jewish rabbi had protested against the practice.

The distribution was being made by the local Gideon Society.

Rabbi Abram V. Goodman told the board's education committee Monday night that the distribution of sectarian literature violated the historic separation of church and state.

Saying that his congregation authorized the protest, he added that such distribution might establish a precedent that would "open the door to fantastic operations in the name of religion."

INDIANAPOLIS POLICE ACCUSED OF TAKING GAMBLERS' BRIBES

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 15 (INS)—A charge that 26 officers accepted bribes from gamblers touched off an investigation of the Indianapolis Police Department yesterday.

Patrolman Jacque W. Durham said that a gambling syndicate operating on Indiana avenue paid more than $30,000 a year for "protection."

Durham reported to superior officers that shortly after he made the charges, he received a "threatening" telephone call. The call warned him, Durham said, not to mention the name of a certain captain "if he knew what was good for him."

VETERANS FORM JOINT COUNCIL ON HOUSING HERE

Agencies' Group to Work For Building of Low-Cost Units and to Aid Homeless Families.

A joint Veterans' Housing Council to work for construction of low-cost housing for veterans and to aid homeless veterans was formed last night, including representatives of American Veterans of World War II and of the American Veterans' Committee, it was announced today by Alex Efthim, chairman of the Greater St. Louis Area AVC Council.

All veterans' groups in the St. Louis area will be asked to send representatives to the Council, Efthim said. The group was organied at a meeting of the Tom Hyer AMVETS post at New Lyons Hall, 3137 South Jefferson avenue.

P. Donald Fischer, a member of the post, is chairman. Other members are Gardner Gessel, William Kraus, Al Barton and Efthim.

Efthim said the council will emphasize the need for rental housing. At the meeting, Efthim said that more than 20,000 married veterans in the St. Louis area are living crowded up in substandard housing.

He urged passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill by Congress. This measure was indorsed in a resolution passed at the meeting.

Also discussed was the possibility of sponsoring a city ordinance prohibiting landlord discrimination against families with children. In other cties, Efthim said, commercial construction is limited by municipal ordinance.

The new Veterans' Housing Council plans to hold its first meeting tomorrow night at Gessel's home, 3966 Hartford street, Efthim said.

$5426 SPENT BY BRIGGS, DEFEATED IN SENATE RACE

A total of $5426 was spent by Frank Briggs, unsuccessful Democratic to succeed himself as United States Senator, during his campaign last summer and fall, it was reported in a statement filed in the Recorder of Deeds office at St. Louis County Courthouse, Clayton, today. Contributions made to Briggs also were listed at $5426.

Receipts included $500 each from John Griffin, Mrs. A. A. Busch, August A. Busch Jr., H. Sam Priest, and Willard Cox and $300 from the Missouri Political Action Committee. Expenditures included $1047 for radio, newspaper and direct mail advertising; $1026 for sample ballots and $1090 for publicity.

Briggs was defeated by Republican nominee, James P. Kem.

GEN. SULTAN DIES; WAS COMMANDER IN BURMA

Successor to Stilwell in Far East Theater Had Been Ill Several Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, commander of American forces in Burma and India in the war, died last night at Walter Reed Hospital here. He was 61 years old.

He had been inspector general of the Army since he returned to the United States in 1945.

The War Department announced that death resulted from an acute heart condition. He had been ill for several weeks. Burial will be at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Gen. Sultan took over command in Burma and India when Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's old China-Burma-India theater was split up, holding the assignment from October 1944 to June 1945.

Gen. Sultan established and operated land, river, pipe and air communications credited with greatly increasing the flow of supplies to China.

Gen. George C. Marshall, then Chief of Staff, awarded him the Distinguished Service Medal for that service, remarking that it was the first time the decoration ever had been bestowed three times on an officer of the Army.

An engineer officer through most of his 40 years of Army service, Gen. Sultan surveyed the route for a canal across Nicaragua from 1921 to 1931. He was a strong advocate of that project, arguing that it was feasible and "better than adding a fourth series of locks at Panama, because it is 10 times harder to stage a surprise attack against two canals than against one." He helped build most of the defenses at Corregidor in 1916.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Florence Sultan; two daughters, Mrs. Marshall R. Gray, Kelly Field, Tex., and Mrs. Perry B. Hackett, Brighton, Mass.; and a sister, Mrs. Henry M. Faser, Oxford, Miss.

FINED FOR NOT HAVING LICENSE TO RUN HOTEL

Frank Wilson, Operator of Poro, Assessed $300—Plans Appeal on Case.

Frank B. Wilson, Negro, operator of the Poro Hotel, 4300 St. Ferdinand avenue, was fined $300 today by Police Judge George J. Grellner on charges of operating the hotel without a license. Wilson and his attorney, Cletus Rudolph, who contended the hotel was operated by Wilson's wife and son, announced the fine would be appealed.

Wilson was arrested Dec. 26, and charged with continuing to operate the hotel after the permit was revoked Dec. 17 by the Board of Public Service for failure to obey fire control regulations. Martin M. Schenck, an inspector for the Fire Prevention Bureau, testified today that the hazards which had been found on earlier inspections had now been corrected.

Police testified that they had not seen Wilson registering guests or accepting money for rent. Wilson said no hotel services had been furnished since the revocation of the license, except that heat and electric services were continued.

He said guests had left rent money at the desk in envelopes, which are being retained until after the present difficulty is settled. Wilson described himself as only the bookkeeper at the place. The hotel has 80 rooms. Two hundred guests are registered.

The case originally had been set for trial last Wednesday, but at that time prosecuting witnesses failed to appear. Schenck had not been notified of the arrest or date of trial. Police who made the arrest also were not in court.

GEN. W. E. KEPNER TO SPEAK

Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, commanding general of the Technical Division of the Air Training Command at Scott Field, will address members of the St. Louis chapter of the Air Reserve Association tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Soldiers' Memorial.

Gen. Kepner, who formerly commanded the Eighth Army Air Force in England, will discuss the Bikini atom bomb tests and will show moving pictures made at the Pacific atoll when the bomb was exploded. The association is composed of former members of the Army Air Forces.

COUNTY PLAN BOARD SEEKS COURT TEST

Action to Enforce Building Permit Requirement Sought by Imboden.

Court action to uphold authority of the St. Louis County Planning Commission will be sought in a move to enforce the commission's requirement of building permits for construction work, it was announced today by George Imboden, executive secretary and enforcement officer of the planning body.

He said County Counselor Erwin Vetter will be requested to prosecute Charles H. Bopp, who lives on Manchester road in Ballwin, for building an addition to his garage before obtaining a permit. Bopp some time ago applied to the commission for a permit to enlarge his garage and for a change in the zoning of his area from residential to light commercial.

The requests were still pending when the garage addition was completed, Imboden asserted. The commission last night approved the zoning change Bopp had sought. It also recommended:

A zoning change which would allow Mrs. Fred R. Clark to build several hundred homes on tracts of 20,000 square feet along Manchester road just east of the town of Manchester, in an area previously zoned for homes on one-acre tracts.

Rezoning of the old Chambers Park subdivision along Chambers road at Imperial avenue to permit construction of homes on tracts of 50-foot instead of 160-foot fronts.

Zanesville Paper Strike Ends.

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 15 (AP)—A strike of printers which forced suspension of the morning Times Recorder for two days and the evening Signal for one ended today with signing of a new contract for higher wages. The new scale gives printers $65.87 for 38¾ hours of day work weekly, as compared with the $56.19 they were receiving, and $70.87 for 37½ hours of night work, against $59.29 for 38¾ hours.

CANADA AGREES TO JUNKING PART OF CANOL PROJECT

Byrnes Announces Pact by Which U.S. Can Sell, Move or Abandon Refinery and Pipeline.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed today that Canada has agreed to let the United States junk and sell piecemeal part of a $133,000,000 wartime white elephant—the Canol oil refinery and pipe line project.

Under an agreement reached last Friday, the United States may sell all or part of Canol Project No. 1 to the Canadian government or other buyers, remove what it can't sell, or merely abandon it.

The agreement, Byrnes said in a report to Congress, covers a pipeline running from Norman Wells, Northwest Territory, to White Horse, Yukon Territory, a refinery at White Horse, and related facilities.

It does not cover Canol Projects No. 2, 3 and 4—systems set up to distribute the refinery's finished products—because the Army has not declared these surplus.

Byrnes reported that an investigation disclosed it is doubtful that "any governmental or private agency will desire to acquire the pipeline and refinery for use in peace."

The Canol project was intended by the joint chiefs of staffs to develop an oil field in Northern Canada to supply fuel for an Alaskan aerial offensive against Japan. The offensive never materialized.

The Senate war investigating committee denounced the enterprise in a report last fall as a "flaming waste." The committee said the action of Adm. Ernest J. King and Gen. Brehon Somervell of the joint staff in persisting with the project was a "blot on the record of two otherwise able officers."

King later protested that the report imputed to him personally decisions on Canol which were reached by the chiefs of staff as a group.

Byrnes's report was submitted in accordance with a provision of the surplus property act requiring submission to Congress of plans for disposing of pipelines and other petroleum transport facilities costing in excess of $5,000,000.

Purchase will be by sealed bids which will be opened March 20.

NOLTE'S OFFICE TURNS DOWN DEPUTY CONSTABLES PAYROLL

A payroll for deputy constables for the first two weeks of January was rejected yesterday by Comptroller Louis Nolte's office on the ground that no provision had been made by the Board of Aldermen for paying the deputies.

Salaries of $3000 annually are provided for the deputies in a bill now pending before the Board of Aldermen, but the bill has not been enacted because the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has refused to approve salaries in excess of $2100 for the work. The Estimate Board contends that the salaries should not exceed those of deputy sheriffs, who are paid $165 to $175 monthly.

Chief Constable Edward M. Radloff submitted a payroll asking for $175 monthly for 16 deputies who have been appointed, but this was turned down because there is at present no authority for it, Deputy Comptroller Ray C. Schroeder said.

NEW RECRUITING CAMPAIGN IS STARTED BY COAST GUARD

Announcement of a new recruiting drive by the United States Coast Guard was made today in Washington by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder. Snyder said former coast guardsmen were particularly desired.

The Coast Guard is especially in need of men for such ratings as radiomen, electrician's mates, electronics technician's mates, motor machinist mates, and all aviation ratings, Snyder said. Because of the need of additional men, he added, some ships have been laid up and some stations closed.

Present duties of the Coast Guard include maintenance of the search and rescue service, weather patrol, ice patrol, aids to navigation and merchant marine hearings.

MISSOURI HOUSE FOR OPEN VOTING BY COMMITTEES

Rule Adopted in Sharp Contrast With the Senate's Stand for Complete Secrecy.

By CURTIS A. BETTS
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15 — The Rules Committee of the House of Representatives late yesterday approved new rules, which, as in the 1945 House Rules, provide that every report of a committee shall show the vote in committee by ayes and noes.

This was in sharp contrast to the Senate action earlier yesterday affirming the Senate stand for complete secrecy surrounding the deliberations and votes on legislation in committees. The Senate, in taking the stand, rejected the amendment by Senator C. R. Hawkins of Brumley to abolish the committee secrecy rule.

The Senate decided the question by a voice vote, which in effect is a secret vote, there being no record to disclose whether a Senator voted for secrecy or voted for out-in-the-open legislation.

There was no party division in the Senate, the Democratic minority leadership joining with the Republican majority leadership in keeping the age-old rule under which lobbyists have controlled legislation and under which Senators, politically afraid to take an open stand on legislation, often have taken one position publicly and the opposite position in the secrecy of the committee.

Senator Hawkins branded the rule as "hypocritical, a sham and a fraud" in the debate yesterday.

Under the rules as adopted the committee procedure when a bill is referred to it is: A public hearing, at which proponents and opponents present arguments, is held, there being several public hearings on some bills of importance and wide public interest.

The committee then discusses the bill in secret session, a guard being placed at the door of the committee room to make certain of secrecy. The committee discusses the bill and frequently approves amendments to it. It then votes either to report the bill with a recommendation that it be passed or with the recommendation that it be not passed. A do-not-pass recommendation kills the bill. There is no public record as to how the committee members voted.

When a bill is taken up on the floor the vote is public and a matter of record, but meritorious legislation can be, and often has been killed secretly in committee.

CITY AUTO CHARGES AGAINST STEVE RYAN ARE DISMISSED

Charges against Steve Ryan, Egan gangster, arrested for having no city driver's license and no city auto license sticker, were dismissed by Police Judge George J. Grellner yesterday, on payment of $3 costs. Still pending in the Court of Criminal Correction are charges of having no state driver's license and no state automobile license.

Ryan was not in Police Court when the traffic cases were called. He was represented by Alvin F. Hackman, an attorney and Republican City Committeeman of the Seventeenth Ward. Hackman produced a receipt for a driver's license purchased by Ryan after his arrest Jan. 7.

Ryan and his old associate, David M. (Chippy) Robinson, partners in the American Construction Co., now under investigation by the grand jury, were arrested at Grand boulevard and Hebert street in a 1946 Buick bearing a Kentucky state license. Ryan said he bought the automobile in Louisville Oct. 8. Robinson was booked suspected of grand larceny and released on bond.

BELLEVILLE MINE ABANDONED

The last coal mine to be operated within the Belleville city limits has been abandoned, it was announced today. The mine, at 1245 Lebanon avenue, is owned by the Tower Grove Coal Co.

C. A. Pfeiffer, secretary of the firm, said equipment is being salvaged at the present time. The mine which employed 26 persons, has not been in operation since last April. Other coal mines within the city were abandoned many years ago.

Democrat Succeeds Republican.

MAYON VOLCANO SPEWS SMOKE AND ASHES 20,000 FEET

Fear Expressed That Mountain May Blow Up at Any Moment.

MANILA, Jan. 15 (AP)—Mayon volcano erupted violently again today. A United States Navy pilot, flying a mile away, said smoke and ashes rose 20,000 feet into the southern Luzon skies.

Mayon's peak was almost obscured by dense smoke rising from lava flowing down the mountain's slopes in scores of molten streams.

The pilot's report said there was no immediate danger from the lava, the source of which is a small hole in the side of the summit. Fears that the crater-less volcano may blow up at any moment were expressed by a Manila Evening News correspondent.

Unconfirmed press reports said inhabitants of Libog, a town of 5000, had been evacuated. The Evening News said three villagers were killed by lava fumes and more than 6000 Filipinos on southern Luzon were fleeing to evacuation centers.

Camalig, a town of 22,000 at the foot of the mountain; Daraga, eight miles southeast of the summit, and Libog were reported blanketed by sulphurous smoke and virtually deserted.

A Manila Times correspondent said 200 lepers at the Legaspi leprosarium had begged authorities for permission to be removed, and that more than 20 already had escaped.

CPA STOP ORDER ON HOTEL'S NEW COCKTAIL LOUNGE

The Broadview Hotel, Fourth street and Broadway, in East St. Louis, has been ordered to stop construction of a cocktail lounge, it was announced by Perry N. Moore, regional compliance director for the Civilian Production Administration here, today.

Moore said the hotel obtained authorization to improve its dining room at a cost of $9500. Instead, he said, the hotel proceeded to construct a cocktail lounge at a cost of "several times that amount" at a location across the hotel lobby from the dining room.

A hearing on the case was held early in December, he said, and the order issued from the CPA Washington office subsequently. Meanwhile, however, Moore said the cocktail lounge is about 80 per cent completed. Harry S. Kramer Jr., one of the partners in the hotel business, said he intended to appeal to the chief compliance commissioner of the CPA at Washington.

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD — NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND ST LOUIS RAILWAY

Laclede Completes Testimony, Suggesting Probability of Lower Rates, Better Service.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—Opponents of the proposed acquisition of St. Louis County Gas Co. by Laclede Gas Light Co. will have an opportunity to be heard on Feb. 3 when the hearing on the merger before the Missouri Public Service Commission will be resumed.

Laclede, whose application for the consolidation is pending before the commission, completed its case yesterday with testimony by its principal officers. They said better service and lower rates through joint operating economies probably would be in store for customers of both present companies.

L. W. Childress, president of Laclede, told the commission the company could not make definite commitments on the future rates, as they were subject to control by the commission. He said county gas rates were lower than rates in the city on bills less than $5.25 a month. Laclede rates in the city were lower than the County Gas Co. rates, he said, on bills more than $5.25 a month.

He said Laclede hoped to begin the proposed change-over from mixed gas to straight natural gas service by the end of 1948.

W. C. Ross, chief accountant for the commission, questioned Laclede witnesses at some length concerning the proposed plan of financing the purchase of St. Louis County Gas and the resulting lack of balance between the amount of funded debt, or borrowed money, and the amount of company stock, representing the investment or equity of the owners.

He pointed out the proposed plan would result in Laclede having a financial structure made up of 66.7 per cent borrowed money and 33.3 per cent in stock or equity holdings. Laclede witnesses testified this plan called for more borrowed funds than originally proposed because of stock market conditions. Childress said Laclede planned to issue additional stock later to retire some of the funded debt.

Laclede's plan, if approved, would give it a financial structure, after the consolidation, of $9,734,489, par value, in common stock; $25,500,000 in 3½ per cent first mortgage bonds, and $6,500,000 in 3½ per cent installment notes.

FIRST BODIES OF SERVICE MEN FROM ABROAD DUE IN AUGUST

The first bodies of American service men to be returned to this country from overseas war areas will arrive in August, Lt. Col. Carl R. Yost of the American Graves Registration Service, told members of the Eleventh District, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night.

Col. Yost, who is director of the distribution center at Kansas City, Mo., spoke at a meeting at Soldiers' Memorial He said the project of returning the bodies of servicemen to the United States for burial should be completed in 18 months. He pointed out that next of kin would be notified by telegram when the bodies arrive in New York or San Francisco.

Col. Yost said the bodies of 1530 of the 1636 St. Louis servicemen who died in World War II have been recovered. Of St. Louis county residents, bodies of 408 of the 453 who died will be returned.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN LOT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (UP)—The nude, mutilated body of a young woman, cut in two at the waist, was found in a vacant lot today. Police said it apparently was the body of a girl 18 to 20 years of age and she had been dead only a short time.

Homicide detectives said the girl apparently was killed sometime last night. A passing motorist noticed the body. He notified a woman in nearby house who telephoned police.

Here's another winter driving tip from your Standard Oil Dealer

A flick of the starter . . . and she starts! What a grand and g-lorious feeling! So remember, your Standard Oil Dealer has a way to help a lot in cold weather starting.

Isn't this the tip you want-to stop your winter starting troubles?

Here's how to choose the right gasoline to help your car "get hot" quick: Choose on the basis of cold-weather starting and warm-up qualities. The actual facts show Standard White Crown Gasoline is tops for both these winter "musts" . . . a real champ among premium brands.

Don't make that "all gasolines are alike" mistake . . . especially in winter. The differences between them can mean a lot to your winter driving.

Bills Miss Out Over Long Island, 46-44, by Missing Too Many Shots

Quick Foul Rules Also Hurt; Play In Capital

By Robert Morrison

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

WASHINGTON Jan. 15 - Another experience with Eastern basketball officiating today awaited the St. Louis University Billikens whose New York debut was marked by their failure to completely adapt themselves to that type of rule-calling.

The quicker calling of fouls on slighter contact—something the Bills' Coach, John Flanigan, had anticipated and tried to prepare his men for—figured in St. Louis's 46-44 defeat by Long Island University before 18,465 persons last night at Madison Square Garden.

Tonight, in the other game of the trip, the Bills will encounter the same sort of thing when they meet Georgetown, a seven-victory club in ten games.

Bills Can Blame Themselves.

Flanigan had no criticism of the officials working the Long Island game. They worked in the eastern style and it was up to the Bills to gear themselves to the different conditions. Their stride was undoubtedly cut down by the steady succession of penalties they incurred, but their shot inaccuracy hurt them more.

The Billikens needed 73 shots to get 15 goals. Long Island, fast at times and feeding their 6-foot 6-inch high scorer, Dick Holub, required only 58 shots for 15 field goals.

Disappointed that their first visit to the Garden failed to produce a victory and cost them their seventh defeat in 14 games, the Billikens could take the consolation that their reputation, gained by a recent triumph over the Oklahoma Aggies, spurred a late rush of ticket buying that packed the house.

The Old Fight Was There.

And also, if cheers of encouragement from the New York crowd meant anything, the Billikens pleased their audience with repeated, if unsuccessful, drives to come from behind.

In the closing moments the Bills furnished all the thrills that might be expected of basketball — and they are many—by closing the gap from 12 to two points.

Only seconds remained in the game when, trailing by three points, Hank Raymonds of St. Louis was fouled by Art Tropin. Raymonds, taking a deep breath and showing the pressure by his grim and sweating features, sank the first penalty shot awarded. That made it 46-44 and Raymonds, taking the second shot, intentionally dropped it short of the rim so his mates could jump for a tip-in and a tie score. The strategy failed, however, and tall Long Island, like St. Louis a conqueror of the Aggies, had beaten the team that beat the Aggies.

Two Bills Fouled Out, and . . .

"I don't think," remarked Flanigan afterward, returning to the topic of officiating, "that we have had anybody foul out of any game this season."

Against the Blackbirds both Bob Schmidt and D. C. Wilcutt were ejected on five personals and Macauley, running up his own personal foul count to four, remained out of action for most of the first 10 minutes of the second half. Flanigan was saving him for the final drive and taking no chances on his fouling a fifth time until absolutely necessary.

Ed returned then and scored seven of his total of 15 points. He was outdone a bit by Holub in the scoring department as that leading scorer of all metropolitan teams counted 18 points.

Most of the Blackbirds were aggressive and at times their offensive speed made the Bills look bad.

At first coldly received by the customers, one of whom called on Long Island U. to "Come on, let's get the score up in the big numbers," the Bills cut down a 12-point Long Island lead in the first half to seven points at the intermission, 25-18.

Cheers Finally Go to "St. Looie."

St. Louis's gameness inspired most of the cheers during the rest of the game, and the same, sad, aforementioned voice at the court side changed its tune to "Come on, St. Looie!" St. Looie did, by holding the Blackbirds field goalless in the last five minutes of the game while the Bills made their bid.

With St. Louis making only seven of 41 shots in the first half —a great many of them missing badly—the 18-year-old string bean Macauley was still his usual efficient self. His field goal hitting was 50 per cent.

Macauley's replacement, John Cordia, played a fine game against Holub. For most of the Bills it was an uphill job and they missed 15 of 29 free throw opportunities, 11 of those in the second half. And in all they missed just two more charity shots than did the Blackbirds. That was the final difference and that specific difference, by the way, was predicted in at least one of the New York newspapers.

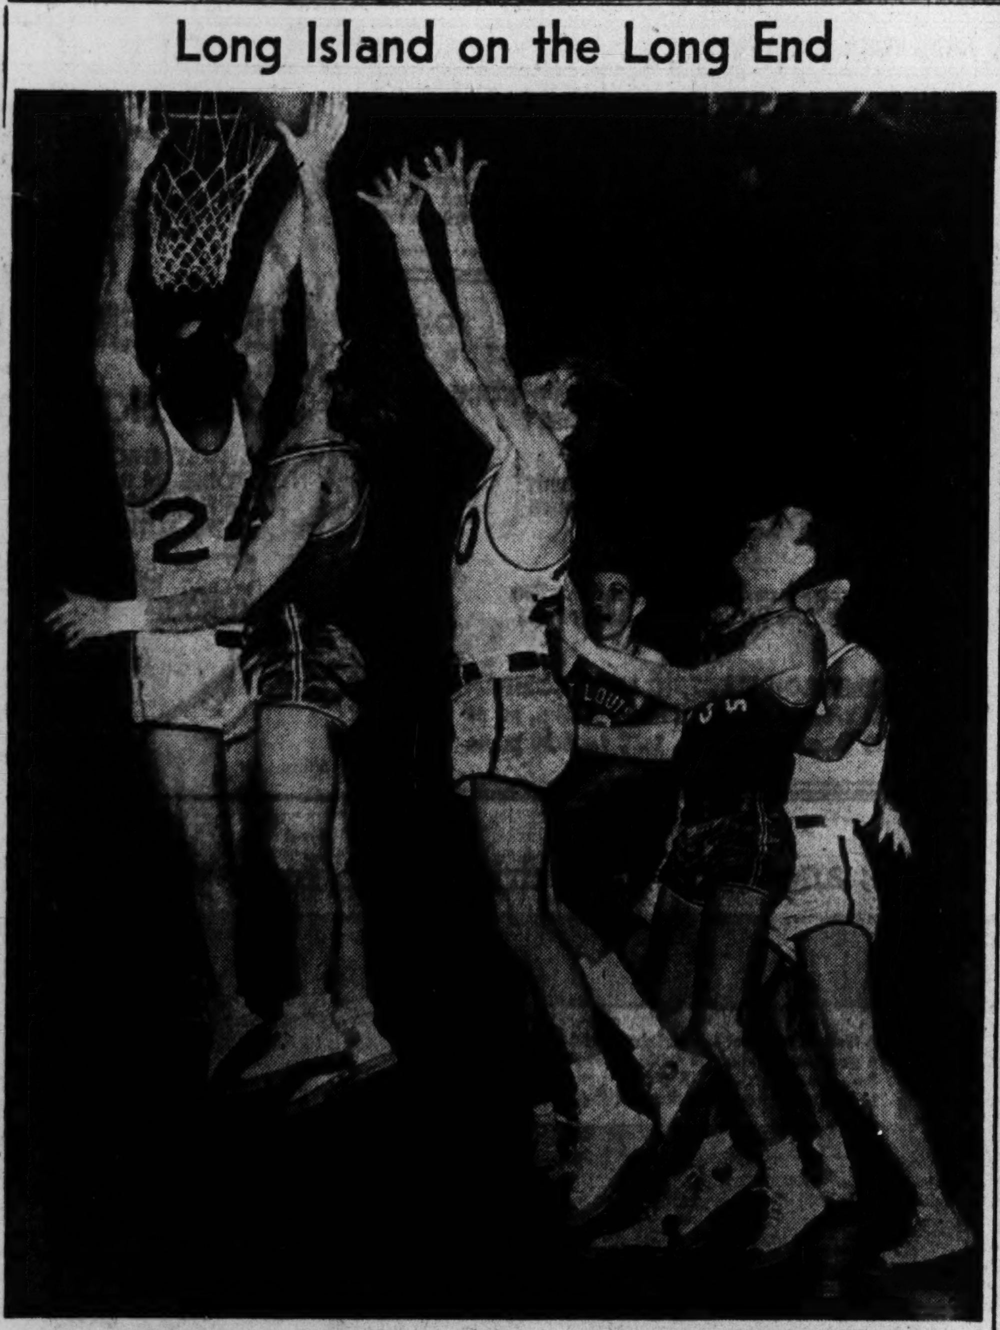
Long Island on the Long End



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Ouimet, Boy Wonder of Golf In 1913, Recalls Big Triumph

By W. J. McGoogan

Francis Ouimet, the "boy wonder" of golf in 1913 when he won the National Open tournament at the age of 20 in a playoff with the great English professionals, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, retains his enthusiasm for the game, although he has quit competitive play since 1938.

Here, in his capacity as vice president of the United States Golf Association, to aid in preparing the way for the National Open event which is to be held at the St. Louis Country Club, June 12-14, Ouimet modestly recalled the greatest golf triumph of his life.

Now 54 years of age, graying and ruddy of countenance, the Boston broker said that it was in the cards for some young American to win the way he did at Brookline Country Club.

Americans Take Over.

"The trend had set in by 1909, when the first American-born professional won the event," he said. "You'll have to remember that before then virtually all of the golf professionals who had won our championships were foreign-born, but by the time I came along there had been a big change and our golfers had made strides.

"It was a funny thing for me to win the Open. I entered it largely for the experience. I thought that some day I might win the Amateur but the Open championship was beyond my fondest dreams.

"And then when I found myself in a play-off with Vardon and Ray, I shook.

"Really," he continued, "If I had as much sense then as I think I have now, I wouldn't have played.

"But anyway, the play-off was a very tense affair. We played in a steady drizzle of rain. In fact, it rained all week. The three of us were even at the end of nine holes and I was only one stroke up on Vardon when we stood on the 17th tee. Ray was four strokes behind. I picked up four strokes on Vardon on the 17th and the 18th holes."

Ouimet went on to win the Amateur in 1914 and he repeated in 1931 for his last major triumph.

Started at Age of Eight.

He began fooling around with golf sticks when he was eight years old.

"Because I lived in a sparsely populated neighborhood where there were few other boys to play with," he explained. "I liked baseball and football but could never find enough kids to play those games. I could amuse myself with one golf stick and a few balls and by the time I was 11 I was playing seriously. I had my first tournament competition when I was 16."

Ouimet's feat in winning the Open has long been considered as the impetus-giving event which made the game what it is in this country today. But he argues against this belief.

"It may have helped," he conceded, sitting with Sam Conant, chairman of the tournament committee for this year's Open, Russell Murphy and Jim Bush, members of that body, "but golf was well along then and has grown by leaps and bounds since.

"In those days all entrants played in the tournament. There were 165 at Brookline. Today we have sectional qualifying trials to reduce the 1200 entrants to a wieldable number and can accommodate at the very outside 180 players."

Previous winners of the event, members of the Walker Cup team and the low 30 scorers and ties in last year's event are exempt from qualifying.

$2000 for Top Pro.

Ouimet, of course, expects the very strongest field here to compete for the championship medal for the amateur and the $10,000 in prize money for the pros, of which the top professional gets $2000.

Par at the Country Club is 280 for four rounds, 70 for each 18 and speculation is that will have to be beaten to gain the title.

Still, the course is to be changed somewhat to make it more difficult, and while the Country Club is not a back-breaking course it is a real test of a golfer's shotmaking ability.

Members of the Walker Cup team will be playing in England until about May 31, but Ouimet expects at least half of the eight-member team to come here for the Open, including Smiley Quick, Bud Ward, Skee Regal and Frankie Stranahan.

Lloyd Mangrum, winner at Canterbury Club in Cleveland last year in a play-off, will almost certainly defend his championship.

The fact that it takes such low scores now to gain major golf titles, Ouimet attributes to better golf equipment, better care of golf courses and the fact that there are so many more top-notch golfers than there were 25 or 30 years ago.

Bills Beat Garden Gamblers Though Losing the Ball Game

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (UP) — The game between the St. Louis U. Billikens and Long Island U. at Madison Square Garden last night presented the unusual spectacle of anxious gamblers rushing to the sidelines and holding up their fingers, pleading in the last 30 seconds for the Long Islanders to hold a 46 to 42 margin. The gamblers had established L.I.U. as three-point favorite and stood to lose heavily if St. Louis cut that margin.

But the Billikens cared not for the bookies. They foresaw victory and it eluded them by the barest of margins. With 10 seconds to go Tommy Kavanaugh, a Billiken sub, stepped to the sidelines and dropped in a free throw which cut the margin to 46-43.

The howl that went up from the gamblers could have been heard at Grant's Tomb, a 35-minute subway ride away.

Then another sub, Henry Raymonds, was fouled as he roared in for a lay-up attempt and he had two free shots with two seconds of regulation play remaining. He made the first and shot the second one short, hoping that a teammate could recover and drop in a field goal. But the ball was lost in a mad melee and that was the ball game, 46-44.

Mike Buha Knocked Out

Mike Buha, former Golden Gloves champion heavyweight, received a real surprise package from Charley Martin, Kansas City, in a bout in Kansas City, Kan., last night when he was knocked out in 2 minutes, 10 seconds of the first round.

It was Mike's third professional fight. He won the other two by knockouts and will have a chance to get back in winning stride Monday night when he is scheduled to box Elmer Holt of Bloomington, Ill., in a six-round preliminary to the Jim Richie-Lee Savold bout at the Auditorium.

The fact that Buha was kayoed won't make any difference on the program, promoter Hans Bernstein said today unless Buha suffered some kind of an injury which which would incapacitate him.

Boxing on the same program with Buha, Eddie Dames featherweight won a technical knockout over Danny Martin of Detroit and Jackie Dickers, another local featherweight, won from Edmonds Carr, Kansas City in a six-rounder.

Bernstein also announced that he signed John Gully, Negro light heavyweight for a six-round bout on Monday's card but his opponent has not as yet been selected.

Richie received honorable mention in the ranking of the National Boxing Association on the strength of his showing with Joe Maxim with whom he gained a draw.

Missouri Gains Third Straight Big Six Victory

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 15 (AP) — It's now Missouri versus the field for the Big Six conference's 1947 basketball title with Coach Wilbur Stalcup's Tigers clinging to a 3-0 record in loop play.

Missouri got over a high hump in their campaign last night by outlasting Kansas State College, 43-42, in an overtime game at Manhattan, Kan., while the surprising Nebraska Cornhuskers slipped into the runner-up slot in thumping the willing Kansas Jayhawks, 48-46, in a wild game at Lincoln, Neb.

Just how serious the Nebraskans are will be determined at Columbia, Mo., Saturday night when the Tigers will try to stretch their conference win streak to four. Coach Harry Good's Cornhuskers have succeeded in knocking off both the pre-season favorites—defending champion Kansas and Oklahoma — after losing their opener to Kansas State away from home two weeks ago.

Missouri got a stiff tussle from Kansas State. The game moved into extra time when Wildcat Jack Dean swiped a Missouri pass and dribbled in for a setup bucket to knot the count at 36-all.

The Kansas Jayhawks, who blew a 14-point lead midway of the second half in losing to Oklahoma last week, wilted against Nebraska last night after leading 29-20 at the half. A Nebraska record home crowd of 8000 got an extra bit of entertainment with only two minutes of playing time remaining when Charlie (Hawk) Black of Kansas and the Cornhuskers' Joe Loisel exchanged blows. Spectators swarmed onto the floor, but were quickly herded back to the seats by police. Both principals in the mixup were permitted to remain in the game, but Trainer Elwyn Dees suffered a black eye trying to separate the boys.

In the overtime of the Missouri game, Darrell Lorrance hit a free throw and Thornton Jenkins followed with a one-hander and Dan Pippin hit from the free throw circle for a quick Missouri lead.

George Mann, Wildcat guard, cut the Tiger advantage to 40-38 with a long one, then Lorrance tallied again. Hal Howey scored for K-State to make it 42-40. Lorrance's final free throw gave Missouri 43 points, and Howey's last-second long goal was not enough to match it.

56 Straight Victories.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP) —Allentown high school's basketball team racked up its fifty-sixth consecutive victory last night, the eleventh this season, in whipping Bethlehem High, 48-43. It is the longest winning streak in Pennsylvania scholastic history.

Chandler Will Name Board to Meet Colleges

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 15 (UP)— A committee to represent organized baseball in smoothing out troubled relations with college coaches will be appointed today when major league baseball's executive committee assembles for the first of its annual 1947 quarterly sessions.

The new committee will act on the colleges' request that the professional teams refrain from signing college athletes before their collegiate athletic eligibility expires.

The major league executive committee, consisting of Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler; president Ford Frick of the National League; Will Harridge, president of the American League; general manager Warren Giles of the Cincinnati Reds; and Leslie O'Connor, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, also expects to enact legislation to be passed upon by major league club owners at a meeting later in the year.

George Trautman, newly appointed commissioner of the minor leagues, will meet with the executive committee to discuss matters pertaining to the minor leagues.

Vaught Succeeds Drew as Ole Miss Coach; Aiken Moves to Oregon U.

Thomas's Job Goes To Former Assistant

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Post-season job-swapping in the ranks of college football coaches continued today to provide teams across the nation with new tutors.

The big turnover, marked by more than a score of resignations since the close of the 1946 season, hit a new one-day high yesterday when three berths were filled—making six additions to the nation's coaching ranks in less than a week.

A long-expected shift took place at the University of Alabama, where the ailing Frank Thomas stepped down to make room for Harold (Red) Drew, who resigned on Monday as head coach at Mississippi. Thomas will continue as athletic director.

Drew, end coach at Alabama before entering the service in 1942, was Thomas's choice as his successor. A veteran coach at 52, Drew previously tutored at Trinity College and Birmingham-Southern and joined Thomas as an assistant at Chattanooga. He was one of the first assistants Thomas chose when the latter went to Alabama in 1931.

Six Bowl Teams in 16 Years.

Thomas, producer of six bowl elevens in 16 seasons, had nine years to go on a 10-year contract. There was no announcement of the length or terms of Drew's contract. His contract at Mississippi had two years to run.

Drew's successor at Ole Miss is John H. Vaught, all-America guard at Texas Christian in 1932, promoted from line coach of the Rebels and given a four-year contract. James (Buster) Poole, an end for the New York Giants, was named coach and three other members of the coaching staff were retained.

The 38-year-old Vaught, formerly line coach at North Carolina and of two service teams during the war, takes over a team which won only two of nine games last season. He plans to start spring practice in two weeks.

The University of Oregon named James W. Aiken, football coach and director of athletics at Nevada since 1939, to the head coaching job to replace Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver. Oliver resigned after six years as both head coach and athlectic director. The newly-created athletic post will be filled later.

Aiken, who has coached for the past 25 years, was an end on the Washington and Jefferson College team of 1921 which held California to a 0-0 tie in the 1922 Rose Bowl. His Nevada team, which won seven and lost two last fall, plays Oregon this year.

Jimmy Sheckard, Former Star Of Cubs, Dies

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 15 (AP)—James T. (Jimmy) Sheckard, 68, former baseball player with the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers, died today of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile while walking along a highway.

The former diamond star, who played 14 years in the big league before retiring, was walking to work at a gasoline service station Sunday night when he was injured.

State Policeman C. E. Simmons said the automobile was operated by the Rev. Robert J. Pilgrim, 69, former executive secretary of the Franklin and Marshall College Alumni Association.

Three Men Fined For Sports Lottery In High Schools

KEENE, N. H., Jan. 15 (AP)—A $2000-a-week sports lottery involving high school students came to light today with the conviction of three men in municipal court. They were fined from $50 to $100 and costs.

Police Chief Joseph L. Regan said about 4000 tickets were sold weekly to students at high schools in Keene, Claremont, Bellows Falls, Vt., and Springfield, Vt., at 50 cents each.

The lottery, he said, was based on scoring by the school basketball teams. Prizes were listed at $100, $60, $35, $20, $15 and $10.

St. Louis Pitcher Signed by Dallas

DALLAS, Jan. 15 (AP)—President George Schepps of the Dallas Rebels announced that Eugene Bauer, Jr., 20, southpaw pitcher from St. Louis, Mo., had signed a 1947 contract to play with his Texas League club. Bauer was recently discharged after three years in the service.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Surprise of the Year, Already Here.

ALREADY the New Year has brought forth a 1947 glamour boy of the ring . . . He is a young Chicago Negro. Harold Dade, who at 23 has achieved a world championship victory after only 22 fights as a professional . . . That's a Horatio Alger, rags to riches dream of all up-and-coming cauliflower knights . . . Quick fame and fortune—two goals that, in most cases, remain forever at the unattainable end of the rainbow.

One of the remarkable features about Dade's victory over Bantam Champion Manuel Ortiz was its surprise to the boxing fraternity. . . . The upset appears to have been one of the most complete in years. . . . Bookmakers laid 12 to 1 against him. . . . And Ring Magazine, which in its January issue had rated the boxers of the world in the various weight divisions, didn't even list Dade among the first ten contenders for the crown. . . . He dropped from the clouds to become No. 1 boy.

Golden Glovers by the hundreds have lain awake nights dreaming of such a short cut to success . . . Only to awaken later with scarred features, cauliflower ears, dreams and hopes swept away forever—and broke . . . Only a lucky few reach pugilism's peak. . . . And most of them fritter away the rewards so bitterly won.

WE don't know about young Dade's prospects fully, as yet . . . Howard is a product of Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization. . . . He resides with his family in Chicago, where he now is resting up following his victory over Ortiz.

DADE'S success is the more remarkable since much of his professional career came after doffing his service uniform . . . He is a shifty lad with a fine left hand and won his fight after the champion had taken an early lead . . . Apparently his power-plant is not of the Dempsey type, since there were no knockdowns scored during the 15 rounds of battling.

There is a chance that the upset may be reversed. . . . Dade will give Ortiz a return battle in the not too distant future. . . . Ortiz was not himself in his title effort, accounts of the encounter told. . . . He was slow and could not gear himself up to title velocity.

From Nowhere to a Title

HAROLD DADE, 23-year-old product of the Chicago Catholic Youth organization, who recently won the bantam title from Manuel Ortiz, who had defended it successfully 15 times. Prior to their fight Dade had not even been mentioned among the first 10 of his weight class. He was 12 to 1 in the betting.

Whether that was due to his 31 years, or to his failure to prepare properly remains to be seen. . . . But if Dade gets by Ortiz again, he apparently will have clear sailing. . . . The opposition seems ordinary, since the dethroned titlist had dominated his field for a long time.

THAT Lord Boswell horse is in again. . . . And that's bad, because if he has all four legs working, this year, we're going to need the crying towel again. . . . They sold us a bill of goods when we bought him for last year's Derby winner. . . . And we'll probably stay sold.

The above is because of a news item which says his Lordship is not only entered for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap next March 1, but that he's third choice in a race for which Assault, Armed and other great racers have been entered.

For this event Armed is a 4 to 1 chance, Busher is 5 to 1 and Lord Boswell is third at 10 to 1 . . . It seems to mean that somebody has heard that the Maine Chance Farm is going to take another chance to prove that the Lord is all geared up.

Boswell is one of those thoroughbreds that can run when he likes to . . . But all last season he didn't seem to care much about the business of putting one foot in front of another fast enough to get anywhere on schedule . . . But they—meaning all of us inmates—still seem to like him.

INCIDENTALLY those Santa Anita odds are uncanny . . . Or do we mean canny? . . . The bookmaker who made those prices named as the three outstanding choices for the big event: Armed, first choice, now racing in Florida and unlikely to go West because he is to race Feb. 22 in the Widener Stakes at Hialeah . . . Busher, second choice, a question mark that was beaten once this year and was withdrawn from another race . . . And Lord Boswell, third choice, a sulker . . . All three are dubious starters!

Assault? . . . There's one prediction we feel safe in making about the "Horse of 1946" . . . He'll not beat Lord Boswell in the 'Nita Handicap . . . He's entered, too . . . But he won't start, Owner Kleberg has said.

Beaumont Defeats Riders, Ties Cleveland for Lead

In the first meeting of the season between the champions of the two divisions of the Normandy holiday basketball tourney, Beaumont and Roosevelt, the Blue Jackets came out on top last night, 34 to 31, in City League play. The victory, third in a row for Beaumont in loop competition, put the quintet in a tie with Cleveland for first place.

The defeat ended a Roosevelt winning streak which had reached eight in a row. Beaumont put on a spurt in the third period to tally 10 points, while holding the Rough Riders to three to salt the victory. Milt Edwards of Roosevelt was the high scorer with 15 points, while Bob Koch tallied 10 for Beaumont.

In non-league games, two city quintets won, while a third was defeated. Cleveland drubbed Webster, 51-31; Blewett defeated Mehlville, 53-31 and Central was defeated by Bayless, 39-31.

McBride took over first place in the Prep League with a 58-23 victory over North Side Catholic, while St. Louis U. High was dropping its first league contest to Central Catholic, 35-34. In the third loop game, South-Side Catholic ran over C.B.C., 45-19.

Jennings retained its clean record in North County League play with a 31-18 triumph over Brentwood. In other county contests, Hancock beat Affton, 45-37; Riverview won from Berkeley, 38-28 and Valley Park outfinished Pacific, 48-42. Maplewood triumphed over Ritenour, 52-41 and Wellston drubbed Clayton, 43-27 in Suburban play.

In the Southwestern Conference, Collinsville gained its sixth consecutive victory, defeating East St. Louis, 46 to 28; with Sam Miranda scoring 17 points. In non-league competition, Belleville Cathedral trounced St. Joseph, 64-25 and Dupo of the Cahokia Conference, triumphed over Wood River of the Southwest, 49-43.

John Burroughs defeated Chaminade, 44-35, in a non-league game, while Principia won from Fairview, 38-27 and University City gained a 33-29 victory over Western M.A.

Charles Hurth, New Orleans, Heads Southern

BIRMINGHAM, Jan. 15 (AP)—Charles Hurth, vice president and general manager of the New Orleans Pelicans, was elected president of the Southern Association today to succeed Billy Evans.

Hurth's election was announced after an hour's executive session of the league directors, called together principally to name a man to take Evans's place.

Evans resigned to accept a place with the Detroit Tigers.

The New Orleans baseball executive was given a three-year contract. Terms were not disclosed.

Hurth said he expected to move league headquarters from Memphis to New Orleans, but would not do so immediately.

Hurth, 41, has been in organized baseball since 1936, when he became secretary of the Columbus, O., club of the American Association. Two years later he went to Columbus, Ga., where he was general manager until he went New Orleans in the same capacity in 1940.

Fulks Sets New Scoring Record In Basket Loop

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Averaging a point every other minute, Joe Fulks of the Philadelphia Warriors has taken a stranglehold on the individual scoring race in the basketball association of America.

The lanky forward of the third place Eastern Division Warriors has scored 673 points in 28 games, over 200 more than the 448 rimmed by runner-up Stan Miasek of the Detroit Falcons.

In addition, the former Murray (Ky.) State star tops the field in field goals, 239, fouls made, 195, most points in a single game, 41 and best average per game, 24.0.

Fulks set his record of 41 points in a single game last night as the Warriors slaughtered the Toronto Huskies, 104-74. The star forward sunk 15 field goals and 11 foul shots as the Warriors led throughout the game. The previous mark of 40 was established last Thursday by little Gino Martin of the Providence Steamrollers.

In the only other game, the Steamrollers came from behind and downed the Cleveland Rebels, 78-74 with Ernie Calverley pacing the attack by garnering 23 points.

The leading scorers:

Flyers Oppose Barons Tonight

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15—The St. Louis Flyers were here today for the second of a three-game road campaign that will be concluded tomorrow night at Indianapolis. In meeting the Cleveland Barons tonight, they will be opposing the club which has scored the only shutout of the season over the St. Louis forces.

In four previous Cleveland-Flyer meetings, the Barons, top team in the Western standings of the American Hockey League, have won three times and lost once.

Coach Bob Davidson of the Flyers, who took advantage of open dates since Sunday's defeat at Buffalo to visit his family at Toronto, was to rejoin the club here in time for a pre-game dinner. He and Coach Bun Cook of the Barons were to be special guests of the Cleveland Canadian club.

Two new Flyers, Russ Brayshaw and Bill McComb, were to be in St. Louis uniforms for the first time against the Barons. Brayshaw was a member of the Cleveland club last year.

Lead Poisoning, Not Lack of Food, Causes Death of Illinois Ducks

Fears of sportsmen that hundreds of thousands of ducks were starving to death in the Grafton (Ill.) area were groundless and, if persons interested had gone to headquarters at once to determine the facts about the situation, the government and the state of Illinois would have been saved considerable expense which it cost to disprove that the birds were dying because of lack of food.

This was the statement of Jerome Stoudt, biologist with the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, after examining about 40 ducks in the area. The cause of death in each case proved to have been lead poisoning from shotgun pellets, as originally stated by Edward H. Davis, manager of Calhoun Refuge.

A Long Trip for Nix.

Stoudt came down to Illinois from Winona, Minn., his headquarters, after Davis sent published reports to the office. It is one of Davis's duties to see that the refuge always has feed for the migratory birds.

Of the ducks examined, some were taken from cornfields and some from ground near the waters. All had lead shot in them and the gizzards of about 75 per cent of the birds were crammed with corn. The ground-up corn was green and the full kernels bore green spots and was generally off color.

There is nothing new in ducks dying from lead poisoning. The birds frequently pick up a lot of the pellets when they go into shallow water for gravel, and in areas where there is a great amount of shooting, the ducks pick up great amounts of shot. When the little lead balls get into the gizzard, they are ground down and into various shapes. The lead ground off gets into the bloodstream, causing the poisoning.

How It Affects the Birds.

When a duck gets blood poisoning it becomes unable to fly. Paralysis, affecting first the wing muscles and rendering the bird flightless, gradually affects all muscles. To casual observers, the duck looks like it might be starving when actually it is poisoned and too weak to fly.

To prove his point, Stoudt brought to the Post-Dispatch office a jar containing a few duck gizzards just as they had been removed from the birds. He opened one of them with a jackknife and showed it was stuffed with corn, much of it green and the remainder affected. He picked six shot out of the mass. As many as 11 shot were found in gizzards in the investigation, Stoudt said.

The Wildlife Service men estimated that 200 ducks had died in the Pere Marquette Park area this winter—but not hundreds of thousands, as sportsmen had feared.

Allen Out of Hospital.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Jan. 15 (AP)—Dr. F. C. Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach, was released from a hospital here yesterday after undergoing a complete physical checkup since last Thursday. His physician said Allen was suffering from a run-down condition resulting from overwork, and that he advised the coach to take a two-week's vacation.

Red Corriden Signs To Coach Yankees

Corriden's acquisition completes the Yankee coaching staff for 1947 under new manager Stanley (Bucky) Harris. The other members are Dressen, John Schulte and Frankie Crosetti. Crosetti was signed as a player-coach.

Tunney and Conzelman Call on President, Find Him in Best of Trim

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (INS)—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, called upon President Truman yesterday and pronounced the White House titleholder in fighting physical trim.

After their residential conference Tunney noted:

Conzelman added:

"Yes, the President is lean and strong."

Trainer Tom Smith Is Granted License

ARCADIA, Calif., Jan. 15 (AP)—Tom Smith, veteran trainer, is back in the good graces of the California horse racing board.

Smith, who had been under suspension for allegedly stimulating a horse in New York, was granted a license yesterday. New York authorities had informed the California board that Smith had been restored to good standing in the east.

Back-Stroke Champion To Swim in Sports Show

Adolph Kiefer, world record holder in the back-stroke, will be one of the featured performers in the swimming exhibition at the fifth annual St. Louis Travel and Sports Show at Kiel Auditorium Jan. 25-Feb. 2.

The 28-year-old Chicagoan holds every American record at his specialty at distances from 50 yards to one mile. He also set the Olympic mark of 1:05.9 for the 100-meter backstroke in the 1936 games at Berlin.

In the last 13 years in about 2000 races, he was defeated but one time, by Harry Halliday of Michigan University in the 1943 National Indoor meet. Kiefer turned pro last July after serving four years in the Navy as a swimming instructor.

STOCK MARKET IS QUIET, TREND OF PRICES IS LOWER

Clarification of Congressional Intentions on Legislation Affecting Business Awaited.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Stocks skidded in the final hour of today's market and finished as much as two points lower.

The move eliminated early improvement by a number of industrials and extended the decline experienced by several rails. A few favorites managed to resist the trend, but closing prices for most leaders were at lows for the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down .4 of a point at 63.7.

Of the 905 issues traded in today, 433 were lower, 257 higher and 215 unchanged. Thirty made new 1946-47 lows and non new highs. Sales were 770,000 shares compared with 850,000 shares yesterday.

Among the Losers.

Losses were registered by Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Southern Railway, Great Northern preferred, Chesapeake & Ohio, U. S. Rubber, Western Union "A," Phelps Dodge, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Gypsum, Schenley, Union Carbide and Consolidated Edison.

Gains were retained by International Harvester, American Can, Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak.

Customers were reported by commission houses to be wary of commitments in the absence of clear indications regarding wage and price developments and prospects for congressional actions affecting current business uncertainties. Support was generally light, with bidding attributed to hopes for extension of a comeback move.

Railroad bonds softened. Wheat at Chicago closed off ¼ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel, corn down ¼ to ½, and oats ⅛ to ¾ lower. Cotton near the finish was down $1.80 to $3.60 a bale.

Trend on the Curb.

Losers on the curb included Niagara Hudson Power, Pantepec Oil, Raytheon and Electric Bond & Share. Lone Star Gas was higher.

Postponement of wage negotiations between U.S. Steel Corp. and the Steelworkers union, originally set for tomorrow, stirred the usual speculation over possible behind-the-scenes maneuvers. The metalworking paper "Iron Age" reported both management and labor were expected to "bend over backward" to avoid a stoppage. Current operations are placed at 91 per cent of capacity or better.

Announced intention by House of Representatives Republicans to continue beyond July 1 the wartime excise taxes, a move described as removing "the incentive to stop buying in aniticpation of tax cuts," produced negligible market reaction, although some analysts concede it would aid present sales volume.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES $3.10 TO $4.20 LOWER

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Cotton futures were reactionary today under pressure of active liquidation and hedging. Nervous selling was attributed partly to declining price trends of other commodities and confusion over prospects of textile sales later in the year. Commission houses and Chicago interests were prominent on the selling side. Mills absorbed contacts on the scale down, along with New Orleans covering. Prices at one time were $3 a bale off but improved moderately in later dealings.

Late afternoon prices were $1.45 to $2.75 a bale lower than the previous close. March 31.46, May 30.64 and July 29.04.

GRAIN MARKET SHOWS LOWER PRICE TREND

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (AP)—Grains eased for small fractional losses on the board of trade today. Profit-taking entering the pits after the preceding session's bulge was the major reason for the decline.

Some support was given wheat by flour mill buying during the early part of the session. Later selling by houses with southwestern connections expanded. England was reported inquiring for flour for February shipment.

January corn showed relative firmness when compared with other deliveries of that grain. Traders said a small quantity of cash corn was expected to be delivered on January contracts tomorrow.

Oats trading followed the leadership of other grains. Country offerings of cash oats increased sharply with bookings totaling 110,000 bushels. There were also shipping sales of 55,000 bushels of oats.

LOCAL CASH GRAIN.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 15—In the cash grain market today corn was steady to ½c lower; sales 14 cars. One car of wheat changed hands and two cars of oats were sold.

Sales were as follows:

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP)—Selected rail obligations wobbled lower in the bond market today after yesterday's improvement.

Trade was slack as the attention of investors was diverted to a $50,000,000 new money offering, the first substantial piece of new financing in 1947.

Holding a higher edge at times were bonds of American & Foreign Power, Consumers Power, Hudson Coal, Lehigh Valley, Katy, Southern Railway and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Leaning to the offside or holding about unchanged were the new 'Frisco 4½s, Northern Pacific 4s, Kansas City Southern 4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s and Burlington 3⅛s.

Foreign dollar bonds duplicated the do-nothing stand taken by domestic issues and there was little going on in Government bonds.

Sales totaled $3,670,000, compared with $3,961,000 yesterday.

The last hour did little to disturb earlier price patterns and the market closed with gains and losses in close balance.

Among the final losers were American Telephone new 2¾s at 117½, Central of Georgia consolidated 5s at 60, and Rock Island refunding 4s at 45½.

Radar-Spotted Planes Talked Down Safely in Gander Airport Tests

Ground Control Approach (GCA) Unit Giving Answer to All-Weather Landings Amid the Snow and Cold of Newfoundland.

BY C. B. ALLEN
A Correspondent of the N. Y. Herald and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

GANDER AIRPORT, Newfoundland, Jan. 15 — America's first routine application to commercial airline operation of war-developed radar Ground Controlled Approach (GCA) for aircraft landings is in full swing at this trans-Atlantic air terminal.

A new chapter in aviation is being written in the midst of Gander's snow and numbing cold by nine former Army, Navy Marine Corps radar technicians, who left good jobs in the States to help prove their belief that GCA is the only present answer to safe all-weather landings.

Though the GCA unit, lent by the Army, has been in commission only a month and is limited by government regulation to use "for experimental and training purposes and as a supplementary navigational aid," more than eighty air-liner captains already have used it for "practice" approaches on their regular landings at Gander.

Most have been pilots of Pan American World Airways, which established and operates the Gander GCA unit. The others were captains of British Overseas Airways Corporation and American Overseas Airlines, which have signed contracts in response to Pan American's invitation to all trans-Atlantic operators to use the GCA system on a cost-sharing basis.

Rescue in a Real Jam.

Another aircraft captain, whom the GCA operators will identify only as a "foreign air-line pilot" because they do not want to embarrass him, delighted their hearts on Dec. 19 by getting into a real weather jam and calling on them for rescue.

He tried one approach, using standard radio-range procedure, and missed the runway—just as an ill-fated Belgian Sabena air liner missed it on Sept. 18 before crashing and killing twenty-six of the forty-four aboard.

"We had just brought in one of our own airplanes, less than 10 minutes ahead of this chap," said Joseph E. Green of Wausau, Wis., leader of the Gander GCA team, "and I guess he heard the whole procedure. Anyway, he called the Gander control tower and wanted to be 'talked down' to a landing the same way."

The tower relayed the request to the GCA unit, which replied that company rules forbade working with other aircraft than those of the contracting air lines.

After a second request and a second refusal, the pilot informed the tower he would make a standard approach.

Meanwhile, the GCA team tracked the air liner with their cathode - ray viewing scopes through the clouds and driving snow. Suddenly the weather got worse. As the liner turned on its final approach, the tower operator radioed the ceiling had dropped to 300 feet, the visibility to a quarter mile.

"Emergency" Request.

Watching the pip of moving light on their scopes that revealed the air liner's position as it neared the airport, the GCA crew ached to tell the pilot he was wide of the runway.

When the pilot came through the overcast and caught a glimpse of the airport, he pulled up again to a safe altitude. Again he asked for aid from the GCA unit, and this time he played his ace. He was faced with an "emergency," he radioed, and had to have help. The GCA team went into action.

"This is Blue Jay," radioed former Marine Corps GCA controller Charles E. Aldrich, of Totowa Boro, Little Falls, N. J. Blue Jay is the code name of the GCA unit. "We have you in sight 10 miles southwest of the field and will give you a course to fly."

The pilot acknowledged the message and the compass heading. From then on he merely flew his airplane, listened to the position reports and followed the headings.

Talking Him Down.

"You are four miles from the end of the runway . . . 50 feet above the glide path and on course; keep steering 273 degrees," the one-way conversation ran. "Three miles from the end of the runway . . . steer right 275 degrees. You are now two miles from the runway. . . . Ten feet under glide path now and one mile from the runway; ease it up and steer 272 . . . a quarter mile from the end of the runway, on course and on glide path. . . . You're over the end of the runway and can take over visual control."

Ten seconds later, with visibility a doubtful quarter mile in the driving snow, the air liner rolled to a stop on the runway alongside which the GCA trailer was stationed. Members of the GCA crew, peering out of their furlined parkas, saw for the first time the plane they had guided in.

The decision to install the GCA unit at Gander was made by James H. Smith, Pan American vice-president in charge of the company's Atlantic division, a Navy fighter pilot during the war.

The installation was supervised by Philemon R. Dickinson, chairman of the company's committee in instrument landing and electronic projects, a former Marine Corps radar officer.

Members of GCA Unit.

Members of the Gander GCA unit in addition to Green and Aldrich, are James O. Hillis of St. Paul, Minn.; Ross Thomas of Lansing, Mich.; James E. O'Brien of Natick, Mass., and John M. Jerome of Peoria, Ill., who were members of the Army's original GCA unit on Iwo Jima; Myron A. Danforth of Brattleboro, Vt., who served with the Navy on Okinawa and in China, and Marine Corps GCA veterans Yalter G. Haney of Hoquiam, Wash., and Stanley J. Bourgeois of Chicago.

LOCKED-OUT BURGLAR GETS AID

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UP) — The stranger was telling the truth when he told Fred Roy, furniture dealer, that he was "locked out of the Linen Exchange Service next door."

He was only telling part of the truth, Roy found out later when detectives questioned him. Using tools borrowed from Roy, the stranger had burglarized the neighboring office.

INJURED ATHLETES ARE PAID $3854 BY PENNSYLVANIA LOOP

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association paid $3854 to 324 state high school boy and girl athletes for injuries suffered in football, basketball, baseball and five other scholastic sports in the 1945-46 term.

The P.I.A.A. disbursed the money through its protection fund inaugurated in 1937. Football injuries proved costliest, with 270 gridders receiving $2266, or 85 per cent of the total outlay.

Basketball was listed as the next most hazardous game, with 33 injured players receiving $243. Payments were made also to five girls hurt in hockey contests, and to 16 other athletes injured in track, baseball, wrestling, soccer and volleyball mishaps.

Strike Driving Labor Government In Britain to Wage-Fixing Which Might Kill the Cause of Unions

If National Standards of Pay and Hours Were Set, Need for Workers' Organizations Would Be Largely Removed and Party Would Cripple Main Base of Support.

By HAL O'FLAHERTY

LONDON, Jan. 15.

BRITAIN'S planned economy reached the point of ultimate crisis today. Either the planners must produce a plan satisfactory to the striking transport workers or see all distribution of vital necessities halted.

A formula has been written. It calls for setting up a national Joint Industrial Council composed of 10 members representing employers and 10 representing trade unions. This joint council is above, and of greater power, than the Central Wages Board, which has delayed decision on the strikers' demands for eight months.

If the strikers can be induced to accept this new board, they will go back to work immediately. The board will then meet tomorrow with instructions not only to settle the issues immediately involved, but to deal with any other claims they wish to discuss.

However, if the men refuse this new plan, Britain's transport will be paralyzed. All over the United Kingdom, loyal trade unionists have voted to strike in sympathy. Many unions already are out. In the provinces men have quit work, in sympathy, in transport and affiliated lines, by the thousands.

It is plain that the national planners cannot allow one union after another to demand as good or better conditions than have been granted previous claimants.

National Wage Policy.

At this point national planning faces an extremely grave decision. It may be an essential next step to establish a national policy on wages. The trade unionists would never accept an all-embracing wage policy unless the Government also fixed a national policy on salaries and profits. To limit wages by national decree, and simultaneously limit salaries and profits, would be to stifle initiative, reduce production and remove the greatest of all incentives to men who work either with their hands or brains.

Yet, this final stage of planning is being considered and has been mentioned frequently in reports of recent union meetings.

Here then, is the picture of trade union development. Britain's enormous Transport Union numbering more than 1,200,000, supposedly the largest in the world, finds within its unwieldy bulk a relatively small group bent on forcing an issue that may destroy trade unionism. What would be the use of a trade union organization, with powerful leaders, if the government adopted a national plan covering hours of work, wages, and all the conditions under which men labor?

Trade unions have fought this line of action for years. But seemingly, no other course is open. Britain's Labor government must soon evolve a plan for allotment of labor to industries suffering from a shortage of man power. Already, it has under way a document on man power, which deals with wages, and may, of necessity, take up the dangerous subject of controlled salaries and profits.

One Step Compels Another.

Once started on the road to state socialism, there is no turning. One set of agreements leads inexorably to another, so closely intermeshed are the elements that compose a national economy.

While these grave steps in national planning move slowly forward, Britain's laboring people continue to support the Labor government. Even strikers waving their union cards, in typical voting scenes, affirm their belief in the aims and objectives of Prime Minister Attlee and his cabinet. They want the process of socialization speeded up.

Eventually, all roads in statism lead to the Government itself. Unions, in their initial stages, were the agencies through which labor bargained collectively with employers. Then came the central boards, appointed by the Government with the power to sit in judgment over labor disputes. Now, the over-all national Joint Industrial Council makes its appearance with the power to supersede the central boards.

Only one step remains. The authority to regulate wages on a national scale will be taken over by the Government itself. New bureaus, manned by civil servants, will eventually do the work previously carried on by private industries and trade unions.

Britain's greatest need, according to every authority, is production. Production depends on man power. That is limited; it is the great shortage of this country. Men must be induced to work harder and produce more.

British Socialists are confident that they have the answer, in a planned economy. The people will know in a limited number of years whether such planning will feed, clothe and house them better than an economy based upon free enterprise.

Workers 'Fed Up' With Delays By Government Wage Boards

By EDWIN A. LAHEY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.

SOME rank and file trade unionists in Britain feel that when Labor took over the government, it was a new twist to the old system of cutting a man's wages by making him a partner in the firm.

Since the Labor party came to power in 1945 the workers have frequently been reminded by "their' government that with power comes responsibility, and that the trade unionists should not "rock the boat" and scare off the middle classes by pushing their own economic claims too vigorously during the transition period.

One official of the British Trades Union Congress told me a month ago in London, when I visited him to say goodby, that the workers he saw daily on the local level were "ruddy well fed up" with being nice boys just because the Labor party had come into its own at Whitehall.

From the dispatches, it would appear that the British truck drivers were "ruddy well fed up" with the process of negotiating for improved working conditions, and simply rebelled against the bureaucratic intricacies through which British workers must wend their way before they can put the bite on the boss for an extra shilling.

About 21,000 truck drivers, who work 48 hours a week for $20, are involved in the strike.

Endangers Labor Unity.

The crisis, if not resolved in time, could split the trade unionists and the intellectuals who make up the British Cabinet and who have been held together in amity for a year and a half mainly by the conciliatory and self-effacing genius of Prime Minister Attlee. If the events set in motion by this walkout were to precipitate a real split in the Labor party, it would be the ultimate in irony.

The strikers are members of the Transport Workers' Union, of which Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is the boss, even though he has severed his official connection with the union; and it has been against Bevin that the left-wing group of rebels in the Labor party have been preaching their doctrine that a "reactionary" foreign policy would ultimately force the Government into a coalition with the Tories and, finally, into a betrayal of the Socialist domestic program.

Negotiation System.

What is the wage negotiation system which apparently had the British truck drivers "ruddy well fed up" when they started their unauthorized strike?

Most wages in Britain are established by wage councils which have statutory being. There are 52 of these wage councils, for as many industries. They are set up on regional and national lines, and labor and management have equal representation on them. When these management and labor representatives agree on wage rates for their particular industry, they relay their findings to the Minister of Labor, who then issues an order establishing these rates. The order has the force of law. It recalls the industry codes of the NRA in the United States.

A single statute, the Wages Council Act of 1945, covers these 52 industries. The trucking industry is covered by a separate statute, the Road Haulage Wages Act of 1938. This act sets up 10 regional wage boards in England and one in Scotland, with equal representation of workers and employers on each board.

At the top of this heap is the National Road Haulage Wages Boards made up of 24 representatives from the regional boards (half worker and half employer), 12 additional members appointed by the Minister of Labor from the ranks of labor and management, and three independent or "public" members.

The regional boards and the national boards play catch with wage proposals, the national board sending their recommendations to the regional boards, and the latter groups returning them with proper comments within a statutory period.

It was in one of these exchange periods between the national and regional boards that the British truck drivers decided that they were in a rut. The national board had sent recommendations to the regional boards on Dec. 31, and they were not due back until Jan. 21.

Apparently, no increase in wage rates was involved in the truck drivers' case. The drivers were asking for a reduction of their work week from 48 to 44 hours.

WOMAN NOTARY SWEARS IN AUSTIN TO U.S. POST IN U.N.

Secretary Feels So Honored She Forgets to Charge 25-Cent Fee.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (AP) — Miss Beatrice Schaffer, 27-year-old legal secretary is out 25 cents today but she's not complaining.

While she was typing letters in her employer's office yesterday, a man walked in. He identified himself as Robert Davis, personnel officer in the State Department, asked for a notary public, and when Miss Schaffer said she filled the bill, asked her to accompany him to the fifth floor of the building.

But instead of being asked to witness a signature, she was requested to administer the oath of office to former Senator Warren R. Austin, Republican of Vermont, as chief United States representative to the United Nations.

This she did. Then she witnessed Austin's signatures on several papers required by federal law, and after that went back to her office on the thirteenth floor.

"I felt so honored about the whole thing," she said, "that I didn't even charge Mr. Austin the 25 cents that a notary usually gets."

Davis, it later developed, had gone in search of a notary, after Austin told him he wanted the oath administered quickly and without ceremony.

PAPEN'S DE-NAZIFICATION TRIAL SET TO BEGIN JAN. 24

NUERNBERG, Jan. 14 (AP)— Franz von Papen, German diplomat acquitted of war crimes charges by the International Military Tribunal, will go on trial before a German de-Nazification court in Nuernberg Jan. 24.

Von Papen, indicted as a "major offender" for allegedly helping Adolf Hitler to power, will be tried before a court of seven judges in Nuernberg's city hall, a former school house. His counsel will be Dr. Egon Kubuschok, who defended him before the international tribunal. Conviction might result in 10 years' imprisonment.

German de-Nazification authorities said Hans Fritzsche, Nazi broadcaster also freed by the international tribunal, probably will be tried Jan. 27 in another courtroom.

Big Chops in Funds for CAA Cited As Air Safety Record Is Attacked

Requests Slashed 63.3 Pct. in Last Seven Years—Senate and House Planning Inquiries in Plane Crashes.

By CHARLES CORDDRY
WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (UP).

THE Civil Aeronautics Administration had 63.3 per cent less money over the last seven years than it considered necessary to supervise safety and run the airways, inquiry revealed today.

This was expected to be emphasized by both CAA and Civil Aeronautics Board officials in prospective Senate and House investigations of recent air crashes and general safety problems.

Senator Brewster (Rep.), Maine, assailing CAB safety figures as "misleading" and an "outrage," said today he believed an investigation would begin soon. He said he has "plenty of questions" to ask CAB Chairman James M. Landis.

Brewster said CAB figures showing 1.2 fatalities per 100,000,000 passenger miles in 1946 did not cover a "ghastly" situation in contract and charter plane operations. He estimated the latter killed nearly eight times as many people as the scheduled airlines in proportion to number of passenger miles flown.

Record Since 1939.

Official figures show that scheduled airplanes flew 3,466,755 miles for every passenger killed and 13,452,200 miles for every crew member who died in a crash in the period of 1939-1946, inclusive. In the 1939-1946 period there were 36 airline accidents in which 355 passengers and 90 crew members were killed. The plane-miles flown totaled 1,210,698,000 and the passenger-miles, 18,502,795,000.

Brewster is expected to head an aviation subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee. Committee Chairman White (Rep.), Maine, said the subcommittee probably would be set up Thursday after CAB officials bring in "detailed figures on crashes and losses."

These figures also were being prepared for the House Commerce Committee at the request of Chairman Wolverton (Rep.), New Jersey. He introduced a resolution yesterday proposing a thorough safety investigation.

Brewster did not comment on contentions that CAA has had insufficient funds, except to say "there is a limit beyond which we cannot go" and in the mean-

U.S. Reaction To Red Report On Spitsbergen

State Department Expects to Be Consulted if 1920 Treaty Is Affected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP).

THE State Department made clear today it expects to be consulted on any Soviet-Norwegian agreement which would affect the 1920 treaty demilitarizing the Spitsbergen archipelago.

Michael J. McDermott, press assistant to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, told reporters that thus far the State Department has not been informed of any agreement between Norway and Russia on the joint defense of Spitsbergen. He said the department likewise has no information that the Russians had denounced the 1920 treaty, but added:

"As we are a party to the treaty, we have no doubt at all that we will be consulted in case Norway and Soviet Russia reach agreement that a modification of the treaty is desirable."

The Moscow radio reported last night that Russia and Norway have agreed on the "necessity for joint defense" of the islands, and said the 1920 treaty could not remain valid because its signatories included nations which fought against the Allies in World War II. It referred to Italy and Japan.

Russia was not one of the original signers of the 1920 treaty, but adhered to it later.

The Moscow broadcast quoted the Tass news agency as saying Medvezhi or Bear Island, prior to the treaty, "actually was a Russian island." The treaty specifically included this island among others in the archipelago, which was placed under Norway's sovereignty with a proviso that no naval bases should be built. This island is not to be confused with the another Medvezhi (Bear) island off the northeast coast of Siberia.

The Russian claim to Bear Island was challenged in London today by a Foreign Office spokesman, who also rejected the idea that Russia was not bound by the treaty merely because Italy and Japan are among its signatories.

"We are unaware that the Soviet Union have any valid claim to any island in that region," the spokesman said. "That is Norwegian territory."

Because of Spitsbergen's key location athwart the sea approaches to northern Russia and some 3500 air line miles from the industrial northeast cities of the United States, the State Department has

Deputy Ministers Reject Soviet Proposal to Complete Talks on Reich Before Taking Up Austria

Preparatory Discussions of Two Treaties to Be Alternated—Australia Requests That Small Nations Be Given Voice in Negotiations.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (AP).

AFTER rejecting Russia's proposal to defer drafting an Austrian peace treaty until after the discussion of German peace plans, the four-power deputy foreign ministers proceeded today with both in preparation for the Moscow conference of foreign ministers on March 10.

Germany headed today's agenda and the deputies agreed to discuss terms of the Austrian settlement tomorrow if initial discussion of the German question were not concluded this afternoon.

The United States and Britain, hoping to complete a draft of the Austrian treaty in five weeks, joined in opposing the Soviet representative, Feodor Gusev, when he asked yesterday that Germany's future be discussed in detail before turning to Austria.

Australian Demand.

Australia submitted to the deputies a demand that the small Allied nations be permitted to participate "fully and freely" in the preliminary discussions of the German peace treaty.

The deputies discussed the Australian demand at today's meeting.

American and British deputies said they favored consideration of the principle of the Australian proposal "to a certain extent." Gusev, opposed it as 'contrary to the deputies' terms of reference," informants reported.

So far the deputies had received memoranda concerning claims against Germany from Yugoslavia, The Netherlands, Poland, Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Yugoslav Demands.

Yugoslav representatives indicated they would ask for a substantial piece of southern Austria. They expressed concern about a Slovene minority in the Austrian province of Carinthia and asserted that the Slovenes sought union with Yugoslavia. The Yugoslavs said informally that a transfer of populations was not feasible and that annexation of the vaguely defined region would be a better solution.

A Yugoslav spokesman said they also would demand the surrender by Austria of a considerable number of persons considered war criminals. He charged that many had found refuge in Austria and that the Ustachi, a fascist band which held sway in Slovenia during the German occupation, still existed in Austria as an organized formation.

ATTLEE AND BLUM AGREE BRITISH-FRENCH ALLIANCE SHOULD BE CONCLUDED

PARIS, Jan. 15 (UP)

AN authoritative French spokesman announced tonight that Premier Leon Blum of France and Prime Minister Clement Attlee of Britain have agreed that a British-French alliance should be concluded at the earliest possible opportunity.

It was learned that a communique to be published later this evening in Paris and London will disclose that Blum and Attlee have agreed on the desirability of the alliance and the need for further conversations on details on an actual treaty.

The French spokesman said that during Blum's two-day visit to London considerable progress had been made toward a full dress alliance.

He said Attlee had promised Blum that Britain would divert the largest possible quantity of of Ruhr coal to France as soon as possible.

It was understood that the two also discussed the possibility of a French-British customs union and the integration of British and French economies.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Radar for Air Safety

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Thousands of American airmen gave their lives so the Army could test and improve radar techniques on American warplanes. How many more thousands of civilian Americans must perish so cruelly before our technically stupid brass hats will release mountains of surplus radar equipment to be installed on commercial airlines?

Radar is no longer a military secret. Will military "intelligence" stop coddling radar and place it on commercial lines instead of on radar-controlled missiles?

Radar is no longer for military security, but for the security of airminded American travelers.

ROBERT HELLER.

Gangway for Pedestrians!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Sure, let's have a law against jaywalkers, but at the same time how about an ordinance for the pedestrians? They too must use the streets. Will St. Louis motorists consider an ordinance giving the pedestrian the right of way?

W. HICKS.

Good Business

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"Business Man" implies that union members are Communists or dupes of Communists. As usual he underestimates the intelligence of the American people.

I'll bet "Business Man" belongs to a union, only his is probably under the fancy name of Chamber of Commerce or N.A.M.

Since our office organized, I'm receiving $65 more a month on an outlay of $1.50 a month.

I'm sure "Business Man" would call that good business.

C. A. W.

Hot Dog!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was interested to read that the Jean Baptiste Roy House, at 615 N. Second street, thought to be the oldest in the city, will be razed in a few days (unless some move is made to save it), primarily because it does not stand within the Jefferson Memorial area. It happens, I believe, to have been erected a block south of this tract.

During the past 10 years or so numerous plans have been presented which have recommended that the Memorial area be made into a park, a drive, an airport, or a plaza. The most recurrent disposition includes the good idea of saving the Old Cathedral and the Old Rock House and making them a part of the final whole.

The examples of local architecture dating back to the 1820s that are still extant may be counted on the fingers of one hand. Surely the few that are still with us should be preserved, especially if they have played some role in our early history that is significant. The Roy House has done so.

Both the Campbell House and the Eugene Field House were saved at the last minute. If some action is taken now the Roy House can still be preserved. I believe it logically belongs in the Memorial area, along with the Old Cathedral and the Old Rock House.

It is the oldest known building within the corporate limits of the City of St. Louis. That, in itself, should be justification enough for saving it. Its architecture blends well with that of the two other landmarks. St. Louis is proud that it happened to be the birthplace of that American standby, the hot dog, and the Roy House is the very building in which that popular delicacy first saw the light of day. It deserves a place in the memorial group.

I submit that it should be preserved and action taken toward that end without delay. There are many others who will feel as I do.

Who Teachers Are

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The School Board always claims not to have enough money when some of the employes ask for an increase in pay. When the teachers asked for an increase, Elmore Putney, president of the board, stated that if the tax proposition to be presented to the voters in the spring did not carry no increase could be given. But the next day a news article stated the Finance Committee of the Board had recommended an increase of $3000 for the Superintendent of Instruction, $2500 for the Building Commissioner and $2500 for the Secretary and Treasurer—more money than some of the teachers earn in a year. (The Board of Education approved these increases last night.)

Last year the custodians and matrons had to go on strike to get a $20-a-month increase.

It's the same old story: It's not what you are but who you are.

CHARLES SCHROEDER.

The Lulus of Senator Quinn

Few legislators who have had the good luck to be re-elected time after time have advocated more faulty, foolish and harmful bills than Senator William M. Quinn, who represents Northeast Missouri. In yesterday's Post-Dispatch Curtis Betts wrote of "Quinn, with a long record of opposition to the present nonpolitical highway system and a long record of consistent opposition to modernization of governmental agencies."

We might mention a few of the lulus Senator Quinn has fathered at Jefferson City. The 1935 "Quinn bill" would have thrown the State Highway Department and eleemosynary institutions right into the spoils system by requiring all their employes to register their political affiliations.

That same year Mr. Quinn backed another monstrosity which would have increased, without cause, the revenue of Public Administrators from the estates they manage. In 1939, the Senator introduced a bill which would have gutted the game and wildlife program by depriving the Missouri Conservation Commission of authority to enforce its regulations.

In 1945, Senator Quinn gave his best to a bill which would have scrapped the present nonpartisan and nonsectional State Highway Commission and reconstituted it with 10 members, each to be chosen from one of 10 districts rather than from the state as a whole. This measure to balkanize the highway system and favor rural roads at the expense of major highways passed the Legislature but was vetoed by Gov. Donnelly.

But Senator Quinn is a determined man. He has laid his plans ahead of time for the present session. His fine hand can be seen in the make-up of the new Senate Committee on Roads and Highways. He himself is a member of the committee, which he was not appointed to at the last session. Nine of the 13 members, including Quinn, voted at the last session to pass the vetoed bill over the Governor's opposition. Only two opponents of the Quinn bill, 1945 version, are to be found on the new committee.

Gov. Donnelly can be depended on to veto any new effort to translate Mr. Quinn's ideas on highways into law, but the state may as well get set for another fight. The Senate voted to override the Governor's veto last time, and the House might well have done so had not attendance been so sparse at its later meetings.

If the issue is decided by count of heads between the city and rural districts, the Quinn proposals will prevail. But the division cannot logically be made on city-country lines. City residents are interested in seeing good roads in the rural counties to which they go for business purposes, for vacation and weekend outings. Rural residents are interested in fast major highways to the cities. There is no reason why the nonsectional approach on highways should not work just as well in the future as it has worked for the past quarter-century.

Missouri admittedly does need some new highway legislation. But there is no chance for it to get what it needs through a committee dominated backstage by Senator Quinn. It has been suggested that a joint special highway committee be appointed to consist of four members from each house, with the chairman of the State Highway Commission as a ninth member.

The idea has merit, and Gov. Donnelly, who omitted the subject of highway legislation from his message the other day, may have some such plan in mind. Whatever the device employed, those responsible should get busy and see that Senator Quinn doesn't seize the initiative.

Odd Jobs

New Yorker John McElroy's unusual profession of removing beards, mustaches et al. drawn on billboards by doodlers, suggests that oddity ought not to be allowed to stand in the way of other new and needed professions. If doodling can create jobs, so should divers favorite American pastimes.

We propose, therefore, a large number of openings for people who will card, spin and weave the enormous amount of wool gathered annually by wool-gatherers; who will quick-freeze, and donate to people who grope for words, all the heated remarks which are continually being made by motorists, married couples, and the statesmen of friendly nations; and who will index and present to any deserving ashcan the wishful thinking which goes on from time to time, namely 1 a.m. to 12:59 a.m., inclusive.

The Straitjacket of 1876

The invisible boundaries which chop Greater St. Louis into two-score political subdivisions are increasing obstacles to progress. The metropolis of New York met these same obstacles 25 years ago. What New York did about it is told in the Mirror of Public Opinion, and should be a useful example for St. Louis.

Threatened with obsolescent facilities, lack of co-ordination and traffic congestion, New York and New Jersey formed the Port of New York Authority. The 12 directors are appointed equally by the two Governors. The authority makes no profit, but is self-supporting. It serves millions of inhabitants without regard to city or state lines.

The authority's success in providing tunnels, bridges and highways has led to a request that it consider airport operation. Its latest venture is the world's largest freight terminal, to speed delivery of goods brought in by trucks and helicopter. The terminal will save annually about 1,830,000 miles of travel on New York streets.

So New York overcame political barriers in trade and transportation. But in Greater St. Louis, the political core of the area has been bound up by a city line dated 1876. Maybe it was a fitting boundary for horsecar transportation. Today airplane passengers can't see it. Yet the issues created by modern commerce are stymied by a nineteenth century political design.

The folly of that proposition is obvious on both sides of the Mississippi—when highways on one side lead to byways on the other, when St. Louis suffers from East St. Louis smoke that is sometimes created by St. Louis-owned factories, when both sides dispute what airport should go where.

New York has shown us how to move beyond such urban provincialism. And last week, the Metropolitan Plan Association decided to work for an interstate agency here. Nothing will be solved by simply erasing city lines, but there are a host of problems such as aviation, transportation and drainage which will not submit to political subdivision.

The effort of the Metropolitan Plan Association deserves close attention and full support. Greater St. Louis will have to break out of its 1876 straitjacket to rescue its future.

Graustark in Georgia

King Herman I, of the royal House of Talmadge, has been crowned ruler of Georgia by the State's General Assembly, in royal succession to the late King Eugene I. Le roi est mort, vive le roi! It has all been done with the fantastic trappings of an opera bouffe Graustark, well befitting the heir presumptive of the Wild Man from Sugar Creek.

With whoops and hollers, the Legislature elected Herman Talmadge Governor, overriding the claim of Lieut.-Gov.-Elect M. E. Thompson to that office. The new leader of Georgia wool hatdom led a march on the Governor's office, there was a fist fight, and the Talmadgeites installed themselves in an anteroom. Gov. Arnall installed himself in his office with his Adjutant-General, Talmadge appointed himself an Adjutant-General, and each prepared to call out the guard.

It is all reminiscent of the melee which Eugene I himself staged in the last decade, calling out the state militia to oust a recalcitrant Comptroller General bodily from his offices, cut open the State's safe with blow torches, and stuff a million dollars' worth of the State's money into the pockets of a specially appointed State Treasurer, from whose pants $1000 bills bloomed as dogwood blossoms from the boughs of spring.

The native Fascists come and go, but the methods of native Fascism stay pretty much the same, incredible, monotonous and embarrassing. Once again a Talmadge is representing Georgia to the nation and to the world as a domain of wild-eyed rednecks who act like freaks. Eugene I carried it far enough to discredit the state's educational system, which Ellis Arnall restored. How far will Herman I be permitted to carry it by those of the people of Georgia who detest hoodlumism and who are determined that their state must be able to hold up its head, not to be laughed at, but to be respected?

Three-Letter Word

Thomas D. Whitelaw had only been a regular bus driver about four years when his good friend "Johnny" Dougherty gave him an additional job as Deputy Sheriff. So Whitelaw told the Circuit Judges that he didn't have an outside job, because he "interpreted the question to mean whether I had an outside job that interfered with my duties as deputy."

There's nothing quite like a gift for interpretation, we always say, unless it's a gift of tongues. When the two are thus combined in one man, isn't there a three-letter word to describe what happens?

Sound Sense on Portal-to-Portal

It remained for a union leader, H. A. Bradley, of Akron, president of the AFL. International Chemical Workers, to cut through the overnight jungle growth of verbiage and damage suits inspired by the Mount Clemens (Mich.) portal-to-portal back pay decision of the Supreme Court.

While judges, members of Congress, employers and the public generally scratched their heads in puzzlement as to what to do about further definition of the work week, the legality of retroactive legislation, the use of statutes of limitation, Mr. Bradley put the responsibility for finding the way out squarely on the unions themselves.

His advice, in a word, was for unions to get out of the mess and to get out fast. Do not, he said, "be a cry baby." Why had so many suits been filed? Because, said Mr. Bradley, many lawyers "are interested only in their own compensation and in using your unions, your job and your future compensation as chips in their gambling game. They have nothing to lose but a little time."

But what about those cases in which locals claim their members must ring the time clock prior to the customary starting time? Where such conditions exist, said Mr. Bradley, "the local union certainly has been lax in guarding the interests of its members."

How will labor come out if it persists in pushing portal pay suits, good, bad and indifferent?

> If the labor union is to use every device it can to conjure up to punish the employer, you can only expect treatment in kind. The employer is going to punish you for past failings, and very few unions are in a position to say that they have not violated their past contracts.
> I urge all local unions and all members to use common sense and not be carried away by the Communistic philosophy of "damn all employers."

This is a break in the stampede to the courts. Mr. Bradley has distinguished his union and has done organized labor a real service.

Secrecy Wins—Temporarily

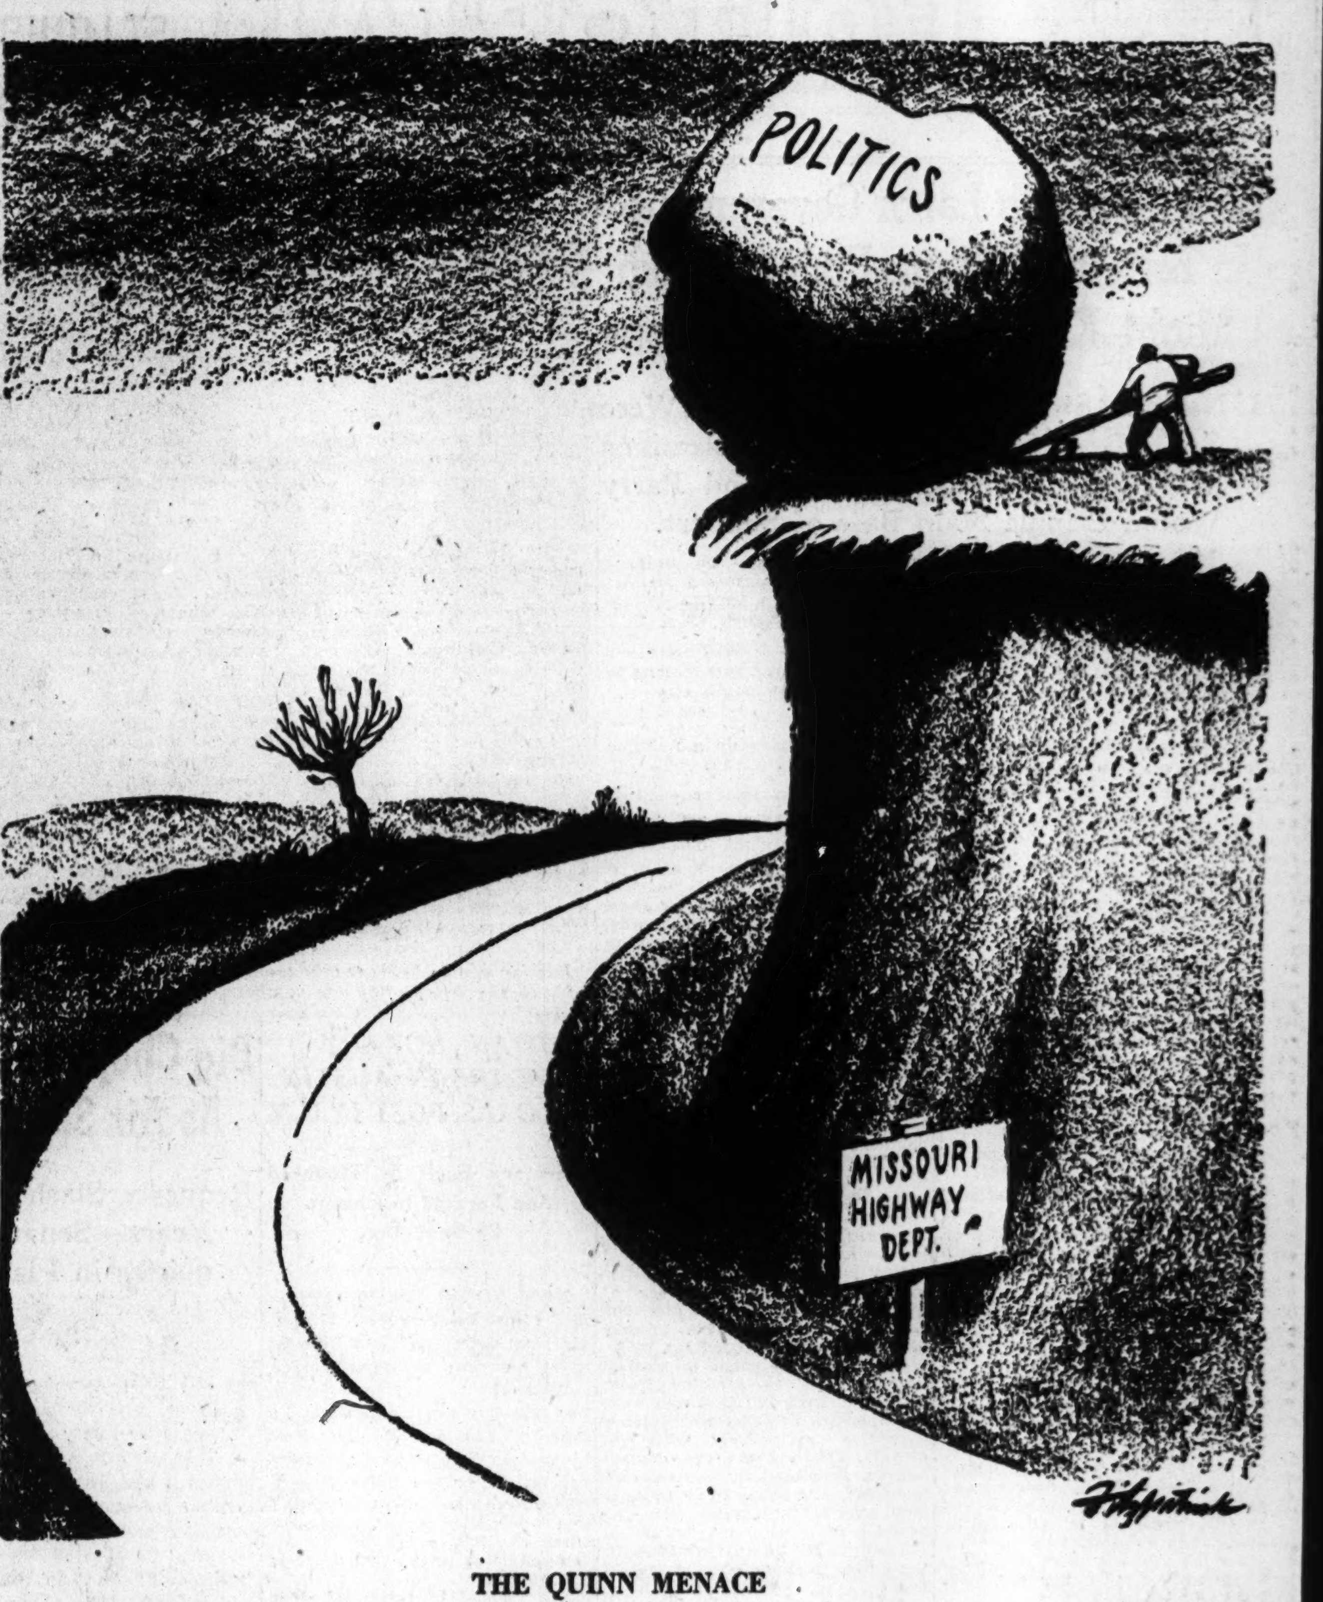
Can a "little body of willful men" set aside the Missouri Constitution and get by with it?

This question is put squarely before the people of this State by the deliberate refusal of the Missouri Senate, in contrast to the action in the House, to comply with the constitutional requirement of an open record on votes by committees on proposed legislation.

The issue could not be more sharply joined. Although a first-term member, Senator Hawkins of Brumley broke with the Republican bosses and bravely forced a vote on his amendment to open committee decisions to the light of day. The scant support he received on the voice vote is no measure of the rightness of Senator Hawkins or of his cause. It measures only the faithlessness of the majority of the Missouri Senate.

The contention of Senator Robinett of Mountain Grove that the rule of secrecy is required to protect committee members from "crucifixion by pressure groups" will impress no one. He knows full well what the screen has been used for in the past—to hide the conniving of lobbyists and legislators who vote one way and talk the other. A man who is afraid to say how he votes has no business being in the Legislature.

This is not the end of the secrecy issue. The fight for conducting the people's business in the open is going on. No group of men who owe their seats to popular election can long stand in contempt of the State Constitution.



THE QUINN MENACE

An Interstate Agency to the Rescue

The Mirror of Public Opinion

New York and New Jersey formed their Port Authority to revive a failing seaport; it has built bridges, tunnels and freight terminals and is turning to aviation; authority is self-supporting; Metropolitan Plan Association has proposed a similar agency for St. Louis.

Howard S. Cullman, Chairman, Port of New York Authority, in the New York Times Magazine

Twenty-five years ago harbor commerce had outgrown its facilities. Traffic was slowing down; business was drifting away to other ports. The situation demanded drastic treatment. And so the states of New York and New Jersey joined hands to create the Port of New York Authority, whose task was to co-ordinate the terminal facilities of the port district, build bridges and tunnels linking geographical units and thus channel commerce more efficiently.

In the quarter-century which ended last year vast changes have been made by the Port Authority in the physical layout of the port district and its transportation system.

As the authority enters its second 25 years, it is fully aware that the war brought about a revolution in transportation. We face immediate challenges. We must not only maintain the New York-New Jersey port as the surest, fastest and cheapest gateway to the world; we must promote the development of New York as a world air center. This means still better co-ordination, more airfields and terminals, a far more flexible system, for tomorrow competition will be keener than ever.

Like a Business Concern

Although the authority resembles a business corporation, there are essential differences. First, it is non-profit-making. Second, it performs only those tasks authorized by the legislatures of New York and New Jersey. Since the authority carries out its projects on a self-supporting basis, it does not cost the taxpayer a penny. It sells bonds to finance a bridge or terminal, and the revenues from the enterprise eventually liquidate the debt.

To the public we are best known for our trans-Hudson crossings—the George Washington Bridge and the Holland and Lincoln Tunnels—and for our Bayonne and Goethals bridges and the Outerbridge Crossing, all connecting Staten Island with New Jersey. But equally important developments are in prospect.

There will soon be added to our present facilities the two largest truck-freight terminals in the world, now under construction in Manhattan and Newark. We propose to build a "Grand Central Station" for intercity busses and we are making improvements at the Port Authority's Grain Terminal on Gowanus Bay, Brooklyn, which is destined to play an increasingly important part in the export trade. Our Union Railroad Freight Station in the Port Authority Building on Eighth avenue is proving of increasing value as a "post office" for freight.

Area-Wide Traffic Plan

The noose of traffic congestion which chokes business in the port area will be loosened as a result of highway improvements in northern New Jersey and metropolitan New York. The authority has launched plans for speeding up vehicular traffic between New Jersey and New York through the construction of a new four-lane Holland Tunnel exit viaduct and the completion of two more George Washington Bridge traffic lanes. The second George Washington Bridge tunnel at 179th street will quicken the flow of traffic to the expressway over the Harlem and East River drives.

Our immediate freight and passenger terminal program, which involves $25,000,000, will reduce transport costs and relieve street-traffic congestion, which now takes a toll of $1,000,000 a day from New York business. One of our important tasks is to assist in re-establishing coastwise and intercoastal shipping, a serious war casualty, and we must be constantly on the watch for political rate-rigging and other discriminatory practices.

Crossroads in the Air

Finally we must foster the development of air transport in the Port District. Three of the world's largest and most efficient airports—Idlewild, LaGuardia and Newark—are the port district's chief ground facilities for this growing business. Altogether there are 18 airports in the area—10 in New York and eight in New Jersey. Undoubtedly we shall see great developments, including expanded and improved airports and efficient equipment for transporting passengers and freight to the airfields.

Idlewild, LaGuardia and Newark will be developed to capacity, with Idlewild capable of handling about 2000 plane movements a day, LaGuardia 400 and Newark more than 1000. There will be no question of competition between airports in this area. The problem will be to find room for planes that want to use our fields. Eventually, I believe that the Port of New York will be recognized as the premier crossroads of the air-trade lanes.

There is talk these days about the dark fate that awaits the old-time seaport. The prophets of air transport insist that the airplane will make the seaport obsolete. They are sure that great planes will rob surface ships of their passengers and freight, ignore shorelines and come to earth far inland to make virtual front-porch delivery.

"A Commercial Emporium"

There is some truth in this, but the Port of New York will be far more likely to expand than to contract in an era of air transportation because it is a tremendous generator of traffic, as well as a transit point for large areas of the country. The port is perhaps peculiarly immune to deterioration through air transport competition with surface carriers. We must not forget that we are more than a great seaport. We are what some of our early admirers called us, "the great commercial emporium of America."

In the next 10 years I believe we shall find in the Port of New York the most modern transportation facilities available anywhere, and they will handle the greatest volume of land, sea and air traffic in our history. We will prove that our "traffic potential" is sufficient to save us from the fate which air prophets say will be ours.

We of the Port Authority believe that our busiest years lie ahead, that the history of our first quarter-century is merely an indication of things to come. We have deep faith in the harbor's future.

She Fought for Liberty

ANNA ZENGER: MOTHER OF FREEDOM, by Kent Cooper. (Farrar, Straus & Co., New York.)

This novelized biography of Anna Zenger, "the first woman in the world to conduct a newspaper," was written by the versatile executive director of the Associated Press to give her just recognition for her part in establishing freedom in this country.

The story is of colonial New York City, beginning in 1721. Anna Maulin, religious, cultured and intelligent ("her father was Dutch, her mother was French, and she spoke English—so that made her an American!") had a brief romance with Francis Harrison, confidante of the English governor. She married John Peter Zenger, an immigrant who had learned the printing trade under William Bradford, "printer to the King." He set up a shop of his own, and is pictured as a methodical, unambitious, though somewhat artistic printer.

The political intrigues of the British governor and Francis Harrison aroused much discontent in the colony. Anna conceived the idea of a newspaper which would expose them, and would uphold the rights of the colonists. Her husband lacked her zeal and imagination, and passed the idea on to Bradford, who then established the city's first newspaper, the Gazette. However, it was closely supervised by the Governor's agents, and printed nothing to offend them.

Anna persuaded her husband to establish an independent newspaper, and on Nov. 5, 1733, he issued the New York Weekly Journal. It dared to print the truth about the Governor and his henchmen, so he had Zenger thrown in jail. There has been historical controversy regarding the authorship of the outspoken editorials, and some attribute them to various leading colonists. This author, however, attributes them to Anna Zenger. His fiction presents her as the only logical one responsible, and his arguments and authentic documents printed in the appendix tend to justify his thesis.

During the months Zenger was in jail Anna continued to print the paper, though without further offending the Governor. Finally when the case was brought to trial the renowned Andrew Hamilton made a dramatic plea and offerred an incontestible argument in support of Zenger, to the amazement of the court, and he was freed. Freedom of the press to print the truth was legally established.

This story seems entirely plausible, is well constructed, and dramatic. It is a thoroughly interesting historical novel, and will add distinction to the memory of Anna Zenger.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Mr. Vandenberg on Foreign Policy

AT Cleveland Senator Vandenberg was speaking for the first time as the leader of the majority party in foreign affairs. In such a speech what counts is not the detail of his views on this or that question but the general conception and the spirit with which he approaches all questions.

In that perspective the speech should bring confidence. It is a magnanimous speech. Mr. Vandenberg carries his new and greatly increased authority with a fine restraint and a convincing sincerity.

Change of Emphasis.

Thus he has ceased to speak of a bi-partisan foreign policy and speaks instead of the need to "hammer out a permanent American foreign policy." This change of words and of emphasis is the surest sign that we are at the end of the long period of doubt and division, which has lasted since the beginning of the first World War.

The question is no longer whether the peace and order of the world are a vital interest of the United States. That question, which has divided the country and perplexed the world for more than 30 years, is settled. Henceforth the question is how, not whether, the United States is to play its part.

Mr. Vandenberg spoke of the need for "broad gauged reorganization" of the State Department and the Foreign Service, "particularly to develop more long-range planning so that there need be less catch-as-catch-can improvisation and expediency." All will agree that this is needed. But the practical question is where to begin.

Place to Begin.

The place to begin is, it seems to me, in the Council of Foreign Ministers. For the fact is that if Gen. Marshall has to spend most of his time negotiating with M. Molotov in the Council of Foreign Ministers, he will be quite unable to reorganize, or to organize, or to do much long-range planning. Unless the Council of Foreign Ministers is reformed, there is little prospect that Senator Vandenberg's demand can be met for a reorganization of the conduct of foreign affairs.

The Council of Foreign Ministers was invented back in the days when Churchill, Stalin and Roosevelt were the Big Three. The idea then was that the Big Three would settle the basic issues, and that the Foreign Ministers would thresh out the terms of the agreements.

Costly to U. S.

But when Roosevelt died, Churchill fell from power, and Stalin became almost inaccessible, the Council of Foreign Ministers proved to be a most unsatisfactory instrument. It could not settle the issues which only the heads of governments can settle, and therefore became entangled in tortuous quarrels and compromises.

The Council has proved to be especially costly to the United States. Mr. Molotov could afford to sit there day after day arguing over side issues; behind him in Moscow there were Stalin and the Politburo. Even Mr. Bevin could afford to engage himself in the endless discussion. For Britain through long experience has developed Cabinet Government.

Sharing the Work.

But Mr. Byrnes has no one behind him at home to back him up, to do the thinking and the planning which it was quite impossible for him to do while he was exhausting his energy wrestling with Mr. Molotov.

Mr. Byrnes paid for the months he spent on Trieste and the Balkans. He paid with his own health, and he paid by neglecting Germany, Japan, the Pacific and Latin America.

It would be surprising, it seems to me, if Gen. Marshall did not make it his business to find some way of disengaging himself from the clutches of the Council of Foreign Ministers. As Chief of Staff he did not take personal command of any one of the many operations which he planned. It is unlikely that as Secretary of State he will attempt to do personally work that can be delegated to Ambassadors and peace commissioners.

For only by delegating the task of negotiating can he hope to do the work which the Secretary of State cannot delegate—the work, as Senator Vandenberg put it, of hammering out a united American foreign policy.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Democratic Italy's Call for Help

ONCE again as at Paris, the Italian Premier, Alcide de Gasperi, has raised his voice, not only in behalf of his country, but in behalf of that free, democratic civilization to which we still belong. He was in a more difficult situation than at Paris for he spoke, not to all allied peacemakers together, but to the American people, and I thought he showed tact in steering away from the reefs of internal American divergencies and rifts between the great powers.

Yet he could not disguise his realization of the unity of European and American civilization, though he avoided any special pleading on its behalf. While he was speaking there were hunger demonstrations in Rome, and the papers which reported his speech brought a photograph of the ragged bodies and pallid faces of the demonstrators.

Cheers for Stalin.

Also, while he was speaking, a Socialist congress in Italy led by Signor Nenni, who favors a united front with the Communists, heard cheers for Russia and Stalin and hisses for the Western nations. Hunger, unemployment, and above all, disillusionment, do not breed democracy but revolution.

Signor De Gasperi has never been a revolutionist, Fascist or Red. He is a constructionist, who hopes to move into the future over a bridge one end of which rests upon a solid and great humanistic tradition. He does not want to wade into the future through new prisons of terror and rivers of blood. He believes that great, happy, and peaceful civilizations cannot be built by howling masses swayed by skillful leaders, but by the co-operation of free men.

But he also knows that the conditions essential to the creation of free democratic societies are not summarized in freedom of speech, religion and assembly. These, indeed, can be the instruments for their destruction if work, bread, and hope are lacking.

When Italy, on demand, surrendered unconditionally, under a Government which had already ousted Mussolini, and afterward made no mean contribution to our victory, we assumed complete responsibility for the lives of the Italian people and the future of the Italian nation. Total victory is also total burden except for such as can think in terms of acquiring slaves. We cannot so think for we know that the world cannot survive half slave and half free, and we should like to remain free ourselves.

Our Responsibility.

But the burden which we assumed was the greater because of peculiar problems of Italy, some of which Signor de Gasperi indicated. Forty-six million people live in a country the size of California, with nothing like California's resources of land or industrial raw materials. Only 50 per cent of Italy's soil is arable; she has almost no coal, oil, or minerals; and with world-wide restrictions on immigration she is unable to export her surplus population, as she did for generations.

Desperate for Trade.

Premier De Gasperi did not attack the peace treaty now ready for presentation, except by indirection. This column has no such inhibitions.

The treaty deprives Italy of all her coal — never enough, but amounting to a million and a quarter tons annually. Italy's other coal came from Poland; German Silesia, now also Polish; the Ruhr and England. The Polish and East-German coal is now going in large part to the Soviet Union and is within the Soviet's economic system. The Ruhr is practically at a standstill, England has a coal crisis of her own. So Italy can only get coal from the United States.

But Italy can pay for it only in exported goods. Hence Premier De Gasperi's plea that America take the lead in general tariff reduction. I greatly doubt that we shall do so, so where is Italy to go for raw materials?

The only other place is the economic complex of the U. S. S. R. For Italy's population, deprived of colonial outlets, open to Soviet military pressure on indefensible borders, and cut off from the Danubian hinterland by the Venezia Giulia arrangement, can only subsist by an intensification of industrialization on the basis of imported raw materials which she must pay for in finished goods. In a capitalist but protective-tariff world she will, in the long run, be unable to purchase those materials in places from which her exports are barred.

Wreckage and Relief.

Italy, even within the proposed frontiers, can be a viable state only if, first, there were assurance that those frontiers would be defended against aggression, and, second, if the democratic world would show capacity for international planning.

Either the existing markets must be widened or new markets must be created by imaginative projects. The Western world has enough know-how for this; what it lacks is cohesive intelligence and will. So far—except for Winston Churchill—no Western statesman has shown any comprehension of the over-all problems of Europe, or produced any blueprint for dealing with them. We continue to contribute to the economic wreckage, while taxing ourselves to relieve the results.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LILY KAYSER WILL BE TOMORROW MORNING

Funeral services for Mrs. Lily M. Kayser, wife of Julius A. Kayser, vice president of the Laclede-Christy Clay Products, who died yesterday after a lengthy illness, will be tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Robert J. Ambruster undertaking establishment, 6633 Clayton road, Clayton. Burial will be in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Kayser, a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, was 44 years old and lived at 8425 Colonial Lane, Ladue. In addition to her husband she is survived by two daughters, Ruth Elizabeth and Doris Lillian Kayser.

NEW PRESIDING BISHOP ON SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Says Church Co-operation and Peace Conferences Give Hope for Betterment.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill said yesterday on his installation as Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church that "if we truly believe, then brotherhood becomes more than a slogan."

"It becomes a conviction that we belong, all of us, to the family of God," he said.

An installation ceremony of colorful pageantry was held in the unfinished Washington cathedral, participated in by more than 50 bishops of the church, prominent laymen, government officials and interdenominational groups.

The new presiding bishop told the throng:

"I am not naive enough to believe that the solution of our present difficult problems is easy or simple. I know full well the complexities of our world. But I am convinced that these questions, whether of international conferences, of industry or labor, of the home, of education, or of human relationships can only be given satisfactory and definite answer by the standard of the mind and spirit of Him we call our Lord and Master."

Bishop Sherrill named as challenges to the Christian world the evidences of racial and religious intolerance, the growing divorce rate, juvenile delinquency and broken homes. He saw hope for betterment in the growing co-operation of the great Christian communions, the creation of the United Nations and peace conferences.

"If there are stern realities to be faced courageously and realistically, it is equally true that there are firm grounds for encouragement. . . . It is not so long ago that the Christian who talked of the family of nations, of human brotherhood . . . was considered an impractical dreamer. Now we know that such a Christian talked hard common sense. The organization of the United Nations, the proposals for world government, every peace conference . . . prove the essential correctness of the Christian view of the world and human nature."

Bishop Sherrill, from Boston, was installed as successor to the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker in a special ceremony patterned after that for installation of an archbishop in England. It is the first time the church in this country has formally installed its presiding bishop. Previously he has taken office without fanfare.

DONATION FOR NEW ORGAN IS GIVEN TO CLAYTON CHURCH

A gift of a new organ for St. Michael and St. George's Episcopal Church, 6345 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, was announced at the annual parish meeting by the Rev. J. Francis Sant, rector.

The donation, to cover the cost of a new instrument up to $30,000, was made by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Moreno, 24 Brentmoor park, Clayton, and their daughter, Mrs. E. G. Bischoff.

A proposal to replace the present organ, installed when the church was built and considered inadequate since the building was enlarged about 20 years ago, had been placed before the church body when announcement of the gift was made.

PAGANINI QUARTET DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

THE Paganini String Quartet opened the series of concerts being given by the Ethical Society last night in the Sheldon Auditorium. The presence of a capacity audience, strongly weighted with professional musicians and special devotees of the small ensemble, made for a high order of susceptibility and appreciation. The fact that this was the first visiting quartet of the first rank to play in St. Louis since the last appearance of the long dispersed Flonzaleys undoubtedly had much to do with the large attendance.

It was a heartening occasion for the promoters. It proved that there is an audience for chamber music in St. Louis. The response to the music showed plainly that lofty conception and finished execution will always find their mark.

The Paganini Quartet is engaged in its first season of concerts. Already the ensemble gives every evidence of unified musical thinking and if last night's concert was an example, is capable of a facility, a precision, a fusion of sound, and a tonal range wholly adequate to the masterly projection of anything in the quartet literature. A slight exception, however, can be taken to the Mozart "Hunt" quartet which opened the program. It was beautiful in sound, pure in its conception and was in every respect a subtly inflected performance. Yet it sounded a little cautious. Certainly it could have ranged through a wider compass of expressiveness without compromising the essential character of the music.

What seemed a lack of boldness may be a sign that the process of reaching an instinctive, common understanding is not yet complete. Or it may be that was the way the players saw it and will always see it.

The most complete authority was manifest in the Debussy quartet which was communicated with an aptness of feeling that permeated every organic element of the four movements. One could easily have become bemused with the exquisite treatment of details and with the controlled perceptiveness necessary to obtain it. The temptation to consider it part by part however, was never yielded to because the fluidity of movement was constant. It was the sort of playing in which line and texture were always equally manifest and in the end could be regarded as a creative marvel that charmed the senses while satisfying the deepest feeling for design.

Schumann Quartet in F Major was thoroughly well realized, but the music, itself, seemed inhibited. Such a commentary is always subjective and others in the audience may have found that it had a freely realized poetic sweep. In any case the response was enthusiastic.

The quartet was composed of Henri Temianka, first violin; Gustave Rooseels, second violin; Robert Courte, viola, and Robert Maas, formerly of the Pro-Arte Quartet and a chamber music veteran of international reputation. All were playing Strads. The rich quality and tonal depth of the instruments, naturally, did not go unremarked.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE Fourth Friday Dancing Club, organized 26 years ago and one of the oldest organizations of its kind in this area, will meet Friday night for the third time this year. The party, beginning with dinner, will be given as usual in the Tower Room of the Congress Hotel.

Three dances, one each in November and December and January, make up the club's regular schedule and often a fourth party is held before Lent. A dance next month will close the current season.

Of the charter members only four—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hudson Barstow and Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Avis—are active and rarely miss a meeting. New members are chosen from a long waiting list.

Mrs. John C. Tobin is president of the club, which is administered by a board of directors. Other board members are Mr. Tobin, Mr. and Mrs. Owen H. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Dobler, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz K. Ayers, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Campbell, Dr. and Mrs. Garald V. Stryker, Culver Hastedt, William H. Dulany and Dunham B. Dodge.

St. Louisans on mid-winter vacations in Florida include Mrs. James O'Malley Davies, 501 Clara avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, 8 Portland place, who left about 10 days ago for Palm Beach. There they are guests at The Breakers and will remain until the middle of next month.

Mrs. John W. Harrison, 625 South Skinker boulevard, plans to depart next month for Florence, Ala., to visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Eads Harrison for several weeks.

Mrs. Harrison's daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Eads Campbell, returned Saturday to her home in Harrisburg, Pa., after spending six weeks with Mrs. Harrison. During the holidays they visited Mrs. Harrison's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Price, in Winnetka, Ill.

Miss Margot Blue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Avon Blue, 5112 Westminster place, will depart in a week for New York, to resume her studies in voice. She came here for the holidays. Her brother, William MacK. Blue, has returned to the Lenox School, Lenox, Mass., and her cousin, Scott Skinner, who makes his home with the Blues, to the Southern Arizona School for Boys, Tucson. Both boys are seniors.

Mrs. Ernest John Krause, 17 Clermont lane, Ladue, returned a few days ago from Columbus, O., where she spent the holiday season with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bartlett Haas. She is now staying at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Krause II, 637 West Polo drive, Clayton, with her grandson, John Krause, whose parents are vacationing in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

THE engagement of Miss Virginia Kammerer to L. William Bergesch was announced last night at an informal party, attended by members of her bridge club, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Webb L. Kammerer, 7218 Maryland avenue.

News of the betrothal was told by means of the floral engegement ring bearing the names of the couple, suspended above the living room mantel. The wedding, for which plans are incomplete, is scheduled to take place in March.

Both Miss Kammerer and her fiance are graduates of Washington University. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Bergesch son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis W. Bergesch, 5459 Cabanne avenue, belongs to Phi Delta Theta.

Guests at the announcement were Miss Marjorie Gravely, Mrs. William Rider, Mrs. Donald Grose, Mrs. Frank St. Cyr, Mrs. Raymond Mills, Miss Bernice Ziegler, Mrs. Rexford Caruthers, Mrs. William Kincade, Mrs. Donald Muntz, Mrs. William I. Pixley, Miss Eloise Engle, Miss Lois Matheis, Miss Dorothy Trembley, Miss Jane McCammon and Mrs. Allen Clark.

Mrs. Kammerer entertained Mrs. Bergesch, her sister, Miss Laura Schiermeier; Miss Dorothy Kammerer, aunt of the bride-to-be, and Miss Anne Ahrens of Kansas City, Mrs. Kammerer's cousin, who is visiting here.

Miss Rovee to Be Wed.

MR. AND MRS. MORTON S. ROVEE, 7506 Byron place, Clayton, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Suzanne Rovee, to Maurice Gaines of Chicago. The wedding will take place at the Standard Club in Chicago on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 26. Only the immediate families will witness the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock.

The bride-to-be received her A.B. degree from Washington University last June and is now enrolled in the graduate school, where she is studying psychology and modern art. She is the sister of Mrs. Joseph Klee Salomon of Chicago, the former Miss Jane Rovee.

Mr. Gaines is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Gaines and the brother of A. J., Dan and Harry Gaines, all of Chicago. He completed his undergraduate and graduate studies in forestry and engineering at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and served more than four years in the Army. He was released last March as a captain.

Mr. Gaines and his fiancee have planned a wedding trip by plane to Florida, Nassau and New York, after which they will live in Chicago.

SYMPHONY STUDENT CONCERT TOMORROW

Second of High School Series at 3 P. M. at Kiel Auditorium.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will present the second student concert of the high school series at Kiel Auditorium at 3 p.m. tomorrow.

Vladimir Golschmann will conduct a program including the overture to "Tgmont" by Beethoven; the ballet music from "Coppelia" by Delibes; nocturne and Scherzo from the incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn; prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy, and the second and fourth movements from Dvorak's "New World" symphony.

Instruments will be demonstrated by members of the orchestra.

Sale of tickets is handled through the schools. The next of the high school concerts, following tomorrow's, will be Feb. 20.

JOSEPH ERBER FUNERAL HELD; FORMER THEATER OPERATOR

Funeral services for Joseph Erber, one-time vaudeville and motion picture theater operator, were held yesterday at Sunset Burial Park. He was 70 years old and lived at 5622 Delmar boulevard. He died Sunday at Jewish Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Erber built several theaters in East St. Louis. One of his buildings, which cost $460,000, is now the Palladium. His theater, the Lyric, was the first to present both vaudeville and motion pictures in one continuous show. In later years he had been serving as a relief manager for various theaters in the St. Louis area.

Mr. Erber married Sadie Franklin 46 years ago. She was, at that time, appearing at one of his theaters in Illinois in a well-known sister act, The Franklin Sisters. He is survived by her.

TRUMAN URGES STATES TO WORK FOR ROAD SAFETY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Truman today called on every state and community "to work unceasingly throughout 1947 to promote highway safety."

In a statement, the President said it is an appalling fact that 34,000 American citizens were killed in automobile accidents in 1946, and declared:

"The problem of reducing the death rate on the nation's highways remains one of the most serious problems in our daily life."

Asserting that legislatures of all but eight of the states are in session or soon will be, the President said:

"It is my hope that the recommendations of the President's highway safety conference with respect to uniform traffic regulations, especially in the licensing of drivers, and strict impartial enforcement of traffic codes, will have early attention. Much of our difficulty is due to lack of uniformity in traffic laws and to unstandardized warning and directional signs which often confuse and mislead."

However, the President reminded, "laws and regulations will be of little avail unless the individual driver holds himself strictly accountable to his own conscience."

U.S. REACTION TO RED REPORT ON SPITSBERGEN

They first came to light about the time the United States asked to keep control of wartime air bases in Iceland. Oslo informed this government that Russia had claimed special rights in Spitsbergen and had proposed a defense agreement.

It was learned subsequently that the Soviet proposal first was privately advanced in Moscow in 1944 by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to Trygve Lie, then Foreign Minister of the Norway Government in exile and now Secretary General of the United Nations.

This was in wartime when the United States was pouring lend-lease supplies into Russia by convoys running the gantlet of German submarine and air attack between Spitsbergen and Norway's north cape.

The Soviet secrecy contrasted with the open postwar proposals to Iceland to retain rights to air bases in that island. Russia and Britain were fully informed without delay. The proposal subsequently was dropped because of Icelandic objections.

MRS. THOMAS SAYMAN HEADS BOARD FOR SALVATION ARMY

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman, 5399 Lindell boulevard, was elected president of the Salvation Army's advisory board for St. Louis at a meeting at the Park Plaza Hotel last night.

She succeeds Allen May, who was chosen vice president. George Weber Jr., secretary, and M. W. Howe, treasurer, were re-elected. Officers of the advisory board for St. Louis County were re-elected. They are Charles A. Shaw, president; Edwin F. Chapman, vice president, and Everett Brooks, treasurer.

Principal speaker at the meeting was Lt. Com. Norman S. Marshall of Chicago, territorial commander of the Salvation Army. The financial report showed receipts from this area last year were $521,243, of which there was a balance of $135 after disbursements.

CITIZENS' TAX COMMISSION WILL HAVE 2 MAJOR GROUPS

Members of the new Citizens' Tax Commission will be divided into two major groups to study revenues and economies, it was announced yesterday following a meeting between Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, Chairman Robert E. Blake of the commission, and Charlton Chute, director of the Governmental Research Bureau.

Each of the larger groups will be asked to select a chairman and to divide itself into sub-committees to study individual aspects of the respective studies, it was announced.

Copies of the report made in 1941 by Griffenhagen and Associates, a firm which made a study of possible municipal economies, will be distributed to the group assigned to studies of that topic, Blake said. The first meeting of the commission will be held tomorrow in the Mayor's office.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE IS FILED AGAINST HERBERT F. BAUER

A suit for divorce from Herbert F. Bauer, building superintendent of the City Art Museum, was filed today in Circuit Court at Clayton by Mrs. Olivia Bauer. She charged general indignities.

In her petition, Mrs. Bauer alleged her husband had complained she was not co-operative. They were married in Waukegan, Ill., in 1925, and separated last Dec. 17, the petition stated. The Bauer home was at 1348 Midland avenue, University City.

Mrs. Bauer asked that she be given custody of the children, Joan, 19 years old, and Herbert Allen, 13. She also asked for support and maintenance for them and for herself.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (AP)—President Truman today appointed Frederick J. Lawton, 46-year-old native of Washington, to be acting assistant director of the Bureau of the Budget. Lawton succeeds Paul H. Appleby, whose resignation becomes effective tomorrow.

RESIDENTIAL AIRPORT BILL IS DISAPPROVED

Aldermanic Body Opposes Field at Morganford Road, River des Peres.

A bill which would authorize condemnation of land for a small airport at Morganford and the River des Peres and construction of the necessary facilities was unanimously disapproved today by the Public Utilities Committee of the Board of Aldermen. The committee recommended that the bill be filed, which in effect would kill it.

Charles E. Albanese, committee chairman, said it was the members' opinion that airports should not be built in residential areas. In addition, he said, they felt that taxpayers should not be expected to "subsidize an airport for personal flying and private pleasure, especially when there are fields for that purpose already in operation."

Construction of the airport has been indorsed by Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, the Municipal Airport Commission and a number of individuals and groups interested in flying. It is one of three airports which the Horner and Shifrin comprehensive airport plan for the St. Louis area proposed be built inside the city limits. The city recently filed an application for federal aid in the construction cost, estimated at $1,700,000.

The committee's recommendation is subject to action of the Board of Aldermen.

Bills which would require transfer of 5 per cent of gross receipts of the city's Water Department annually to general revenue, and to appropriate about $170,000 from water revenue for lining of two large water mains with cement, were approved by the committee.

The transfer of funds would correspond to the 5 per cent tax levied against revenues of private utilities by the city, and would yield about $200,000 a year for general revenue. It is a part of a program designed to result in complete separation of water and other accounts of the city.

The $170,000 fund, if approved, would pay for lining two- 60-inch water mains between the Stacey Park reservoir and South St. Louis. The mains, which are under Clayton road, have developed frequent leaks because of chemical action of the soil with the metal pipe. In the past five years repairs have totaled about $44,000, and in addition traffic on Clayton road has at times been seriously interfered with when the pavement was torn up so that work on the pipes could proceed.

FLOWER AND GARDEN SHOW TICKET SALE IS OPENED

Advance sale of tickets for the Greater St. Louis Flower and Garden show, to be at Kiel Auditorium March 18 through March 23, opened today. Tickets are on sale at flower shops, in the Arcade and in a booth at the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney department store.

The show will be based on the theme "Gardens for St. Louis." It will feature 100,000 square feet of gardens and flowers prepared by professional and amateur horticulturists.

Clifford L. Burkart is chairman of the advance ticket sale. Tickets will be 75 cents before March 15 and $1 after that date.

FAITH OF A FRIEND ENABLES MAN TO STAY IN BUSINESS

Radio Service Once Filed in Bankruptcy Goes Ahead Out of Debt.

The faith of a friend enabled Chester Gardner, operator of the Parkway Radio Service, 5470 North Kingshighway, to set a new local speed record in getting into and out of bankruptcy within 26 days, it was disclosed yesterday.

Gardner filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy last Nov. 13, listing liabilities of $1176.56 and assets of $277.80, mostly in radios and radio parts. On Dec. 9 he had his attorney file an application to dismiss the bankruptcy proceedings as he wanted to pay all his creditors in full.

The attorney, Edward C. Donnelly, told Referee in Bankruptcy Elmer E. Pearcy at the hearing on the application yesterday that all claims had been paid in full. All he knew about the situation, Donnelly continued, was that Gardner told him he had found a friend with sufficient faith in him to pay his debts so he could continue his business.

Gardner told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the repair business has been prosperous ever since it was opened about 18 months ago, but that he got into financial difficulties because of a situation in his private life which now is cleared up. He declined to reveal his benefactor, saying the friend preferred to remain anonymous.

CAA FUND CUTS CITED IN FIGHT OVER AIR SAFETY

The money question was raised in the House when Representative Hinshaw (Rep.). California, commenting on Wolverton's proposed investigation, said he hoped it would include "cases where the action or inaction of executive bodies including Congress with its power of appropriation may have some bearing."

Funds Requests Trimmed.

The record shows that of the money the CAA requested for the last seven fiscal years, it received 44 per cent in 1941, 52 per cent in 1942, 28 per cent in 1943, 14 per cent in 1944, 18 in 1945, 41 in 1946 and 60 in the current year.

Cuts were made both by the Budget Bureau, which must approve government agency requests before they go to Congress, and by congressional appropriations committees.

Original CAA estimates to the Budget Bureau were not made public. For the current fiscal year the Budget Bureau asked Congress for $1,200,000 for CAA development of radio, radar and other flying aids; the appropriation was $875,000.

For establishing air navigation facilities, the Budget Bureau asked for $23,809,000 and Congress granted $19,622,000. The corresponding figures for airways maintenance were $36,004,000 and $36,544,419, an increase over budget requests but said to be much less than CAA wanted.

For safety regulation, CAA got $7,075,000, a 32 per cent cut in what it desired.

These figures probably will be cited to answer claims of CAA tardiness in using wartime flying aids and modernizing the airways.

The budget submitted to Congress last week for fiscal 1948 asked for $25,194,000 for establishing navigation aids, $54,552,000 for airways maintenance, $1,600,000 for technical development and $10,925,000 for safety regulation.

BIG 4 DEPUTIES DEBATE AGENDA FOR PEACE TALKS

mission be established to study all claims.

Australia was understood to have given general approval to British and American drafts of an Austrian treaty of independence. The Australians also suggested measures for the federation of what is left of Germany, with strong federal states, and urged that a substantial lift be given to German economy to prevent the country from becoming a drain on the Allied and occupying powers.

Harmonious Atmosphere.

The atmosphere was reported to be harmonious as the deputies began closed hearings.

The deputies—from Britain, the United States, Russia and France—have decided to exclude reporters from the meetings.

Authoritative sources said that the deputies adopted a calm approach to their first tentative disagreement: Whether the German or Austrian treaty should take precedence in the discussions.

These informants said that when Gusev proposed that the German treaty be considered first, Viscount Hood of Britain, presiding, replied that the plan was for two meetings daily, one devoted to Germany and the other to Austria.

Robert Murphy and Gen. Mark Clark, United States representatives, reportedly supported Britain. France's Maurice Couve de Murville said he agreed with the Russians that the German treaty should be considered "more important," and agreed with the British that the treaties could be considered concurrently. The agenda for today was then set, but there was no clear-cut decision on what the policy would be in the future.

The language barrier between Russia and the West may have been responsible for the disagreement, persons present at the meeting said. They explained that when Gusev spoke of discussing Germany "first," the Western delegates thought he meant that the entire German treaty should be disposed of before Austria was taken up. Gusev could have meant, however, that he wanted to discuss the agenda for the German discussions before the agenda for the Austrian, these persons said.

GENE TIERNEY SEEKS DIVORCE; CHARGES 'MENTAL SUFFERING'

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15 (AP)—Actress Gene Tierney filed suit yesterday for a divorce from Oleg Cassini, costume designer. They were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1941, when she was 20 and he 28. She charged he "wrongfully inflicted grievous mental suffering upon her."

They separated last October and made a property settlement a month later under which the custody of their three-year-old daughter, Antoinette Daria, would be awarded to her mother with visitation rights to Cassini. The actress asks no alimony.

23 PCT. SMALL LOAN RATE BILL IN MISSOURI SENATE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 15—Legislation affecting small loan interest rates, which failed in the last legislature because of a veto by Gov. Donnelly, was introduced yesterday by Senator Jasper Smith of Springfield.

Smith's bill, which he said probably would be only the basis for working out some small-loan legislation, provides for a 10 per cent discount rate on loans up to $400, plus a loan fee of 3 per cent. This in effect is a rate of 23 per cent to be compared with the top rate of 27 per cent provided in the bill vetoed by the Governor. On loans in excess of $400 the rate is fixed in the Smith bill at 6 per cent

Possum Trot Farm

Agricultural Event Down at Ironton

By Leonard Hall

THE other day the farmers of Iron County held their nineteenth Annual Soils and Crops Conference. I think it speaks mighty well for our land owners that there were some present who had attended every one of these meetings since they started, and that this meeting was the largest in that 19-year period. Our business sessions were held in the fine old courthouse at Ironton, our county seat, and in a courtroom which needs little more than a new coat of plaster and paint, applied under the direction of an architect with some feeling for the tradition of this countryside, to make it epitomize the term "majesty of the law." Every time I hear rumors about "a new, modern courthouse for Iron County" I get again that feeling of wonder as to why we Missourians are so little proud of our past. But that's getting side-tracked from my theme before I've even started. After an interesting morning session, we all repaired to the big dining room at the Lone Pine Hotel, along with a score or more of the towns business men who are in many cases farmers themselves and who use this occasion each year to entertain their farmer friends and customers.

OUR PART of the county, the Belleview Valley, always turns out strong for these agricultural events; a fact which I attribute to our having a high percentage of good farmers. I guess there isn't a man among the lot—young or old, big farmer or small—who at this time of year wouldn't have to get up extra early and work extra late in order to spend most of his day in town listening to a discussion of how to be a better farmer. Moreover, you hear a lot of talk about farmers being hard-headed and set in their ways; yet I noticed a good many men in that audience whose beards were a whole lot grayer than mine and who've been good farmers for a long, long time. And maybe I shouldn't brag about the big attendance from Belleview Valley, for Jay McColl pointed out to me men who had driven in from every township. I guess the impression is caused by seeing the faces you recognize; Uncle Billy Sutton and Otho and Noel, Earl Chambers, Joe McCall, our neighbor Johnny Douglas, Joe Ricketts, John Lashly, Herb Russell—the folks we see up and down our road.

WELL—AFTER LUNCH we went back over to the courthouse and heard a talk so interesting that I think the highlights of it, at least, would be worth passing along. It was given by "Dixie" Paulling of the Department of Crops and Soils at the university. Paulling pointed out that at least 75 cents of every dollar that finds its way into the pocket of the Missouri farmer comes from the sale of livestock or livestock products such as milk, cream or eggs. The crops we raise, then, are raised primarily as feed for our stock—and our problem is to find the crops which will give us the most and best feed at the lowest money and labor cost. A program planned toward this end makes for profitable farming—and farmers have to make a profit to stay in business. In times past we have thought of livestock feed mainly in terms of grain such as corn—despite its high labor cost to raise, harvest and feed and despite the fact that it costs us from 60 to 300 times as much in loss of topsoil through erosion as does a grass crop which makes a tight sod. Moreover, because of this false value which we've attributed to the grain crops we've drained our best land by planting it to grain and have "orphaned" our potentially profitable pasture crops by relegating them to the poorer soils on the farm.

THE REAL JOB, as Paulling made us see it, is to balance our system of farming to our climate and the potentialities of our soil. We have climate and soils ideally adapted to livestock production through the proper and maximum use of pasture. As contrasted to the great dairying states of Wisconsin and Minnesota, that have four months in which to raise their feed for the other eight, we Missouri farmers have at least eight months in which to raise feed for the other four. If we take full advantage of this eight-month season—and there are dirt farmers right here in our neighborhood who are doing it—we have a tremendous advantage in lower labor costs, higher yields and a minimum dran on the fertility of our land. The job is to set up a system of farming whereby one pasture crop succeeds another throughout the year—crops that the livestock will harvest themseves and which, in many cases, need no annual tillage other than that necessary to keep the pasture grasses in good condition. As the system works toward maximum efficiency, the farmer cuts, bales and feeds less hay—plants, cultivates, harvests and feeds less corn (or better yet, buys what grain he needs).

HE DOES, in most parts of Missouri, depend on a small grain and lespedeza combination for spring and summer pasture—letting the stock harvest the rye or barley during autumn and spring and the lespedeza during the hot months of summer. Permanent grasses such as bluegrass, orchard grass, fescue afford winter and spring pasture but are rested during the autumn months. And in the hardest winter weather, hay and silage and grain can supplement the permanent grass pasture to whatever degree is necessary.

Sounds easy, doesn't it? Well—it was at about this point in the afternoon proceedings that a fine-looking old gentleman who must have been crowding 80 summers and had a beard which would have been the envy of a ninteenth century whaling captain stood up and said he had hay to fork out for 60 head of cattle and must head home to Middlebrook. He was Mr. Sam Meecy and I hope to make his acquaintance one day. So the meeting adjourned and we brought "Dixie" home to supper. Our own steers were bawling at the gate when we arrived, the sun had set before I got the hay racks filled and Fred reported that Stan Turner's two sows had farrowed 20 pigs. At supper we got vauable pointers from "Dixie" on his hobby, the re-finishing of old furniture, and Mama sent his wife her recipe for crisp sweet green tomato pickle. Altogether it was a big day.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A MEAN-TO-BE helpful but actually unthinking visitor asks: "When staying in a friend's house for the night, is one supposed to make up the bed before leaving in the morning?

Definitely not, unless you are coming back the next day to sleep in the same bed. Since your hostess could hardly let another person sleep in the sheets that you have slept in, you would give your hostess double work by having to take everything off the bed before making it up fresh.

DEAR MRS. POST: My daughter was married very young. She eloped against our wishes. This marriage lasted about a year. Now she is marrying with our approval. Since she had nothing in the way of a wedding the first time, I think you can understand her wanting to have all the "trimmings" this time. She is still very young, less than three years having gone by. May we send formal wedding invitations and may she wear a bridal dress and veil? This last is what she has set her heart on most.

Answer: Unhappily, "this last" is just what she can't have. You may send formal invitations and invite as many people as you wish, but nothing could be more improper than for a woman who has been married to wear the symbol of maidenhood. However, she may wear a bridal-type dress with a train and with a shoulder-length plain tulle bridal-type veile to match, if both be of bright pink or turquoise blue or gold, but it must not even faintly suggest white.

DEAR MRS. POST: Can a church wedding (even a reception) be arranged when the two mothers are not on speaking terms?

Answer: Yes, certainly—taking it for granted that they will behave properly toward each other, if they are obliged to come face to face.

DEAR MRS. POST: What glassware and silver patterns would you suggest with Spode china?

Answer: Any Colonial design, whether Georgian or early American.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

PINEAPPLE rice cream is a dessert one can find served in the most famous hotels where much thought is given to old favorites made in a superior way. All the ingredients are available now and the cost of all is reasonable except whipping cream. One important consideration in the preparation is in cooking the rice properly. Since we are going through a stage of improvement in the processing of rice these days, one must observe and carefully follow instructions on the package to obtain satisfactory results. Some rice is so treated that it requires no washing and is cooked in just enough water in the top of a double boiler to have it completely dry at the end of the cooking. Such rice requires no rinsing.

This kind of rice is more nutritious than rice that requires washing before cooking and rinsing after. The cooked rice needs to stand in the pineapple syrup long enough to absorb sweetness and flavor and produce a dessert with ingredients perfectly blended in flavor. A third point to keep in mind is combining the whipped cream and other ingredients. A light folding motion is required to obtain the fluffy quality of the dessert. Over-folding undoes all the effort made to obtain delicate, fluffy whipped cream.

Pineapple Rice Cream.

No. 2 can crushed pineapple, one quart water, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-half cup raw rice, one-fourth cup sugar, three-fourths teaspoon lemon juice, one-half cup whipping cream.

Place water and one-half teaspoon of the salt in a saucepan and heat to boiling. Gradually stir in rice (the old process kind) and continue cooking about 25 minutes or until rice grains are tender; stir occasionally. Drain off excess water. Meanwhile, drain pineapple juice into a saucepan. Add sugar and the remaining one-fourth teaspoon salt to drained juice. Boil down to a medium thick syrup (about 10 minutes). Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Combine syrup with cooked rice. Cool. Stir in drained pineapple. Whip cream and fold into the other combined ingredients. Serve at once or chill throughly. Makes four servings.

MENUS FOR THURSDAY.

LUNCHEON—Cold sliced corned beef sandwiches on rye bread, dill pickles, fresh pears.

DINNER—Lamb curry, buttered toast, green beans and tiny onions, rutabaga salad, rolls and butter, pineapple rice cream.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

I READ with interest today of the hopes of various nations to obtain definite sums of money from the international children's emergency fund of the United Nations. I wish very much that one could feel entirely sure that this fund would actually receive sufficient money to provide the sums which these nations are counting upon and which it is essential that children should receive.

I am coming more and more to the belief that the United Nations should begin now and put together, for submission to each nation, the total of subscriptions required from various nations. This is important particularly to the United States, Great Britain and the USSR at the moment.

WHETHER we supply relief within the framework of an international organization, or whether we do so as an individual country, seems to me very unimportant. What we want to know is the total of foodstuffs, for instance, that we should provide to all the needy nations, since that ought to condition what will be available for use within our country. How much cash will the nations need for purchase of materials or machines either here or in other countries? If we know in advance how much of a cash loan will return to us in purchases made in this country, that will help in making up our appropriations budget.

IT IS SHOCKING, I think, that the world bank is having such difficulty in obtaining someone to head it. Various prominent business men are reported to have rejected the post. One can only assume that these men find that the forces of finance in this country, and perhaps in Great Britain and even in some other countries, are making it so difficult to obtain the money needed that no individual sees any chance of success in carrying out this all-important banking undertaking.

The only real excuse for opposing it would be that, if it were done on a private basis, the profits to individuals or to firms would probably be much higher. This institution, however, is the one which will be lending money to governments for rehabilitation purposes, and it certainly cannot function without a head, or without the support of the great financial interests throughout the world.

IT SEEMS always to be possible during a war, when insecurity surrounds every nation, to find among a country's citizens a spirit of disinterested self-sacrifice, but the minute a war comes to an end, the justification for self-interest is easy to find. Good public servants are as scarce as hen's teeth in our democracy. Disinterested co-operation on the part of business on a national and international plane is even scarcer. The long look into the future is conspicuously lacking.

Tomato Aspic Mold

Cook over low heat, three cups tomato juice, six or eight celery leaves, two small pieces bay leaf, one whole clove, three whole black peppers, one small onion, sliced, and small piece of green pepper for 15 minutes. Strain. Soften four teaspoons gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water. Dissolve in hot tomato juice. Add one-half teaspoon salt and one tablespoon lemon juice. Cool until partly congealed. Fold in one-half cup diced cucumber, one-half cup celery, finely diced, and one-fourth cup shredded green pepper. Pour into lightly oiled three-cup mold. Chill until set. Unmold on bed of watercress. Top with mayonnaise, thinned with lemon juice. Serves four.

Fix It Yourself

Household Electricity.

ELECTRICAL appliances are wonderful time saving devices that give us extra hours to worry over world conditions. But before you plug them all in at once—a word of advice.

Every electrical appliance takes a certain number of watts to operate. The number required will appear on the appliance. A watt is the term of measurement of electricity and is derived by multiplying volts times amperes. Now the electrical system in your home is made up of circuits which are intended to carry just so many watts. Each circuit has a fuse that acts as a safety valve. Multiply the number of amperes on the fuse by 110 (the voltage) and you'll find how many watts that particular circuit will carry. A circuit with a 15-ampere fuse will carry 1650 watts. A 20-ampere fuse is good for 2200 watts and no more. Plug in appliances demanding more watts than the circuit carries and either the fuse will blow, the appliances won't operate efficiently, or the wires in the circuit will overheat and start a fire.

2200 watts seems like a lot but remember that a toaster takes around 1100, a coffee pot perks at about 1000 and an electric heater demands 1250 or so. Until you can get an electrician to give you a few more circuits, do a little adding of watts before you start plugging in.

PITTSBURGH—Hailed before a magistrate on a loitering charge, Thomas Coll was identified as the writer of a recent letter to the newspapers praising city police as "the best in the world."

"What do you think of the police now," asked Magistrate Frank Zappala.

Fast Friends.

OREGON CITY, Ore. — When Russell H. Fraser's home burned in the hills east of here, his friends wanted to help him build another.

They had no lumber. So they went into the woods, felled trees, hauled them to a sawmill and carted the resultant lumber back to Fraser—all in one day.

This week they plan to construct the new building.

Not So Lovely.

CHICAGO — Mrs. Ann Elliott told Circuit Judge Leonard C. Reid that her husband, Fred, fell in love at the slightest provocation. For that reason, she said, she filed a separate maintenance suit in the hope that he would stop.

Elliott told the court that his present girl friend was "the real thing—I think."

"Halting love is a tough proposition," Judge Reid said, "but in this particular case I can put a pretty high hurdle in its path." He ordered Elliott to pay $35 of his $65 weekly earnings for support of Mrs. Elliott and their 1-year-old daughter.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a woman age 28. I met an ex-G.I. and have been corresponding with him for the past year. I love him and he seems to care a lot for me. I have been married twice and have a little girl age 10. She is the child of my first husband whom I thought I loved. He was killed in 1941. We had been divorced and he had married again. I was engaged to this ex-G.I. but we broke it four months ago. He started drinking and running around with other women. Now he has found out that isn't what he wants after all, that he loves me, and is trying to make amends. Shall I marry him.

M. V.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may inclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Wait until you feel quite sure that your former fiance is sincere in his desire to make amends and run after no more women, that he is not just coming back to you between affairs. As to the drinking, if he sincerely loves you he will stop that before marriage, not allow you to count on post-marital reformation, which seldom pans out.

Dear Martha Carr:

I WOULD LIKE to join some sort of singing group here in St. Louis and also a nice girls' club. I am 22, employed and a stranger in St. Louis. Most of the girls in my office are much older than I am and none of them seems interested in music. I have had some singing lessons, but don't claim to be any kind of genius. I just love to sing. Have you any suggestions for me?

STRANGER.

Perhaps you would enjoy the Civic Opera Guild. If so, telephone Prof. Azzalina at JEfferson 9433, or drop into the Musical Arts Building, Boyle avenue and Olive street where the organization holds try-outs on Wednesday nights at 8; rehearsals on Tuesday nights, 8 to 10. The Grandel Symphonic Choir meets on Monday nights at the Y.W.C.A., 1411 Locust street. Gilbert Falter is the director. There are any number of church choirs you might be able to get into. The Union Methodist Church, 3628 Grandel Square, is one. The Cathedral Girls' Club, 1210 Locust street, under the direction of Freda Dexheimer, is a group you would enjoy. There you can indulge in swimming, Spanish lessons or bridge, according to your tastes. You can see or telephone Miss Dexheimer regarding the club any week day from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

IN ANSWER TO "Miserable": If your mother feels the boys in question are too old or too sophisticated for you to date, then who am I to tell you to go right ahead and date them anyway? I don't know anything about them and she does. Be a wise girl and stick to your own age group. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my "Washington's Birthday Party" leaflet.

IN ANSWER TO "Vivian": You and this boy are looking much too far ahead. Be content to remain merely friends and refuse to allow yourselves to become serious for several years to come. By then you will probably each be serious about someone else.

IN ANSWER TO "Jack": It could be just possible, Jack, that you aren't entirely the angel child. How about not teasing, how about keeping to your own friends and your own belongings. Then after you have given being a good boy a fair trial if you get no results, take the matter to Mother for arbitration.

IN ANSWER TO "Three Maids": Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my "Popularity Hints," "Sub-deb," and "What About the Petting Question?" leaflets which should shed light on all these questions worrying you.

IN ANSWER TO "M. H.": In the Census of Religious Bodies and other material to be found at the Public Library you will find the answer to your questions. For lack of space I cannot go into detail here.

IN ANSWER TO "Disgusted": I think you had better talk matters over with Mrs. Speer of the Girls' Protective Association, 613 Locust street.

Handicapped Child

By Angelo Patri

WHAT to do with a child who has some sort of physical defect that does not completely disable him but which makes working in school among other children a difficult matter, difficult for him and for the teacher. My experience tells that such a child is benefited by half-day school sessions, then free play at home, then a brief but pointed lesson by a private teacher. If at all possible, this scheme works well for many of these children.

One of the most important experiences school offers children is the association with other children. They learn valuable lessons from each other. They learn to give as well as take, to yield as well as to hold fast, to lend strength to the group that in return will support them with its strength. These are life lessons that only such experiences as the group affords can teach. The isolated child loses these contacts and consequently is at a loss when thrown among others, as he must be sooner or later.

THE CLASSROOM TEACHER cannot give such a child the specialized individual teaching he must have if he is to succeed in mastering any part of the curriculum. The most she can do is to allow him the privileges of the classroom, see that he is protected and aided by the stronger members of the group, be understanding and kindly in her attitudes and hope for the best. A whole day of responsibility for such a child is too much for both classmates and teacher, and for the child himself.

These children need work; they need to have their work reduced to their capacity; they need rest; they need play; they need the discipline of the group; the discipline of a set duty; the care and protection of home and group and teacher. Their program must be carefully directed so that at no time is the handicapped child under pressure to reach the standard set for the child in stout health of mind and body. The standard the careful teacher has set helps him to stay within his ability and still stimulates him to reach for growth. Only the skilled teacher understands how to do this.

WHEN IT IS at all possible for a handicapped child to go to school with other children, that is, when his condition does not endanger his own life and limb, or that of other children, he should do so, but for a shortened day and a scaled-to-order program. And with the understanding that the teacher is not to be bound by his parents to any set goal they may have in mind for him—like regular promotions based on subject ratings impossible for the child to honestly achieve.

Elsie Gives Some Wives A Hard Dig

By Elsie Robinson

IT'S a cinch that this would be a much happier land to live in and the divorce record would be considerably lowered if women would stop referring to "MY house . . . MY children . . . MY furniture . . ."

There is nothing more unfair or more obnoxious to any man with an atom of self respect than this possessive attitude in the average female.

It is a legal fact in most progressive states as well as a sporting one, that all goods, chattels and children accumulated after mariage are as much the husband's as they are the wife's.

The mere fact that a woman does the household chores does not make the home her legal property any more than the fact that the husband holds a bookkeeping job entitles him to ownership of the office or business organization.

IF A MARRIAGE means anything at all to the contracting parties, they put all they have, all they do and all they are into the common pot. Otherwise they are just a couple of Indian givers with strings on every service, who feel that they have a right at any moment to snatch back that which they have given.

The wife who serves in the home does not contribute any more than the husband who supports that home. Indeed, it is often doubtful if she contributes as much, for he must carry the responsibility and anxiety for its maintenance.

And if the woman also works, her service still belongs in the common pot. She has no more right to hang on to her salary check than her husband has to hang on to his. She does no more for the common well being and happiness than he does.

THIS IS particularly true when it applies to children. The woman who bears a child deserves no more credit and endures no more strain than the man who supports that child until it is 21.

Far too many wives are inclined to think that a couple of hours of labor constitute a maternity bill of rights including all priorities for the next 20 years.

The hand that rocks the cradle has no tougher job than the fist that brings home the bacon.

If a woman demands equal rights she should be willing to bear equal responsibility and admit equal service.

Don't refer to YOUR home, YOUR children, sister. If you can't be fair, at least be gracious. You'll catch more flies with sugar than with possessive vinegar.

Take My Word for It

By Frank Colby

HERE'S HOW THEY TALK.
Bob Hope.

VOICE, a well-placed, resonant tenor. Hope's years of experience in vaudeville as a singing comedian stand him in good stead in his radio work. The ability, which show people must have, of throwing the voice clearly and understandably to the last row of the gallery is a most valuable asset in broadcasting. And it is one reason why the top performers in radio are nearly always ex-stage folk.

ENUNCIATION, exceptionally good. His speech is flexible and on the lips, and one seldom has to wonder "what did he say then?" even during those times when the sound-effects man is more energetic than usual with his background noises.

STYLE, fast-talking, glib, and as American as apple pie. Hope speaks excellent Standard American, being one of the few comics who do not rely on dialects or grotesque mannerisms of speech to make them funny.

In his role of smart-aleck-who-is-the-butt-of-all-the-jokes, Bob Hope has created a character which show business describes as "surefire." But it requires an instinctive sense of good timing, as well as the facility of making you like him even while he holds himself up to outrageous ridicule. In short, he is a superb showman.

PRONUNCIATION, remarkably good, although I have heckled Hope good-naturedly from time to time for his chronic mispronunciation "pro-grum" for program. My four-year radio check discloses that, among professional broadcasters, the smothered "grum" or "gr'm" is scarcely ever heard, the -gram being pronounced with the flat "a" as in "ham," just as it always is in anagram, diagram, monogram. How the unlovely "grum" pronunciation started I have never been able to determine.

Weren't Good Enough to Star in Films, So Took Next Best Available Job

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.

MANY a family combination has made a living both in front and behind the camera. But most unusual of all such groups, perhaps, are the Urcan sisters — four of them and all stand-ins.

The four girls — Lee, Virginia, Ann and Eleanor—were born in Indianapolis, attending elementary school there. They then moved to Detroit, where after graduating from high school they went in for professional singing and dancing. After hoofing their way through the night club and hotel circuits, friends felt that a definite career in Hollywood was in store for the quartet.

They decided, therefore, to sing and dance their way across the continent, landing in movietown six years ago and immediately laying seige to the studio casting offices. They were a sister act, they pointed out, and no break in the combination would be tolerated.

But as a unit and, later, even singly, the going proved tough. One by one they became standins and today all four are listed as members of that profession.

Eleanor now is working on the Warner Bros. picture, "Night Unto Night." In this picture Rosemary De Camp has one of the top featured roles, and it's for her that Eleanor takes the bumps. In the sisters' vaudeville days, she used to be the leading dancer of the group.

Anne Revere, who recently scored as the mother of Gene Tierney in "Dragonwyck," always turns to Virginia for stand-in chores. The two have worked together in 14 pictures. They're close personal friends, as well.

Ruth Warrick's stand-in in "Arch of Triumph" was Ann. They have worked together in three pictures.

The girls aren't bitter about their failure to crash the big time in Hollywood. They take their modest stand-in jobs philosophically, claiming they're much more interesting than one-night stands in the hoofing league. The jobs also pay just about as well.

"We found," said Lee, "that we couldn't sing and dance well enough to stand out in Hollywood, but we could do well enough to stand-in—and that's okay by us."

How It Started

By Jean Newton

To Bring Home the Bacon.

THIS is how you brought home the bacon 835 years ago, if you lived in the village of Dunmow, in Essex, England.

You made your way to the church door; you knelt and took an oath that for a year and a day past you had not quarrelled with your wife, nor wished yourself single! Upon rising, you claimed and received a flitch of bacon which custom awarded to such an avower.

Another way to bring home the bacon was to attend a country fair and participate in a competition popular in those good olde days. A greased pig was turned loose among blindfolded entrants who did their best to capture him. The one who succeeded brought home the bacon alive.

These were old English customs, but whether they account for the origin of this phrase, which our reader requests, is another matter. Many antiquarians think so. There are some skeptics, however, who insist that this is only part of the picture, that it discloses the colorful background of this ages-old item of the modern diet, but that the phrase bringing home the bacon was a natural metaphor for obtaining food, from which derived its implication of supporting a family.

The importance of the bacon, in particular, is borne out in such a saying as "saving one's bacon," which has long been used as a figure of speech for guarding against vital loss—in allusion to the bacon stored for the winter, which in olden times often comprised the best part of a family's sustenance. The phrase also brings up another old meaning of bacon, an anatomical allusion to humans, as in the old lines: "But as he rose to save his bacon, by hat and wig he was forsaken."

Contract Bridge

South.	West.	North.	East.
1 club	1 spade	2 diamonds	Pass
2 no trump	3 hearts	6 clubs	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

It was only natural that this outstanding freak should have resulted in trouble for one side or the other. North went slow on the first round, because he had to worry about two or even three possible spade losers, but when South, by bidding two no trump in the face of West's spade call, announced a high card in the suit, it became obvious to North that at least a small slam would have to be reached.

Looking only at the North-South hands any expert would say that six clubs had a 100 to 1 chance in its favor, with not too bad a play for seven-odd. Actually, however, South found the contract unmakeable.

West opened the heart king. Dummy ruffed, but a tentative trump lead from Dummy disclosed the sad state of affairs, and there was no salvation. Even if South had not drawn that one trump he could not have shut out the setting trick. At first glance it appears that dummy's low diamonds can be ruffed out while South retains full control, but that is a snare and a delusion.

It is a strange and significant fact, however, that so small a transposition as the six and seven of clubs between the East and North hands allows the contract to be made! With the change South can ruff two low diamonds and still keep East from getting a trump trick, so that only one diamond or one heart need finally be conceded.

It was pretty bad luck for North-South that such a logical slam contract should have failed by so narrow a margin.

NO OTHER COFFEE GIVES YOU...

More Flavor....

Because A&P Coffee comes to you in the roaster-fresh bean . . . and then, right before your eyes, is Custom Ground to give you the best results in your own coffeepot . . . no other coffee gives you more flavor! Yes, A&P Coffee is PACKED WITH FLAVOR! And there's a blend to suit your taste, too—mild, medium, or strong. So it's easy to see why A&P Coffee is America's most popular coffee by millions of pounds. It's the only coffee that can claim that distinction.

More FOR YOUR Money

Compare prices before you buy your coffee, and remember this statement: "YOU CAN'T BUY FINER COFFEE IN ANY PACKAGE AT ANY PRICE THAN A&P COFFEE." How can A&P Coffee prices be so comparatively low? Direct buying and selling is the answer. And no other coffee can give you more for your money!

'Henry V' Heads Week's Movie Bills

Highlighting the movie house bills this week is Laurence Olivier's widely praised production of Shakespeare's "Henry V," which opens tomorrow night at the Shady Oak Theater in Clayton. It will then settle down to an extended run on a two-a-day policy with roadshow prices. Matinees will be at 2:30 p.m., night shows at 8:30. The picture, in Technicolor, was produced and directed by Olivier and stars him in the title role. British stage stars make up the cast.

There is a heavy drama at the Ambassador, starting today. It is "Humoresque," starring John Garfield and Joan Crawford winner of the 1945 Academy acting award, who is making her bid for another Oscar in this one. Based on the Fannie Hurst novel, it tells the story of a wealthy, neurotic married woman who becomes the patroness of a young violinist who has risen from New York's East Side. When she realizes her love for her protege may be doing him harm, tragedy develops. Oscar Levant, the famous "Information Please" wisecracker, plays a cynical, witty pianist. J. Carrol Naish and Ruth Nelson play the violinist's father and mother.

At the Fox, "Suspense," Monogram's first million dollar production and bid for the big time opens today. A drama of a triangle that develops in an ice-skating show, it features Belita, Barry Sullivan, Bonita Granville and Albert Dekker. The picture was made by the King brothers, former slot-machine operators, who started from the bottom in the business with an epic called "Paper Bullets," costing all of $19,500, but giving the first break to a boy named Alan Ladd. The second number on the program is called "Decoy." It features a sexy English actress, Jean Gillie, as a bad, ruthless woman.

The Art Theater, beginning Saturday, will have a revival of "The Last Chance," the fine Swiss-made picture done in English, which was submerged on a double bill last year. It's about two British and one American escaped prisoners of war who lead a group of refugees past German patrols in Italy into Switzerland.

The Shubert, starting today, has a re-issue of the terse and exciting gangster film, "The Killers," based on the Hemingway short story, and featuring Burt Lancaster as the fall guy of a group of payroll bandits. With it is another reissue, on criminals, confidence men in this instance, "Nobody Lives Forever," starring John Garfield and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

This is "George O'Brien" revival week at the Orpheum. The heavy-biceped action star is featured in two 1936 releases, "Daniel Boone," full of shootin' and Indians, and "Windjammer," a tale of piracy in the China seas. O'Brien was released from the Navy a year ago with the rank of Commander, after serving five years, and hasn't been mentioned since in publicity from Hollywood.

"The Razor's Edge," the adaptation of the Somerset Maugham novel which placed eighth in the Post-Dispatch poll on best pictures of 1946, goes into its fourth week at the Missouri. "Till the Clouds Roll By," the MGM supermusical, is also doing well at Loew's State, and goes into its third week there.

"Blue Skies," at the St. Louis, goes into the seventh week of its run there and at the Ambassador.

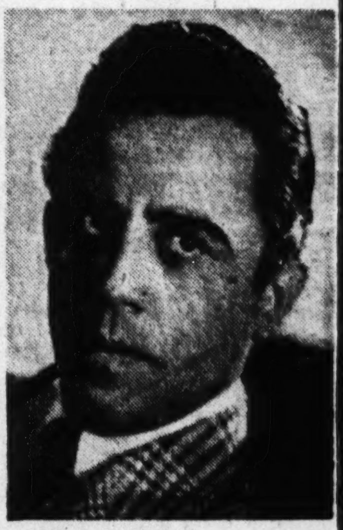
The Record Makers

By Charles Menees

BOYD RAEBURN is a band leader to watch this year. Just as other big outfits are folding, Raeburn is preparing to open with a new band late this month at New York's Vanity Fair, formerly the Zanzibar. This all prefaces four new Raeburn sides from Ben Pollack's Jewel firm. Best of these, done with a 21-piece recording band, including French horns and harp, is "Hip Boyd's," a Ralph Flanagan opus that has about everything. The opening 32-bar piano solo, in varying moods, is a masterpiece by Hal Schaefer, once with Harry James. A brass and bass (Harry Babison) interlude is followed by a bouncy riff chorus, then Ralph Lee's tenor and Ray Lynn's trumpet solos. Latter is backed by a great trombone riff propelled by Tommy Pederson. Restrained yet positive drumming throughout is by Mack Albright. Subtitle of the tune is "Get the Abbott Habit," slogan of a Louisville disc jockey who plugs Raeburn's music. The other sides: "Duck Waddle" is an Ed Finkle thing based on a riff suggested by the title. There is good solo work by Lynn, Lee, Schaefer and Trombonist Burt Johnson. Ending depicts tired duck collapsing. More under the Stravinsky influence are "The Man With the Horn," featuring English horn, oboe, flute and harp, with solos by Pederson and Alto Saxist Wilbur Schwartz, of the old Glenn Miller band, and "Prelude to the Dawn," spotlighting Schwartz and Harpist Katherine Thompson. "The Man With the Horn," incidentally, is an old tune by the late Jack Jenny and his wife, Bonnie Lake, and has been cut for Columbia by Harry James.



BOYD RAEBURN . . . BAND LEADER TO WATCH.

Pianist Johnny Guarnieri is featured in a new Majestic album of jazz with a light touch. Guarnieri is supported by Drummer Morey Feld and Bassist (and brother) Leo Guarnieri on "Flying Home," "Believe It Beloved," "Stars Fell on Alabama" and "Beyond the Moon." With him on "My Gal Sal" and "Temptation" are Drummer Cozy Cole, Bassist Bob Haggart and Guitarist Tony Mattola, who does several nice solos. First two sides are the most entertaining Guarnieri.

DOROTHY SHAY is a gal who's become famous singing folk and western music in swank clubs. In fact, she advertised as "the Park Avenue Hillbillie." Her talents are aptly showcased in a new Columbia album which contains the following songs: "Feudin' and Fightin'," "Say That We're Sweethearts Again," "Mountain Gal," "Efficiency," "Flat River, Missouri," "I've Been to Hollywood," "Uncle Fud" and "I'm in Love With a Married Man." Some are a bit suggestive. Also Columbia: Kay Kyser's "Managua, Nicaragua," is sung by the Campus Kids, especially Gloria Wood, and "That's the Beginning of the End," vocal by Michael Douglas and the Campus Kids; Buddy Clark's best in a long time are "Linda" (an unidentified gal also sings) and "Love Is a Randon Thing," from the new play, "Toplitzky of Notre Dame." Backing by Ray Noble's band is a definite asset on these sides; Dinah Shore pairs "My Bel Ami," from the movie about the DeMaupassant character, and "I'll Close My Eyes." This tune is also done by Mildred Bailey on a new Majestic disc. Better, however, because it's more in Mildred's vein, is "Me and the Blues." Ellis Larkins, who directs accompaniment, does a nice guitar solo on "Blues." Victor's newest by Herbie Fields's band are "Connecticut" and "Years and Years Ago," singing by the Romanticists. Band work pretty good.

MUSIC FROM Walt Disney's "Song of the South" is done nicely in a new Capitol album, "Tales of Uncle Remus." With Johnny Mercer and the Pied Pipers are members of the movie's original cast, including James Baskett, who plays Uncle Remus. Highly entertaining is the talking by Br'er Rabbit and his enemies, Br'er Fox and Br'er Bear. Decca reissues bound to do well are Clyde McCoy's "Sugar Blues," with "I've Found a New Baby," and Henry Busse's "Hot Lips" and "The Wang Wang Blues." Other Deccas are the Delta Rhythm Boys' "Joshua Fit Da Battle of Jericho" and "Dry Bones," reissued; Guy Lombardo's "All the Things You Are" and "Long Ago," reissued; Hildegarde and the Song Spinners, with Lombardo backing, sing "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" and "Sidewalks of New York"; Nicolas Matthey's orchestra gives an oriental touch to "Misirlou" and a gypsy atmosphere to "Hora Staccato." Decca might do well by reissuing Woody Herman's "Misirlou" and Columbia might do same with Harry James's. . . . Count Basie, after eight years with Columbia and subsidiaries, has just changed to the Victor label, with guaranteed minimum royalties of $150,000 for next three years. First RCA sides, already cut, are an instrumental, "One O'Clock Boogie" and "The Same Old Blues," sung by Jimmy Rushing. Columbia has 14 unreleased Basie platters. . . . This firm is coming up with Gene Krupa's "Opus No. 1," a new Woody Herman "Woodchoppers' Ball," plus a Herman album.
